PREFATORY REMARKS

ON THE

RETURNS OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE

FOR THE YEAR 1854.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY GEORGE WILLIAM FREDERICK, EARL OF CARLISLE, K.G.

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

In October, 1854, I had the honour of submitting, for the consideration of the Earl of St. Germans, a general abstract of the extent of land under tillage, in 1853 and 1854, in each county and province in Ireland; I now beg to lay before your Excellency, tables showing the areas under the various crops, also the classification of holdings, and the number of each description of stock, in every barony and poor law union. The number and situation of scutching mills are also given; and a statement, in a tabular form, in which an attempt is made to exhibit the extent to which weeds are permitted to grow on the farms, and by the sides of public roads, canals, &c.

PART I.—CROPS.

The area under tillage in 1854 was 5,570,610 statute acres; in 1853 it was 5,696,951 acres; a decrease of 126,341 statute acres therefore took place in 1854 in the extent of land under crops. The diminution in each province is given in the following summary:—

		Decrease.
		Extent of Tillage in 1853.	Extent of Tillage in 1854.	Between 1853 & 1854.
		Acres.	Acres.	Acres.
Leinster,	.	1,683,599	1,665,599	18,000
Munster,	.	1,431,144	1,379,024	52,120
Ulster,	.	1,846,180	1,811,496	34,684
Connaught,	.	736,028	714,491	21,537
Total,	.	5,696,951	5,570,610	126,341
				Rate per Cent.
				1.9

The greatest relative decrease took place in the provinces of Munster and Connaught, and the least in Leinster and Ulster; there were only three counties which exhibited an increase in the breadth of land under crops in 1854; these were:—

COUNTIES.	Extent of Land under Crops.		Increase.
	1853.	1854.	Extent.	Rate per Cent.
	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.

Dublin,	101,999	106,007	4,008	3.9
Wicklow,	118,071	118,184	113	.1

The counties in which, when compared with 1853, the greatest relative decrease in the area under tillage took place in 1854, were Roscommon, Clare, Kerry, Cavan, Leitrim, Tyrone, Cork, and Galway; the first of these diminished 6·7 per cent., and the last 3·2 per cent. in the number of acres under crops; the diminution in each county is shown in the following table:—

COUNTIES.	Extent of Land under Crops.		Decrease.		COUNTIES.	Extent of Land under Crops.		Decrease.

The following are the alterations which have taken place in the extent of each crop in 1854: wheat increased by 84,388 statute acres, whilst the breadth under oats, barley, bere, rye, beans, and peas diminished by 174,039 acres, making a total decrease in the cereal crops of 89,651 statute acres. With regard to green crops, a steady increase in the area has taken place since 1849, in which year the returns showed that 1,167,639 acres were occupied by them; in 1854 the extent planted with potatoes, turnips, mangel wurzel, and other green crops, was 1,404,518 statute acres; the increase in the extent of these crops, in the last four years, was 52,203 statute acres; in the succeeding table is given the number of acres under each crop, from 1849 to 1854:—

PREFATORY REMARKS.

The extent of land under corn, beans, and peas was greater in 1854 than in 1853, in the counties of Armagh, Down, Dublin, Kildare, and Louth, and less in all the other counties; of potatoes a smaller breadth was planted in 1854 in the county of Roscommon alone: the remaining counties show a considerable increase in this crop; in the cultivation of turnips, mangel wurzel, beet, carrots, and parsnips, a falling off has taken place, there not being a single county which does not exhibit a diminution; in "other green crops," Donegal, Londonderry, Longford, Mayo, Queen's County, Wexford, and Wicklow, show an increase. As regards flax, it appears that a very extensive decrease took place in 1854, and that the counties chiefly affected by the diminished area are those in which it is manufactured, and in which it might, therefore, be expected its cultivation would have increased. The counties in which the largest diminution occurred were—Down, 7,062 acres; Cavan, 3,263 acres; Armagh, 3,242 acres; Antrim, 2,328 acres; Londonderry, 2,003 acres; Tyrone, 1,779 acres; Louth, 1,397 acres; Monaghan, 1,172 acres. In the province of Ulster alone the decrease in flax in 1854 amounted to 20,906 statute acres; and in the entire country the diminution in this important crop was 23,176 acres.

The counties which exhibited an increased area under flax in 1854 were, Cork (932 acres), Donegal (451 acres), Dublin (3 acres), and Galway (1 acre), King's (17 acres), Westmeath (1 acre), Wexford (5 acres), Wicklow (1 acre), amounting in all to 1,411 acres; a larger extent under meadow, clover, and rape has been returned for Armagh, Down, Dublin, Leitrim, Londonderry, Mayo, Meath, Monaghan, Sligo, Waterford, Westmeath, and Wicklow,—the remaining counties show a diminution; these alterations are given in the following table:—

The extent of land under flax in 1854 was 151,403 acres; the quantity grown was 35,606 tons, computed according to the Returns of produce upon an average rate of $37\frac{1}{10}$ stones per acre.

The following table gives the breadth of flax cultivated in each county during the last six years, showing the increase or decrease between 1853 and 1854:—

It would appear that the proportion of cereal crops grown on farms “above 1 to 5 acres” differs but little from that grown on holdings “above 50 to 100 acres;” farmers holding land from 5 to 50 acres in extent grow a larger proportion of cereals than any of the other classes, and as the farms increase in size the relative area of grain crops diminishes; persons occupying from 1 to 5 acres cultivated the largest proportion of green crops. The extent, description, and proportion per cent. of crops grown by the several classes of landholders is shown in the following table :—

The changes in the area of the several crops in 1854 show, when compared with the returns of the previous year, that in every province there has been a decrease in the extent under cereals, the largest proportionate diminution having taken place in Munster. In "Green Crops," Ulster alone exhibits a decrease; in "Flax," Munster only an increase; each of the four provinces diminished in the area under "Rape." In "Meadow," Ulster increased, and the other provinces decreased in area; these variations are given in the following table:—

The number of holdings returned for 1854 was greater than in 1853, by 4,738; the increase extended to every class, farms "above 15, and not exceeding 30 acres" alone excepted; the proportion which the numbers in each class bear to the total number has scarcely varied during the last three years. In 1854, of the entire number of farms, 6·5 per cent. did not exceed 1 acre in extent; 13·7 per cent. were above 1, and not exceeding 5 acres; 30·3 per cent. were above 5, and not exceeding 15 acres; 23·3 per cent. were above 15, and not exceeding 30 acres; and 26·2 per cent. were above 30 acres—thus, about half the farms in Ireland are above 15 acres in extent. The following table shows the number of holdings in five classes, and the rate per cent. in each class since 1849 :—

The number of holdings above one acre in extent increased in the county of Mayo by 956 during the year 1854; it is important to observe, that it is principally in the larger classes the increase has taken place (see Table, page xi). Galway shows an increase of 482, and Wicklow of 373 holdings—in the latter chiefly in those of an intermediate size; an increase of 219 farms has occurred in Donegal, and several of the other counties also show an increase, as will be seen from the following summary, which exhibits the increase or decrease of the number in each county :—

2 RETURNS OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE FOR THE YEAR 1854.

In 1854 the holdings in the Province of Leinster above 1 acre in extent were 452 more than in 1853, in Ulster they increased by 477, and in Connaught by 1,687; in Munster similar holdings decreased by 248, and in the whole of Ireland their increase was 2,368. Thus, whilst there has been a diminution in the total area under tillage of 126,341 acres, the number of holdings containing more than 1 acre has increased by 2,368.

The counties in which holdings occupied by persons not having more than 1 acre increased or decreased, are shown in the following statement, from which it will be seen that the number of the cottier class increased most in the counties of Antrim, Cork, Clare, Roscommon, and Londonderry, and decreased most in Louth, Mayo, Meath, and Armagh; and that on the whole there has been an increase of this class in 1854 of 2,370:—

The extended classification of holdings which was commenced in 1851 has been continued since; and it is satisfactory to observe how closely the number returned in each year corresponds in the several classes—an important testimony to the fidelity with which the enumerators have discharged their duty;—this will be seen from the following statement, in which the holdings in each class are given, for the years 1851, 1852, 1853, and 1854:—

The average extent in each class of holdings remained nearly the same in 1854 as in 1853, with the exception of farms containing “500 acres and upwards,” which in 1853 comprised 2,176,824 acres, and in 1854, 2,122,967 acres, being a diminution in the latter year of 53,857 acres; this, together with an increase of 21 in their number, reduced their average size from 1,344½ acres in 1853 to 1,294½ acres in 1854. The changes in the average extent of land held by each class in 1853 and 1854 are shown in the following table:—

From the foregoing it will be seen, that the average produce, per acre, of wheat, barley, bere, peas, mangel wurzel, and hay, varied but little between 1853 and 1854 in the yield of Ireland, generally. In oats there has been an increase of nearly a barrel per acre; in rye, a diminution of three-tenths of a barrel per acre; and in beans, an increase of six-tenths of a bushel per acre, in 1854. As regards potatoes, however, it would appear, that notwithstanding the increased breadth planted in 1854, the average produce of this crop was ten two-tenth barrels per acre under the yield of 1853; and that although in 1854 there was an increase of 90,927 acres when compared with the previous year, the produce was 5,439,065 barrels less in 1854 than in 1853. Mangel wurzel, turnips, cabbage, and flax also show a diminished yield, per acre, in 1854.

The rates of produce per acre of the principal crops for eight years, from 1847, as returned by the officers of constabulary, are as under :—

The population of the cities and large towns has been omitted in finding the average, per individual, for the unions and counties in the foregoing tables; the general total, however, at foot of the county table shows the quantity of food grown to each person in Ireland, from which it would appear, that in 1854, corn, beans, and peas, produced together an average, per head, of 733 pounds of food; in 1853 the similar average yield was 700 pounds; thus there has been an increase in 1854 in these crops of thirty-three pounds for the consumption of each individual; potatoes, on the contrary, show a diminution of sixteen stones per individual, in the produce of 1854, the average yield having been 124 stones to each person, whilst in 1853 it was 140 stones.

A selection from the counties and unions is given below, arranged in the order in which they respectively appear to have produced the greatest and least quantity of cereal food for each inhabitant:—

With regard to the system at present in use for ascertaining the average produce per acre in Ireland, I beg to observe, that in addition to the inquiries by the Constabulary I endeavoured to obtain from each Board of Guardians a statement of the probable yield per statute acre of the crops in each Electoral Division, with a view to compare their Returns with those received from the Sub-Inspectors of Constabulary. In order to effect this object, I communicated with the Poor Law Commissioners, who were so good as to address a circular upon the subject to the several Boards of Guardians, of which the following is a copy:—

POOR LAW COMMISSION OFFICE, DUBLIN,
28th October, 1854.

GENTLEMEN,

The Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland desire to inform you, that they understand that the Registrar-General is about to address the several Boards of Guardians in Ireland on the subject of the Agricultural Returns which, since the year 1847, have been collected under the direction of Her Majesty's Government, and to solicit the assistance of the various Boards of Guardians, especially with a view to ascertaining, as nearly as possible, the average rates of produce in different districts.

The Commissioners request that the Board of Guardians will be so good as to direct their Clerk to afford every assistance in his power to the Registrar-General in procuring the information required.

By Order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

Union.*

The annexed copy of a circular was addressed by me to the Chairman and members of each Board of Guardians, soliciting their co-operation; and a sufficient number of printed forms, respecting the rates of produce, similar to those issued to the Constabulary, together with a statement of the area under each crop in every Electoral Division, was transmitted to the Clerk of each Board, who was requested to be so good as to distribute these documents amongst the Guardians, in order to their being filled up by them for each Electoral Division.

5, HENRIETTA-STREET, DUBLIN,
31st October, 1854.

GENTLEMEN,

The increasing importance attached to the Agricultural Returns for Ireland which, since the year 1847, have been collected under the direction of the Government, has made me most desirous to improve those for this year as much as possible.

With this object circulars were issued in the month of June last, addressed to the Magistracy, Clergy of all denominations, and other influential persons in Ireland, requesting them to aid the Constabulary, as far as in their power, in procuring accurate Returns of the Quantity of Stock and the extent of Cultivation. These Returns have now been received, and from the general good feeling exhibited, and the almost universal readiness with which the required information has been given to the Enumerators, I trust that public confidence in the accuracy of these Returns will be increased.

Another step connected with the Inquiries is now in progress, in order to ascertain, as nearly as possible, THE AVERAGE RATES OF PRODUCE in different Districts; and on this subject I am desirous to obtain the assistance of the various Boards of Guardians.

A supply of Printed Forms is forwarded to your Clerk, which you are requested to be so good as to direct that officer to distribute amongst the Guardians of the Union, and I shall feel much obliged if one of these Forms is filled up and returned to me for each Electoral Division.

Instructions for making out the Return are printed on the 1st page, and a Form, filled up, as an example, is given on the 4th; but should further information be required by the Guardians, I shall be most happy to afford every explanation in my power.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM DONNELLY, Registrar-General.

*To the Chairman and Board of Guardians
of the Union.*

I regret to observe that I did not experience as much assistance from the Poor Law Guardians in this important matter as I had hoped for, having only received returns of the rates of produce from 335 Electoral Divisions. This, however, was the first occasion of soliciting their aid; in future years I confidently anticipate greater success.

The following are the average rates of produce, per statute acre, for 335 Electoral Divisions as returned by the Boards of Guardians, and the average rates of produce, per statute acre, for all Ireland, as returned by the Sub-Inspectors of Constabulary.

	Average Rates of 335 Electoral Divisions.	Average Rates of all Ireland.
Wheat, barrels of 20 stones,	5.1	5.9
Oats, " 14 "	7.8	8.8
Barley, " 16 "	8.7	9.3
Bere, " " "	7.9	8.1
Rye, " 20 "	7.8	7.9
Beans, bushels of 8 gallons,	28.9	27.3
Peas, " " "	23.4	25.1
Potatoes, barrels of 20 stones,	38.8	40.9
Turnips, tons,	14.6	15.8
Mangel, "	15.7	17.2
Cabbage, "	12.9	13.3
Flax, stones of 14 lbs.,	36.3	37.6
Hay, tons,	1.8	1.9

In the Appendix, at page lii, are shown the rates of produce for each Electoral Division, compiled from returns made by the Poor Law Guardians.

PART II.—STOCK.

The returns of live stock in Ireland, in 1854, show an increase when compared with the previous year, in the number of horses, asses, cattle, sheep, pigs, and goats; and a decrease in mules and poultry; the horses, two years old and upwards, diminished in number, the increase having been entirely in those under two years; cattle, two years old and upwards, have increased in number, and diminished under the age of two years; sheep, both young and old, increased; pigs, under one year old, increased, but decreased above that age; the changes in the number of each description of stock, between 1853 and 1854, were as under:—

When collecting the returns of live stock, in 1854, a more minute description was adopted than in former years. The horses, “two years old and upwards,” were classified according to the purposes for which they were kept; when enumerating the cattle, the number of milch cows was entered in a separate column,—not included as heretofore with cattle “two years old and upwards;” and in taking the return of sheep “one year old and upwards,” the number of “ewes, tups, and wethers,” was ascertained. This information will be found in the summary tables, and will, it is hoped, prove a valuable addition to these statistics.

The number of live stock in Ireland, in the years 1841, 1849, 1850, 1851, 1852, 1853, and 1854, are given in the following table:—

On reducing the numbers of live stock to a money value, using, as in former years, the rates assumed by the Census Commissioners in 1841, the total value of the stock in Ireland in 1854, on holdings above one acre in extent, was £33,138,779, in 1853 it was £31,458,785; there has therefore been an increase of £1,679,994 in the value of stock on these holdings in 1854; there has been a decrease in the value of the stock belonging to persons whose holdings do not exceed one acre of land, of £16,341 in 1854. The following table, which affords satisfactory evidence of the steady improvement in the state of the country, shows the value of stock possessed by each class of landholders in 1853 and 1854, and the average value per holding in each of these years:—

The value of stock belonging to the different classes of landholders increased in the following degree, between 1853 and 1854, viz.:—

and those holding over 500 Acres, . . .		10 ¹ / ₁₀ "

On holdings not exceeding 1 Acre, the value of stock decreased 4¹/₁₀ per cent.

* Stock owners who do not hold land are included within this class.

The following table shows the increase in the quantity of stock between 1853 and 1854 reduced to a money value, according to the rates assumed in the Census of 1841, in order to afford facilities for comparison :—

PART III.—SCUTCHING MILLS.

The number of mills for scutching flax increased during the year 1854 by forty-four, notwithstanding the diminished area under flax. Whatever has been the cause of the increase, the circumstance shows that the proprietors had an expectation of work for their scutching mills in 1854, and were probably in some degree influenced in their erection by the additional area under flax in 1853, when compared with the extent returned for the previous year. The difference in the number of these mills between 1853 and 1854 is given below:—

PART IV.—WEEDS.

In connexion with agriculture, the great importance of preventing the growth of weeds renders the subject one to which it is hoped public attention may be called with much advantage. In order to give some statistical information on the point, a form was prepared in 1853, and the results of the observations of the Constabulary entered therein as regarded the extent to which weeds were permitted to grow on the farms in each townland, and also along the sides of public roads, highways, and canals. The degrees in which weeds prevailed in the townland were divided into four classes: the first class showed that the number of acres entered were kept generally free from weeds; in the second the removal of weeds was only partially attended to; in the third this useful labour was almost entirely omitted; and in the fourth it was wholly neglected. This inquiry was also made in 1854, I am therefore able to give a comparative statement of the prevalence of weeds in 1853 and in 1854. The proportion per cent. of the entire area of each of the four provinces assigned to each of the four classes above described, is shown in the following table for 1853 and 1854; as to both farms and road sides:—

It is much to be regretted that the results of the comparison between the two years, as given in the foregoing table, are so unsatisfactory.

The information collected on the "Weed Return" will be found at page 223 for each county and province;—in the following table the counties and provinces are arranged in the order in which they appear to have best attended to the removal of weeds from farms and road sides in 1853 and 1854, as shown by the proportions per cent. in the first and second classes:—

It appears from the returns received, that on farms the proportion in the first class, or that from which the weeds were removed, remains the same as in 1853; the second class has allowed 14 per cent. of its extent to fall into the third and fourth classes; whilst those of the third class have allowed 5 per cent. of that which was to a great extent neglected to fall into the fourth class, in which no attention of any kind is given to the removal of weeds. This last class has increased 19 per cent. in extent between 1853 and 1854. Thus the persons who occupy nearly one-third of the whole area of Ireland, according to these returns, would appear to have taken no steps whatever to prevent the growth of weeds on their farms. The sides of roads, railways, and canals, in 1854, appear to have become even worse than the farms in regard to the prevalence of weeds, for 6 per cent. of the first class, 9 per cent. of the second, and 8 per cent. of the third, have lapsed into the fourth class in 1854; thus this last class, which in 1853 was returned as 29 per cent., has become 52 per cent. in 1854, an increase of 23 per cent. in the latter year. The growth of thistles, docks, and rag weed, along the sides of public roads, railways, and canals, &c., which is permitted throughout the country, without almost any attempt to prevent it, is greatly to be regretted, as much injury and expense arise to farmers by the shedding of the seeds of these and other noxious weeds; and it would be advisable if landholders, for their own protection, were to call the attention of grand juries and county surveyors to the subject, in order that road contractors may be required to remove the weeds, as a part of their duty little inferior to the proper maintenance of the roadway itself.

In conclusion, I beg to observe that the success which has attended the collection of Agricultural Statistics in Ireland is most gratifying, and is in every way creditable to the good feeling and intelligence of the owners and occupiers of land in Ireland, who almost without an exception have voluntarily afforded the required information to the Constabulary, who act as enumerators, to whose exertions, and those of the Metropolitan Police, the country is much indebted for the valuable information in connexion with this subject published from year to year since 1847, when the plan of collecting the Returns was first organized by Colonel Larcom, R.E., under the auspices of the Earl of Clarendon—a plan by which it is scarcely possible that any portion of Ireland can be overlooked in the general enumeration of Tillage and Live Stock—as the area of each townland is made known to the enumerator by the Sub-Inspector of his district, who is supplied with copies of the Ordnance maps, on which are shown the exact area and position of every townland in the district; but should a casual error arise, and any portion of a townland be unaccounted for by the enumerator, the error must be discovered when compiling the Returns and classifying the Holdings in this Office,—where reference is also made to the Ordnance maps,—thus showing the value of a national survey in carrying on national inquiries.

I beg to take this opportunity of stating to your Excellency that I am greatly indebted to the magistracy, resident gentry, and clergy of all denominations, and to the farming classes generally throughout Ireland, for the friendly co-operation and assistance they have afforded to the enumerators in the discharge of their duties. To the public press I am also under many obligations for its valuable aid in removing prejudices, and making widely known the object of collecting Agricultural Statistics.

I have the honour to be, my Lord,

Your Excellency's very faithful Servant,

WILLIAM DONNELLY,

Registrar-General.

EDWARD SINGLETON,
Secretary.

Beans and Peas were included in the same column in the Returns up to the year 1851. The produce of Flax in 1847 was estimated at 48 stones per statute acre. There was not any return of produce for Cabbage in 1847, as the extent of land under that crop was entered under the head of "Other Green Crops."

The following is a copy of the Instructions for filling the Townland Returns from which the foregoing Abstracts have been compiled:—
 "When filling the above Return, those Townlands or portions of Townlands, in which the Farms are kept generally free from weeds, should be entered in the '1st Class.' Those in which this useful labour is only partially attended to in the '2nd Class.' Those in which it is to a great extent neglected, in the '3rd Class.' Those in which it may be said to be wholly neglected, in the '4th Class.' The area of the four classes taken together should be equal to the area of the townland. This classification is also to be observed in describing the state of the sides of Public Roads, Railways, and Canals, with regard to the growth of weeds; and the Enumerator should state in the column for Remarks, if their being permitted to shed their seed is regarded by the Farmers in the District as a nuisance, and also if any, and what measures are resorted to by road contractors or others for the purpose of destroying them."

The Returns from which the foregoing Table was compiled have been collected, as in former years, by the efficient aid of the Constabulary Metropolitan Police. Tables for 1855, classified by holdings, for each Barony and County, are now in course of preparation. The Returns for 1855 have not yet been received from portions of the following Constabulary Districts, viz.—Killarney, Tralee, and Coleraine. As to them, the extent of land under each description of crop for this year has been estimated from the Returns of 1854, and brought into the calculation the changes in the crops which are found to have occurred in the other districts of the Counties of Kerry, Kildare, and Londonderry.

The Returns from which the foregoing Table was compiled have been collected, as in former years, by the efficient aid of the Constabulary and Metropolitan Police. Tables for 1855, classified by holdings, for each Barony and County, are now in course of preparation.

The Returns for 1855 have not yet been received from a few small portions of the following Constabulary Districts, viz.—Tralace and Coleraine. As to them, the quantity of live stock for this year has been estimated from the Returns of 1854, taking into the calculation the changes in the live stock which are found to have occurred in the other districts of the Counties of Kerry and Londonderry.

T A B L E S

SHOWING

THE ESTIMATED AVERAGE PRODUCE FOR THE YEAR 1855.

TO HIS

EXCELLENCY GEORGE WILLIAM FREDERICK, EARL OF CARLISLE, K.G.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

On the 20th of last September I had the honour of submitting, for your Excellency's consideration, a general abstract showing the acreage under Crops in each County and Province of Ireland, in 1854 and 1855; and on the 2nd of the following month another abstract exhibiting the number of Live Stock by Counties and Provinces for the same years. I now beg to submit Returns containing the average produce, per statute acre, and the estimated total produce of each crop; also the acreage under the several crops in 1854 and 1855.

The average rates of produce for 1855 were procured, as in former years, through the medium of the Sub-Inspectors of Constabulary,—to whom printed forms were supplied for the purpose, accompanied by a Circular calling their special attention to the subject.*

The following is a copy of the memorandum printed on each form, explanatory of the method of filling the Return* :—

"The Government being desirous of ascertaining the quantity of food produced in Ireland during the present year, have directed returns to be collected, showing the extent of land under each description of crop. These Returns have now been received, but in addition to the information which they afford, it is most important to ascertain, as nearly as possible, the average rate of produce of each crop. To accomplish this object the annexed form has been prepared.* In this form each crop is divided into classes, and an assumed rate of produce is given to each class; thus, in the Wheat crop, the First Class is set down at "above 9 barrels;" the Second at "from 6 to 9;" the Third at "from 4 to 6;" the Fourth at "from 2 to 4;" and the Fifth "under 2 barrels" (of 20 stones) to each statute acre. In the First Class of each crop a space is left in which the person making the report will enter the highest rate of produce known in the District.

The next column should contain the probable produce of each class per statute (or English acre). Upon the first view it might appear from the mean (or middle quantity) of 6 and 9 being $7\frac{1}{2}$, that this would be the proper number to insert in this column as the probable produce of Wheat within the Second Class; but if the lower rates of produce, that is, 6 and 7 barrels to the acre, are of the greater extent within the District, the true average of the class will be below the common mean of 6 and 9; and the reverse of this may also occur if the greater extent of crop should range between 8 and 9 barrels; for these reasons the probable rate of produce in each class is left to be filled up by the Sub-Inspector as accurately as he can.

To facilitate the calculation, it is requested that the proportionate extent of each class may be given in tenths; and it is to be understood that these proportions, so far as this report of rates of produce is concerned, have no reference whatever to the number of acres of the crop, as the proportion may be the same whether there be 1,000 or 100,000 acres cultivated, only observing that the number of tenths in each crop, when added together, should make TEN.

It is also requested that the rates of produce may be given for STATUTE (OR ENGLISH) acres, which in some districts, where the Irish measure still prevails, may cause additional trouble; but as the produce of an Irish acre may be changed into the produce of a Statute (or English) acre, by multiplying the rate by 30 (accurately $30\frac{1}{4}$), and dividing the result by 49 , it is hoped, when a difficulty is experienced, it may be readily overcome."

These forms have been filled very satisfactorily by the Sub-Inspectors, who, from an intimate knowledge of their districts, and an acquaintance with the inhabitants, are well qualified to procure accurate information on this difficult subject. In order, however, to test the accuracy of their returns, I endeavoured to procure similar information from the several Boards of Guardians; and with that object the following circular was addressed to them soliciting their co-operation and assistance in this important matter:—

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS OFFICE, 5, HENRIETTA-STREET, DUBLIN,
27th October, 1855.

GENTLEMEN,—Having last year received in many cases the friendly assistance of the Guardians in ascertaining the rates of produce in the several Poor Law Unions, I am now most desirous to obtain their opinion, in order that the returns of produce for this year may be as accurate as possible.

I beg to say that circulars were issued by me in the month of July last, addressed to the magistracy, clergy of all denominations, and other influential persons, requesting them to aid the constabulary in procuring accurate returns of the extent of cultivation, and the quantity of live stock in Ireland. These returns have now been received, and from the general good feeling exhibited, and the almost universal readiness with which the required information has been given to the enumerators, I trust that public confidence in the accuracy of the returns will be increased.

Another step connected with the inquiries is now in progress, in order to ascertain, as nearly as possible, the average rates of produce in different Electoral Divisions; and on this subject I am anxious to obtain the assistance of the Guardians.

I beg to forward a supply of printed forms for the Guardians of your Union, and I shall feel much obliged if one of these forms is filled up and returned to me with the rates of produce for each Electoral Division.

A memorandum explanatory of the return is printed on the first page, and a form, filled up as an example, is given on the fourth; but should further information be required, I shall be most happy to afford every explanation in my power.

I also send tables which contain the acreage under each crop for the present year in every Electoral Division, as a knowledge of the extent of tillage may assist in arriving at the average rates of produce.

Communications addressed to this office need not be post-paid.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM DONNELLY,
Registrar-General.

*To the Chairman and Board of Guardians
of the Union.*

In addition to this circular the Poor Law Commissioners, at my request, were so good as to address the Boards of Guardians on the same subject, as follows:—

POOR LAW COMMISSION OFFICE, DUBLIN,
6th November, 1855.

GENTLEMEN,—The Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, desire to inform you that they understand that the Registrar-General is about to address the several Boards of Guardians in Ireland on the subject of the Agricultural Returns which, since the year 1847, have been collected under the direction of Her Majesty's Government; and to solicit the assistance of the various Boards of Guardians, especially with a view to ascertaining, as nearly as possible, the average rates of produce in different districts.

The Commissioners request that the Board of Guardians will be so good as to afford every assistance in their power to the Registrar-General, in procuring the information required.

By order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

To the Board of Guardians of each Union.

In 1854 similar circulars were issued to the Guardians, but I regret to say they were not so successful in obtaining assistance as I had hoped they would be,—the Guardians of only 335 Electoral Divisions having responded to them.

For the year 1855 there appears but little probability of greater success than in 1854, as up to this period the Returns of Rates of Produce have been received by me from only 178 Divisions out of 3,439.

This seeming indifference on the part of the Guardians, to fill up these forms, may be owing to the general confidence placed in the correctness of the Returns made by the Officers of Constabulary. I annex copies of letters which have reached me from two Boards of Guardians, stating this to be the cause why it was considered unnecessary, on the part of the members of these Boards, to give returns of the average produce within their unions; and from several parties conversant with the subject I have had communications to the same effect:—

Urlingford, 6th December, 1855.

SIR,—Your letter of the 1st December, instant, having been laid before the Board of Guardians of Urlingford Union, at their meeting, held on yesterday, the following reply was adopted by the Board, which I am directed to transmit to you:—

“In answer to the letter of the Registrar-General, as regards the Agricultural Statistics of the Union, the Guardians fully agree in the importance of the object he has in view, but regret that it is out of the power of the Board to procure the information sought. The Constabulary can procure this useful information; and only through that body can it be conveniently and effectively obtained."

I beg to say that I am merely the official medium of communicating the above reply to you.

And have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

LAWRENCE J. DEN, Clerk of the Union.

Wm. Donnelly, Esq., LL.D.,
Registrar-General.

No. 2.

Drogheda Union, December 31st, 1855.

SIR,—I beg respectfully to say that I am directed by our Chairman to state, that the information rendered by the Constabulary in this Union, relative to agricultural produce is, he considers, very correct; and would, he thinks, be the most correct to make out statistical returns of agricultural produce;—much more so than what could be made out by Guardians of Electoral Divisions, as they could not ascertain (for the want of time) the quantity so correctly.

I remain, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN FANNING, Clerk.

Wm. Donnelly, Esq., LL.D.,
Registrar-General.

It is satisfactory to find that the accuracy of the Returns of the Acreage under Flax in 1855—which I had the honour of submitting to your Excellency on the 1st of last September—is borne testimony to in the following extract from the Annual Report, just published, by that most useful Institution, the Royal Society for promoting the growth of Flax in Ireland:—

"As was fully anticipated, the returns of the area sown with flax showed a large falling off. In 1854, 151,403 acres had been sown; in 1855, only 97,192; being, in round numbers, a reduction of 35 per cent. But although the figures for 1855 appear very unsatisfactory when placed beside those for the three preceding years, during which flax cultivation made such a wonderfully rapid progress, we find that they are only 10 per cent. under the average of the eight years ended 1854; while, compared with the 53,863 acres of 1848, and the 60,314 of 1849, they are even very satisfactory. The crop of 1855 is a few thousand acres over that of 1850; so that we are, in fact, thrown back just five years by the untoward causes already detailed."

It has hitherto been usual to delay the publication of the Returns of Live Stock on Farms; of the Acreage under the various Crops; and of the Rates of Produce, until the whole should be ready for the press; but, having obtained your Excellency's approval, I have, for the year 1855, submitted each of these Returns as soon as they could be compiled; and have thus been enabled to meet the desire of the public for early information on these important subjects, and also to comply with the recommendation to that effect contained in the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Lords, during last Session of Parliament, upon the subject of obtaining accurate Agricultural Statistics from all parts of the United Kingdom.

I beg to say that the usual detailed statistical tables for 1855, showing the classification of Holdings in Ireland,—which exceed 590,000 in number,—are now in course of compilation; as are also those relating to Scutching Mills for Flax; and to other subjects connected with agriculture.

I take this opportunity of acquainting your Excellency that I am, as in former years, much indebted to the magistracy, resident gentry, and clergy of all denominations, and to the farming classes generally, for the assistance they have afforded to the enumerators in the discharge of their duties. To the public press I am also under many obligations for its valuable aid in removing prejudices, by making widely known the object of collecting agricultural statistics.

I have the honour to be

Your Excellency's

Very faithful servant,

WILLIAM DONNELLY,

Registrar-General.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS OFFICE,
5, HENRIETTA-STREET,
Dublin, 18th October, 1855.

SIR,

You will receive herewith blank copies of "Form C," referred to in the "General Instructions" addressed to the Enumerators the 20th of last June,—in order to enable you to make Returns of the Rates of Produce of the various Crops grown within your District.

From the friendly co-operation and assistance which has been afforded to the Enumerators by all Ranks and Classes in ascertaining the extent of each Crop cultivated in Ireland this year, I confidently trust that by making inquiries from the Resident Gentry, Clergy, and Farming Classes in your neighbourhood, you will be able to arrive at a valuable approximation to the TRUTH, respecting the average Rates of Produce; that being the object sought to be attained by means of this Return, to which accuracy, as far as possible, can alone give any real value.

Your most particular attention is at present requested to this subject, in consequence of the increasing importance and additional interest now attached to Agricultural Statistics; and I trust you will be enabled to forward the Returns for your District to this Office early in the month of November, in order that a General Abstract may be compiled and submitted for the consideration of His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

It is my intention to solicit the assistance of the Boards of Poor Law Guardians on this very difficult question,—as was done by me last year,—for the purpose of obtaining their opinions as to Rates of Produce in the several Electoral Divisions and Unions in Ireland. This information will form a valuable auxiliary to that obtained through the Officers of Constabulary.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

WILLIAM DONNELLY,
Registrar-General.

To

The Sub-Inspector of Constabulary

BARRACK MASTERS (IRELAND). ---

TREASURY MINUTES and other PAPERS, dated in the Years 1848 and 1849, relative to placing the Offices of PAYMASTERS of CONSTABULARY in Ireland on the Schedule of the Superannuation Act.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 11 February 1848.

READ a letter from the Inspector-general of the Constabulary in Ireland, dated 10th ultimo, referring to the Treasury Minute of 10 December last, placing the clerks, messengers, and other civil officers of the constabulary force upon the general superannuation fund, and requesting to be informed whether the paymasters of the said force, being also civil officers, ought not to be included under the Superannuation Act.

Inform the Inspector-general of the constabulary that the paymasters of constabulary were not included in the warrant for placing certain civil officers of the constabulary on the Schedule of the Superannuation Act, because they were specially excluded from the contributions and benefits of the constabulary superannuation fund by the 46th clause of the Constabulary Act; and that before my Lords decide upon including these officers in the provision of the Superannuation Act, they would wish to be furnished with some further information as to the length of their services, the amount of their respective salaries, and of their claims to half-pay on the ground of their previous military services; for which information my Lords will apply to the Receiver of the Constabulary.

Transmit a copy of this Minute to the Receiver of the Constabulary for his information, with reference to his letter of 5th ultimo, and desire that he will transmit to my Lords a list of the paymasters of the constabulary, showing the dates of their respective appointments, the amount of their present salaries, and of the salaries they have received since their first appointment; and the amount of the half-pay, pension, or other emoluments (if any) now or heretofore received by each from Government.

LETTER from the Receiver of Constabulary to Sir C. E. Trevelyan, K. C. B.

Sir,

Receiver's Office, 3 March 1848.

WITH reference to your letter of the 15th ultimo, I have now the honour to transmit, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, a list of the paymasters of constabulary, showing the dates of their respective appointments, the amount of their present salaries, and of the salaries they have received since their first appointment, and the amount of the half-pay, pension, or other emolument (if any) now or heretofore received by each from Government.

I have, &c.
(signed) A. B. Cane.

Dublin, 3 March 1848.

A. B. Cane, Receiver.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 15 August 1848.

WRITE to Mr. Redington, for the information of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and state that the application of the paymasters of the constabulary to be admitted to the benefits of the Superannuation Act having been submitted to my Lords by the Inspector-general, and the Receiver of that force having furnished my Lords with the statement of the services of each of the present paymasters, my Lords see no objection to admitting the paymasters to the benefits of the said Act, provided that those who have not served continuously in the department for a period commencing before August 1829, shall pay up the arrears of deductions from the dates of their respective appointments; in default of which their services for superannuation will date only from the day on which their current deductions are paid.

The only present paymasters who appear entitled to be exempted from the payment of the deductions are Mr. W. Galbraith and Mr. J. Taylor, who entered the constabulary service prior to August 1829. The others who were also in the public service prior to August 1829, have received gratuities or pensions in acquittance for such services, and are thereby debarred from further consideration of them.

Request that their Lordships' decision on these cases may be communicated to the Inspector-general and Receiver of Constabulary.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 29 December 1848.

READ a letter from the Receiver of the Constabulary in Ireland, dated 26 August last, requesting their Lordships' decision on several questions which have arisen in carrying into execution their Lordships' Minute of 15th August last, relative to the admission of the paymasters of the constabulary in Ireland to the benefit of the Superannuation Act.

Prepare a warrant for adding the offices of paymasters of the constabulary in Ireland to the Schedule of Offices annexed to the Act of 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

Transmit this warrant, when signed, to the Receiver of the Constabulary, and desire he will collect and account for the deductions which will from time to time become due from the several paymasters in consequence of their offices having been added to the Schedule of the Act, in conformity with the principles laid down in their Lordships' Minute of 15th August last, which was communicated to him by Mr. Redington.

And for his further guidance in the execution of this duty, transmit to him the following answers to the queries contained in his above-recited letter of 26th August last.

With reference to the cases of paymasters Galbraith and Taylor, who are exempt from the contribution, having served continuously in the constabulary from August 1829, acquaint him that the operation of the 46th and 49th clauses of the Act 6 Will. 4, c. 13, will not be altered in the cases of these officers, or the other paymasters, on their being placed on the schedule of the Superannuation Act.

The paymasters are excluded from contributing to the Constabulary Superannuation Fund by the 46th section, but they are not excluded from the Reward Fund by the 49th section; they will therefore continue as heretofore to contribute to the Reward Fund, and will be entitled to the benefits thereof; and Messrs. Galbraith and Taylor will continue to be exempt from the contribution to the Constabulary Superannuation Fund.

With reference to the cases of paymasters John Bews and Matthew O'Halloran, my Lords have to observe, that when the paymasters have been placed on the Schedule of the Superannuation Act by their Lordships' warrant, they will become liable to the deductions required by that Act, with the exceptions therein provided, such deductions to commence either when their continuous public services commenced, or from the date of the warrant placing them on the schedule, but in either case their service for superannuation will be reckoned from the commencement of the deduction.

Paymasters Bews and O'Halloran will therefore be entitled to receive their half-pay and pension, together with any superannuation allowance which may be allotted to them for their services in the constabulary, the period of such services being reckoned from the commencement of the deduction, whether such deduction shall be made from their first entry into the service, or from the date of the warrant, but not from any other date from which they may think proper to contribute.

Transmit copy of this Minute to the Commissioners of Audit for their information in the examination of the accounts of the receivers and paymasters of constabulary in Ireland.

Desire that the Receiver will transmit to my Lords a list, showing from what date each paymaster affected by these instructions will pay the deductions, and that whenever the case of a paymaster is recommended to this Board for superannuation, he will state the date from which his contributions to the Superannuation Fund have been actually paid.

Transmit a copy of this Minute to the Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland for his information.

LETTER from the Receiver of Constabulary to Sir C. E. Trevelyan, K. C. B.

Receiver's Office, 16 February 1849.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your letter of the 8th ultimo, stating the terms on which the paymasters of constabulary will be permitted to reckon service for superannuation, and I beg to enclose their replies to my circular on the subject, by which it appears they all decline contributing for superannuation under the Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

I have, &c.

(Replies).

Mayo and Roscommon.

Sir,

Westport, 1 January 1849.

IN reply to your circular of the 11th instant, I beg to state, that, under the peculiar circumstances of my case, I must decline the superannuation proposed under 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

On the perusal of Sir C. Trevelyan's communication to Mr. Redington, dated 18th August last, I felt satisfied that the superannuation intended for paymasters was to be the same as granted to other officers of the constabulary; but as it now appears to be otherwise, I respectfully submit a few observations to show, in the first place, that I should be a considerable loser by accepting what you term a favour, and in the next to explain my own position, and offer such remarks as I conceive calculated to prevail on the Lords of the Treasury to come to a more just and favourable decision.

Firstly. By section 16 of 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24, no superannuation shall in any case exceed on the whole (computing half-pay on such compensation) two-thirds of the salary of the office relinquished, after 45 years' service; that is to say,

Two-thirds of 200 l. - - - - -	133	6	8

Whereas I at present receive half-pay of 12 s. 6 d. per day for faithful service in the army, guaranteed to me by the Constabulary Acts, in addition to my present salary - - - - -	228	2	6 per annum, in addition to paying down 122*l.* 10*s.*, being 5 per cent. on my salary from 1st October 1836, and 10*l.* per annum in future.
---	-----	---	---

Consequently I should lose - - - - -	£. 94	15	10

Secondly. I was recommended by Lord Brougham to the Irish Government, when Lords Mulgrave and Morpeth were in office, for the appointment of stipendiary magistrate; but not being an Irishman, and it being the policy of that day to appoint no other, I was offered the situation of paymaster, which I accepted. Had I obtained the former office, I should have been entitled to superannuation under the Constabulary Acts; and it is hard that, from my being induced to accept an inferior appointment, I should be deprived of the benefit of superannuation under those Acts, and placed under one passed before the constabulary was in existence; and however applicable to young men entering the public service with the prospect of gradually increasing salaries, I humbly submit is not applicable to persons of mature age appointed at once to responsible situations, with a small fixed salary. In fact, in my case, I must arrive at the patriarchal age of 95 years before completing 45 years' service in the constabulary, consequently could not expect to reap the small benefit thereby provided, even if it did not subject me to the heavy loss of 94*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.* per annum; 122*l.* 10*s.* now, and 10*l.* per annum in future, as already shown.

Having a wife and large family to provide for, and no other means of doing so, I have been obliged to insure my life, and a considerable portion of my income is expended in premiums, leaving barely sufficient to maintain my station in life.

Since the first appointment of paymasters, one-half per cent. on their salaries has been deducted for the Reward Fund, and the only reason I could ever understand why they were not put on the same footing with other officers in regard to superannuation was, that the appointment might have been temporary; but now that it has continued so long, and likely to be permanent, I humbly hope that their Lordships will see the justice of at least granting them the superannuation allowed to other members of the force.

I would further observe, that paymasters of regiments, in consideration of their not receiving promotion, are specially provided for on more liberal terms than other officers, and paymasters of constabulary bear the same relation to counties that the former do to regiments; and I can from experience say, after more than 20 years' service on full-pay in the army, that my present duties, in regard to time and trouble, are three times as onerous as those of a regiment, particularly since 1st July 1843, when Roscommon was added to Mayo, to which I was originally appointed; and that, with regard to other officers of the constabulary, my appointment as paymaster is laborious in the same proportion, with the exception of county inspectors, whose duties only extend to one, while I perform those of two extensive counties.

For the above reasons I beg you will be pleased to submit to the favourable consideration of the Lords of the Treasury my humble prayer to be admitted to the benefit of superannuation, granted by 10 & 11 Vict. c. 100, s. 4, upon my paying the additional 2 per cent. from the date of my appointment, and contributing in the same proportion as other officers of the constabulary in future.

IN reply to your circular of the 11th instant (which I have been prevented by indisposition from doing sooner), I beg to state, that having held civil situations in his Majesty's service for between 17 and 18 years prior to my present appointment as a paymaster of constabulary, and conceiving that I am thereby entitled to exemption from paying up the arrears called for, I am about to memorial the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to grant me the exemption conceded to Messrs. Galbraith and Taylor.

REFERRING to circular, 11th December 1848, issued to the paymasters of the constabulary, I beg leave to state, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that I beg respectfully to decline to contribute to the Superannuation Fund under the Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

The Receiver of Constabulary.

Paymaster.

Sir,

Clonmel, 26 December 1848.

In reply to your circular of the 11th instant relative to the Treasury Minute granting to constabulary paymasters the optional right of superannuation according to the scale specified in the General Superannuation Act of 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24, I beg to say in reference to that Minute, dated 18th August, that I was induced to believe by the omission therein (as it would now appear) of the word "general," and the Act under which this supposed boon has been proposed for their adoption, that it was to the benefit of the constabulary superannuation fund they were to be entitled, on complying with the terms suggested, and which benefit alone I am aware paymasters did apply to be admitted to equally with all members of the same force as a matter of common justice to their body, subject as they are to all similar regulations and restrictions to the devotion of their whole time to the duties of their office; and considering it unreasonable, inexplicable, and without precedent in all corresponding situations in the metropolitan police (a force similar to theirs), the army and navy, that such an invidious exception should have been made in their particular case, and hoping that such an exception must have been an oversight in the framing of the Constabulary Act, under which they were appointed alike with the rest of the force, I know the paymasters did seek through the Inspector-general to have it rectified.

For my own part I should indeed be glad to be admitted to the benefit of superannuation on equal terms with the other members of the force to which I belong, paying up the arrear now due at 2 per cent. per annum from date of my appointment (1 October 1836); but I cannot understand on what principle I am recognised as part and parcel of the constabulary force as far as the pains and penalties go, of which I think I have more than a proportionate share, having in charge the largest numerical and financial district from first day of my appointment, the increase to which has been considerable from year to year to the present time, progressively rendering my responsibility of greater amount than has been incurred by any officer of the force; but without regard to which I happen to be excluded from any concomitant advantage of increase of salary or superannuation, at the same time having been obliged to subscribe $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. for more than 12 years to a fund for the reward of merit in all ranks, with the same anomalous exclusion from any probable hope of personal benefit from that fund. Therefore, as I cannot anticipate that the subsequent advantages derivable from this proposed boon (involving as it does the immediate sacrifice of 122*l.* 5*s.*, and a future reduction of 11*l.* annually from a salary already so disproportionate to the responsibility incurred), would at all improve my present position, I must with great respect decline altogether acceding thereto.

A. B. Cane, Esq., Receiver.

(signed) D. B. Franks,
Paymaster of the Tipperary Constabulary.

Sir,

Bray, 27 December 1848.

WITH reference to your circular of the 11th instant, relative to the contemplated superannuation of paymasters of constabulary, I beg to state that after the best consideration of the subject, I do not think it desirable to accept of the terms proposed by the Lords of the Treasury.

The Act of 10 & 11 Vict. c. 100, requires a deduction of but 2 per cent. from other constabulary officers, while the Act of 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24, under which the superannuation of paymasters is proposed, makes a deduction of 5 per cent. from salaries, requires a much longer period of service, and grants a lesser scale of remuneration.

As the salary attached to the office is not increased either by merit or length of service, I trust the Lords of the Treasury will in their justice take measures to place paymasters on the same footing, with respect to superannuation, as other constabulary officers.

A. B. Cane, Esq.

Receiver's Office, 2 February 1849.

I REQUEST an answer to my circular of the 11th of December last, relative to your contributing 5 per cent. on your salary to the general superannuation fund from date of appointment, or from the 8th ultimo, to entitle you to reckon service for superannuation from the period of subscribing, according to the scale in the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

IN reference to the stoppage of 5 per cent. on the salaries of paymasters, so as to entitle them to be placed on the superannuation list, I beg to say that I cannot consent to such a stoppage or payment. The boon which paymasters so justly seeked for, is already pointed out in the memorial of paymaster O'Halloran to Colonel M'Gregor, to which I beg to refer you.

I REQUEST an answer to my circular of the 11th of December last, relative to your contributing 5 per cent. on your salary to the general superannuation fund from date of appointment, or from the 8th ultimo, to entitle you to reckon service for superannuation from the period of subscribing, according to the scale in the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

Trim, 7 February 1849.

I BEG to state in reply to the Receiver's circular of the 11th December 1848, that it is not my wish to avail myself of the offer made to the paymasters by the Lords of the Treasury; the scale of superannuation allowance is by no means in proportion to the amount to be contributed from our salaries. We are all willing to contribute the same as other officers of the constabulary from the date of appointment, provided we be placed on the same footing as regards superannuation.

I BEG leave (in reply to your circular of the 11th instant) to say, that when I received the Treasury Minute of the 18th of August last, by which the Lords Commissioners were pleased to grant to paymasters the benefit of the Superannuation Fund, I considered that it applied to the Constabulary Act, and that the sum to be deducted from our pay and the retiring allowance was to be the same as all the officers of the force, and under that conviction I accepted the boon with thanks, and have every month since deducted $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. from my pay; but now, finding by your circular, that it is under the Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24, that the boon is offered, I beg leave respectfully to decline it, and must say, I think it a great hardship to exclude us from the benefit of the Constabulary Act, when we are virtually a part and parcel of the force, and I trust that ere long their Lordships will be pleased to place us on a footing with our brother officers.

Sir,

IN reply to your circular to paymasters, dated 11th instant, informing me that the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have been pleased to grant to paymasters the benefit of superannuation, according to the scale in Act 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24, on their contributing to the fund, under that Act, 5 per cent on their annual salary from the date of their appointment, or from such other date as they may wish to reckon their service for that purpose, and requesting my reply for the information of their Lordships, if I desire to take advantage of this favour, I beg to state, that I do not consider myself justified by my means in undertaking to pay the arrears of 5 per cent. on my salary from the date of my appointment; and I beg to be permitted respectfully to decline being brought for the future under the operation of the Act in question, as at my time of life, I could not hope to live long enough to derive any advantage from the same.

A. B. Cane, Esq.,
&c. &c. &c.

I have, &c.

Paymaster.

22 December 1848.

IN reply to the circular of the 11th inst., addressed to paymasters of constabulary, I have the honour to state that after some consideration I have decided on not becoming a contributor to the superannuation fund in question, as I find that the arrears of payment required from me (were I to reckon my claim on that fund from the date of my entry into the constabulary) would amount to at least three-fifths of my yearly salary.

A. B. Cane, Esq.,
Receiver.

(signed) J. B. Richardson,
Paymaster.

County of Longford.

Longford, 18 December 1848.

I BEG respectfully to decline the acceptance of the Superannuation Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 24.

I beg further to add, that, under an erroneous view of Mr. Trevelyan's letter of the 18th August last, I credited in my pay lists for month of June and quarter ending the 30th September the deduction off my salary of 2*l.* per cent. per annum. I trust the Receiver will be kind enough to inform me how this sum, amounting to 1*l.* 11*s.*, will be refunded me.

The Receiver of Constabulary.

Paymaster of Constabulary.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 16 March 1849.

INFORM the Receiver of the Constabulary in Ireland that my Lords have had under their consideration his letter of 16th ultimo, transmitting the replies of the several paymasters of constabulary to his circular, from which it appears that now they unanimously wish to be exempted from the abatement from their salaries required from officers benefiting from the Superannuation Act.

State that although their Lordships' warrant of 9th January last, placing the paymasters of constabulary on the Schedule of the Superannuation Act, was issued under an impression founded on an application from themselves, that all the present paymasters were desirous of participating in the benefits of that Act, my Lords, considering that the paymasters who were appointed before the warrant was issued, had no reason to suppose, when they were appointed, that they would be called upon to contribute, or would be entitled to a retired allowance, and it appearing that the present paymasters now unanimously object to the abatement being made, will not insist upon such abatement being made from their salaries, it being also understood that they will not be entitled on their retirement to any superannuation allowances on account of their civil services; but with respect to the paymasters who may be appointed after the date of the warrant, my Lords are of opinion that they should have no option in the matter, but that the abatement should be made from their salaries, and that they should be entitled to the benefits of the Act.

Transmit a copy of this Minute to the Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland for his information and guidance.

TREASURY MINUTES and other PAPERS, dated in the Years 1850 and 1851, relative to granting Compensation Allowances to the PAYMASTERS of CONSTABULARY in Ireland on the Abolition of their Offices.

LETTER from Sir T. N. Redington to Sir C. E. Trevelyan, K.C.B.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 21 May 1850.

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to transmit for the consideration of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury the accompanying copies of a Minute of the Inspector-general of Constabulary, of my queries thereupon, and of his reply; and I am to state that his Excellency has considered this proposal of the Inspector-general, and on the whole is of opinion that the paymasterships of constabulary should be abolished.

The Lord Lieutenant does not however agree that any reservation should be made in favour of the office of paymaster of the depôt; should their Lordships, however, be of a different opinion, his Excellency thinks that the most efficient of the existing paymasters should be transferred to the depôt.

As regards the proposed establishment for the Receiver's department, the Lord Lieutenant has no reason to suppose that it exceeds what the service will require. His Excellency concurs with the Inspector-general that, if possible, an arrangement should be made that such two of the paymasters as are fit for the duty should be offered the clerkships of the office of the Receiver, viz., those of first and second clerk; while the officer styled by the Inspector-general "deputy receiver" should be styled "principal clerk."

The principal clerk should be authorised to act in the absence of the Receiver, in the same way as that officer does in the Paymaster of Civil Services Office during the absence of Mr. Kennedy.

Considering the long service of some of the paymasters, and that all of them, on their appointment, had been obliged to take up their residences in counties distant from their homes, and that possibly, not contemplating the abolition of their office, they may have made arrangements which will be seriously interfered with by the reduction, the Lord Lieutenant considers it only reasonable that they should receive one-half of their present pay, or one hundred pounds a year.

The abolition of the paymastership, in fact, only destroys the link which at present connects the Receiver with the Sub-inspector, who, in fact, disburses the pay and allowances to the force. But the change would render it proper that the Sub-inspector should give security. This would appear to have been but proper under the existing system, and it is to be regretted that it had not been previously required.

Some objections may now naturally be made to giving security by Sub-inspectors in the force, but it will be seen that the Inspector-general does not anticipate any great objection.

Under all circumstances security should be required henceforward from all cadets on their appointment as Sub-inspectors.

His Excellency requests their Lordships' early consideration of this matter.

(signed) T. N. Redington.

SUBMITTED.

1. Looking to the inefficiency of several of the paymasters of constabulary, and to the occasional defalcation of others, I have come to the conclusion that by an enlargement of the Receiver's office, the finance service of the force would be promoted, and a saving effected to the public, by the abolition of these officers altogether.

2. There are 18 paymasters attached to the establishment, some of whom have the charge of two, and even three counties, in one of which only they can of course reside.

Their duty is discharged in the following manner:

3. At the close of each month, the sub-inspectors forward their estimates, through their county inspector, who examines and checks them, to the paymaster; master; upon these, the paymaster founds his general estimate, which he sends to the Receiver, who receives at the same time from the county inspector a return of the county force.

4. Previous to the 6th of the month, the Receiver remits to the paymaster the whole amount of his estimate, by separate post bills, comprising the sum due to each district; these bills are forwarded by the paymaster to each sub-inspector, who immediately pays his men. Each sub-inspector afterwards renders to the paymaster his monthly account, with the necessary vouchers, which he retains, and once a quarter the paymaster furnishes his account, through the county inspectors, to the auditors.

5. Every month the Inspector-general gives to the Receiver a general statement of the force, with the rates of pay of each class.

Such is the present system, by a modification of which I think the proposed plan might be carried out.

6. The Receiver should be enjoined to make his remittances direct to the sub-inspectors on their estimates, which ought to be carefully examined by the county inspector; and the sub-inspectors should render their accounts monthly, as at present, to the Receiver.

7. This arrangement would concentrate the finance department in Dublin, would materially lessen the correspondence, and simplify the financial duties, and would diminish the twofold risk of loss to the public, arising from the intervention of the paymasters.

8. But under any circumstances I have been long of opinion that a limited security should be demanded from every sub-inspector, who can scarcely be considered as a suitable officer of constabulary, if he should fail in procuring so slender a guarantee for his integrity.

9. But considering the complicated duties of the paymaster of the dépôt and reserve, it seems questionable whether that officer's services could be dispensed with.

10. I will now state the expense under the present and the probable expense under the system suggested.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL.

1. Does any difficulty appear to present itself in requiring existing sub-inspectors to give security?

2. To what amount should that security be given?

3. Is the office of deputy receiver really necessary?

4. Can the office of depôt paymaster be dispensed with, and the duty performed by one of the sub-inspectors, with a small addition of pay?

5. How many of the existing paymasters could be employed as clerks in the receiver's office? And

6. What would be the probable gross amount of retirement if such an arrangement were made?

7. Should the retirement be according to length of service?

T. N. R. 5/5/50.

I will answer the foregoing queries seriatim.

1 & 2. Certainly some difficulty might occur by rendering the security compulsory on the existing sub-inspectors; yet, from the small amount necessary, say 100*l.* personal, and two sureties for 50*l.* or 60*l.* each, I do not think that any objection would be raised.

3. I apprehend that, with the increased labour and responsibility proposed to be laid on the receiver, some such confidential person would be necessary, in the event of the receiver's absence, or serious illness, who might be called upon to give ample security to the Government.

4. The duties of the depôt paymaster are very onerous and complicated, and demand the whole time and attention of the officer discharging them; were a sub-inspector named for this purpose, he must be supernumerary to the establishment; and if he were granted an increase of salary, there would be no saving from such a measure, while the public would be burdened with the retiring pension of an additional paymaster.

5. I should think that two at least of the present paymasters might be advantageously employed in the receiver's office. A third paymastership will be vacant on the removal of Mr. Pooley. A fourth paymaster is at present making arrangements to retire, and two others, very old men, would, I am persuaded, be very glad to withdraw from the service, were they assured of a reasonable pension. These, together with the officer to be appointed to the depôt, would leave eleven paymasters whose sentiments in regard to retirement I am unacquainted with.

6 & 7. The whole amount of retiring allowance that could be claimed by the 18 paymasters, would not exceed, according to the strict letter of the law, 300*l.* per annum.

For, as that class of officer comes, not under the Constabulary, but the General Superannuation Act, which allows no pensions for shorter service than 10 years, and only one-fourth of the salary for service between 10 and 15 years, and only six of the paymasters having held their situations over 10, and none so long as 15 years, those six would only be entitled to a pension of 50*l.* each.

But under the peculiar circumstances supposed, I venture to hope that his Excellency, and the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, would consider the case of all the displaced paymasters as worthy of very special consideration.

6 May 1850.

LETTER from the Right Honourable Sir W. M. Somerville, Bart., to Sir C. E. Trevelyan.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 21 August 1850.

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to acquaint you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in reference to your letter of the 29th July last, transmitting their Lordships' Minute relative to constabulary paymasters, that his Excellency, having communicated with the Inspector-general, has received from him a communication, a copy of which is herewith sent.

The Lord Lieutenant, in conformity with the suggestion of Sir Duncan M'Gregor, will be prepared to nominate Mr. Richardson paymaster of the constabulary depôt, and considers that Messrs. Moffett and R. J. O'Brien should be appointed to the senior clerkships in the new establishment of the receiver's office.

With reference to the appointment of the chief clerk and the four junior clerks, his Excellency requests the attention of their Lordships to the memorandum of Sir D. M'Gregor, and the letters of the receiver and Mr. Crawford accompanying it.

The Lord Lieutenant thinks that on this occasion regard should be had to the claims of persons hitherto employed by the receiver in conducting public business; but his Excellency is not prepared to recommend that the appointment of the clerkships should in future be left to the receiver, although, as regards the chief clerkships, he is of opinion that the recommendation of that officer should be considered in making the appointment.

With reference, however, to the whole of the proposed appointments, the Lord Lieutenant has received the accompanying letter of the receiver, with the observations of Sir D. M'Gregor thereupon, which he forwards for their Lordships' consideration.

A suggestion has also been made by the Inspector-general that Mr. Kirby, of the War Office, who is intimately acquainted with constabulary accounts, should be directed to inquire into and report upon the best mode of carrying out the new plan for paying the constabulary in detail. The Lord Lieutenant concurs in this view, and requests that it may receive their Lordships' early attention.

Herewith is also forwarded particulars of the respective services of the paymasters whose employment will not be continued under the new system of payment; and the Lord Lieutenant takes this opportunity of referring to the recommendation contained in the letter to their Lordships of the 21st of May with regard to the retirement which should be allowed to these officers. His Excellency trusts that a liberal allowance may be made to them, considering the inconvenience and loss which will necessarily be sustained by them in being deprived of an office, for the performance of the duties attendant on which they have abandoned other occupations.

I am, &c.

(signed) W. M. Somerville.

REFERRING to the Under Secretary's letter of the 2d instant, covering a Minute of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the 26th ultimo, I have the honour herewith to forward a return of the ages and services of the paymasters of constabulary; and having carefully weighed the claims and qualifications of those gentlemen, I feel it my duty to suggest, that Mr. Richardson be appointed paymaster to the depôt, and Messrs. Moffett and R. J. O'Brien the two clerks to be placed in the receiver's office.

All the three have been paymasters in the force ever since the first institution of that office in 1836.

Mr. Richardson, who is a highly honourable, steady officer, and is ready to offer security to any required amount, has invariably shown the greatest zeal for the service; and on a former occasion, when I wished to relieve the depôt paymaster of the financial charge of the county of Dublin, Mr. Richardson, without any promise or prospect of advantage, cheerfully undertook the business of Dublin, in addition to that of the other two counties already intrusted to him. Messrs. Moffat and O'Brien are also gentlemen of much experience, and have been distinguished for the satisfactory manner in which they have rendered their accounts.

The only possible objection to which Mr. O'Brien is exposed is his age, although he is still a strong healthy man. With reference to the annexed letter from the receiver, in regard to the persons in his office proposed to be attached to the new establishment, I may observe, that though I am personally ignorant of the characters of his junior clerks, yet from the confidence I have in Mr. Cane's recommendations, I am persuaded the gentlemen in question will do no discredit to them.

But with respect to Mr. Crawford, who is aspiring to the situation of first clerk, I have heard from various quarters that he is, from his experience of constabulary business, as well as from his good sense and undoubted respectability, fully qualified for the appointment referred to; and considering the importance to the receiver of having at the head of his clerks a person in whose integrity and discretion he can place the utmost reliance, I would venture to hope that Mr. Cane's wishes upon this point will be acceded to.

The annexed letter from Mr. Crawford's father I also beg to submit for favourable consideration.

With this gentleman's great merits I am intimately acquainted, having been in almost daily official intercourse with him for the last twelve years.

Immediately under the receiver Mr. Crawford has conducted the business of that office ever since its formation, and has occasionally discharged the responsibility of the receiver during the sickness or absence of that officer; and I must in justice admit, that I have never met with a more correct, sensible, and indefatigable man of business.

His thorough knowledge of accounts, and his remarkable anxiety for the public interests, must have proved of essential service to the department with which he has been so long connected. Mr. Crawford's advanced age, however, would disqualify him, I fear, for the task of first clerk to the receiver; but though he has not been nominally in the service of the Government, yet it is possible it may be in the power of their Lordships to reward this meritorious virtual servant of the public on his retirement.

D. M'Gregor,
Inspector-general.

EXTRACT from a LETTER from Sir T. N. Redington to Sir C. E. Trevelyan, K.C.B., dated 2 December 1850.

HIS Excellency is desirous of taking this opportunity of repeating the suggestion contained in my letter of the 21st May last, relative to the retired allowances to be given to the paymasters.

It appears to the Lord Lieutenant that although the abolition of these offices is considered desirable, yet a fair annual allowance should be allowed to the present holders thereof, and his Excellency trusts that their Lordships will favourably consider their claims in that respect.

LETTER from Sir T. N. Redington to George Cornwall Lewis, Esq.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 28 January 1851.

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to forward, for the consideration of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, the enclosed memorial of the paymasters of constabulary, with copies of the observations of Messrs. Richardson and Gallagher, and of the Minute of Sir Duncan M'Gregor; and I am at the same time to request that the attention of their Lordships may be drawn to the observations contained in my letters of the 21st May and 21st August last, relative to the compensation to these gentlemen, whose offices are about to be abolished.

HIS Excellency is desirous to impress upon their Lordships the claims which the paymasters have for a liberal consideration of their case, and he trusts that, while a proper economy of the public finances calls for the abolition of the paymasterships, yet their Lordships will be of opinion that the present occupants of those offices, who have discharged their duty with diligence and fidelity, are entitled to receive an adequate retirement. These gentlemen are seventeen in number; number; but as it is proposed to provide clerkships for two of the senior paymasters, there remain only fifteen whose compensation need be considered.

There are ten paymasters who have held their appointments since the constitution of the office in 1836; but as Messrs. Moffett and O'Brien, who have been recommended for clerkships, belong to this class, there remain only eight senior paymasters, whose appointments bear date 1st October 1836.

Two of these gentlemen, Messrs. Taylor and Galbraith, served in the constabulary for many years before their appointment as paymasters, and had reached the grade of county inspectors. Considering their great length of service, the Lord Lieutenant is of opinion that these gentlemen should receive a retirement of one hundred and seventy-five pounds per annum each.

The remaining six senior paymasters, his Excellency would propose, should receive one hundred and fifty pounds per annum each.

To Mr. P. Coleman, who is next in seniority to these gentlemen, and whose appointment bears date August 1841, his Excellency would propose that a retirement of One hundred and twenty pounds per annum should be granted.

There remain six paymasters, whose period of service will, at the abolition of the office in April next, vary from six to two years.

The Lord Lieutenant does not propose to make any distinction between these parties; they naturally considered their appointments as being permanent, and, as stated in the letters above referred to, they have, all of them, on their appointment, been obliged to take up their residence in counties distant from their homes, and great inconvenience and loss will necessarily be sustained by them, in being deprived of an office, for the performance of the duties attendant on which they have abandoned other occupations. The Lord Lieutenant proposes therefore that each of these gentlemen should receive one hundred pounds per annum.

The present amount of these retirements will in the whole be one thousand nine hundred and seventy pounds, which, considering the great permanent saving the abolition will effect, his Excellency considers may properly be sanctioned.

The accompanying Schedule exhibits the proposed arrangement.

I am, &c.

To his Excellency the Earl of Clarendon, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland.

The Memorial of the undersigned Paymasters of Constabulary

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your memorialists have heard with alarm and surprise that it is the intention of Her Majesty's Government to abolish the office of paymaster of constabulary in Ireland.

That when your memorialists accepted their appointments, they did so under the apparently well-founded impression that each appointment was a permanent one, so long as its arduous and highly responsible duties were faithfully discharged; and it seemed to your memorialists a sufficient guarantee of the permanency of their appointments, that the paymasters of constabulary were nominated under the provisions of a special Act of Parliament.

That, in consequence of such impression, many of your memorialists, on their acceptance of the office, abandoned various occupations and sources of emolument, which they cannot now resume; and others of your memorialists effected insurances on their lives, for the benefit of their families, which they will be unable to continue unless they shall receive an adequate compensation.

That without presuming to express any opinion as to the expediency of the proposed measure, your memorialists must, in justice to themselves, respectfully submit to your Excellency, that theirs is a case of abolition of office, not of superannuation, and that if they are to be reduced, not at their own request, or in consequence of incapacity or unfitness, but because it is assumed that by a new arrangement for the payment of the Irish constabulary the expenses of that force to the public Treasury may, in a small degree, be diminished, your memorialists, due regard being had to the equities of their case, ought not to be dismissed from their present appointments, without the equivalent of a full and ample compensation.

That in nearly every case in which public offices have been so abolished, more especially in the cases of offices connected with corporations and the courts of justice, compensation, in the shape of a liberal retiring allowance, has been awarded to all parties whose office was either of right, or of usage or custom, an office for life. And your memorialists would here respectfully point to the precedent of 1826, when, upon the consolidation of certain boards and offices, a very liberal scale of compensation was granted, under a Minute of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, to the parties whose offices were so abolished.

And your memorialists most respectfully submit that the same principles of compensation ought to be applied to the offices they hold.

In conclusion, your memorialists, confiding in the strict justice and propriety of their claim, most respectfully request (in case it is decided to abolish the paymasterships of constabulary) that your Excellency will be pleased to transmit their memorial to the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, accompanied by such a recommendation as its merits may seem to your Excellency to deserve. Your memorialists, feeling assured that their Lordships can have no desire that a supposed economical arrangement on the part of Her Majesty's Treasury should be followed by consequences so injurious to a meritorious class of public officers, as it would be if, from no fault or misconduct of their own, they find themselves suddenly deprived of their appointments, without the previous provision of a commensurate compensation.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 3 February 1851.

WRITE to Sir Thomas Redington, for the information of the Lord Lieutenant, that before my Lords can decide upon the cases of those officers, it will be requisite that they should be furnished with a report, showing the age, services, conduct, pay and emoluments of each paymaster.

LETTER from Sir T. N. Redington to George Cornwall Lewis, Esq.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 20 February 1851.

WITH reference to your letter of the 15th instant, I am directed by the Lord Lieutenant to transmit, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, a report prepared in accordance with their Lordships' desire, showing the age, services, conduct, pay, and emoluments of the paymasters of constabulary, whose services are about to be dispensed with.

I am, &c.

(signed) T. N. Redington.

2 February 1851.

D. M'Gregor,
Inspector-general.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 15 August 1851.

My Lords read the Act of the last Session of Parliament, c. 85, intituled, " An Act further to amend an Act of the sixth year of King William the Fourth, to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the Constabulary Force in Ireland," wherein it is enacted, that the offices of paymaster, storekeeper, and clerk established under the recited Act of 6 Will. 4, shall be discontinued, and shall be deemed to have been from the 1st day of April last discontinued accordingly; and that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Treasury to grant such superannuation allowances or gratuities as they may think proper to the paymasters, &c., so discontinued, not exceeding the amounts which would or might be authorised under the provisions of the Act of 4 Will. 4, c. 24, such superannuation allowances and gratuities to be charged on the Constabulary Superannuation Fund.

Read a letter from Sir T. Redington, dated 20th February last, transmitting, by direction of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, a report prepared in accordance with their Lordships' desire, showing the age, services, conduct, pay, and emoluments of the paymasters of constabulary, whose services were then about to be dispensed with.

My Lords having maturely considered all the circumstances stated in the above report, are pleased to award to the under-named persons, late paymasters masters of constabulary in Ireland, the annual allowances set against their names respectively; viz.

To D. W. Bissett	-	-	-	-	£. 120	-	-	per annum.
William Brett	-	-	-	-	42	-	-	„
Peter Coleman	-	-	-	-	36	-	-	„
William Galbraith	-	-	-	-	123	-	-	„
David Graham	-	-	-	-	42	-	-	„
Aaron Moffett	-	-	-	-	42	-	-	„
R. J. O'Brien	-	-	-	-	42	-	-	„
Matthew O'Halloran	-	-	-	-	120	-	-	„
J. B. Richardson	-	-	-	-	42	-	-	„
James Taylor	-	-	-	-	112	-	-	„

And to grant the following gratuities to the persons under-named in consideration of their services as paymasters of constabulary; viz.

To James Coleman	-	-	-	-	-	-	£. 51	7	9
Gibbon Fitzgibbon	-	-	-	-	-	-	104	3	4
James Gallagher	-	-	-	-	-	-	63	7	7
Burrows Kelly	-	-	-	-	-	-	34	14	5
Bryan O'Loughlen	-	-	-	-	-	-	77	15	7

Transmit a copy of this Minute to the Receiver of the constabulary in Ireland, for his information, and desire that he will pay immediately the gratuities granted therein to the parties to whom they are payable, out of any money standing to the credit of the account of the Constabulary Superannuation Fund; and that he will pay immediately from the same fund the sums due on the annual allowances granted therein, from the 31st May last, when the salaries of the said paymasters ceased, to the 1st July last; and will pay the allowances from henceforth quarterly, as they become due. In case the sum placed to the credit of the Receiver on account of the Constabulary Superannuation Fund should not be sufficient to make these immediate payments in the present quarter, he will transmit to my Lords a supplementary estimate of the sum required for that purpose, when my Lords will direct the deficiency to be issued to him from the Consolidated Fund, under the authority of the 7th section of the Act 10 & 11 Vict. c. 100.

Transmit a copy of this Minute to Sir T. Redington, for the information of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

“Of the greatest Extent of SOLITARY CONFINEMENT without Intermission, inflicted during such Period, and whether with or without Irons or Handcuffs, and how often (if any) with:”

“Of the longest Period to which, and how often, any individual CONVICT has been during that Year kept in SOLITARY CONFINEMENT, without ‘Twenty-four Hours’ Intermission:”

“And, of the Amount of COVERING or BEDDING given to CONVICTS during Solitary Confinement in such Establishments.”

(Mr. Bland.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
1 April 1856.

RETURN of the NUMBER of CONVICTS in each CONVICT PRISON in Ireland on the 1st January 1856, and in Hospital, respectively, distinguishing Male from Female.

	Name of Prison.	No. in Prison.	No. in Hospital.

	Cork - - - -	1 month	- -	Once.

RETURN of the Amount of COVERING or BEDDING given to CONVICTS during Solitary Confinement in such Establishment.

PRISONERS undergoing close confinement receive the usual covering and bedding prescribed by the old prison rules, viz., a rug and a blanket during the winter months, and a rug in summer, subject, of course, to the opinion of the medical officer, who visits the prisoners under punishment daily.

In consequence of its being absolutely necessary to obtain the removal of several officers of the prisons before the introduction of the new system of convict discipline, it was impossible to carry it out in some of the prisons until September, before which period the records are imperfect; it is believed, however, that the maximum extent of punishments has in all cases been given.

(signed) Walter Crofton,
Chairman of Directors.

COURT OF CHANCERY (IRELAND).

RETURN to an Order of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 5 February 1856;—for,

A COPY “of the COMMUNICATION addressed to the late Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Goulburn, by Lord St. Leonards, in or about the Month of December 1844, relating to the FINANCES of the COURT of CHANCERY in Ireland.”

Treasury Chambers, }

JAMES WILSON.

In or about December 1844.

MINUTE of the CHANCELLOR, for the consideration of the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER.

I HAVE been occupied for some time in ascertaining the state of the public account with the Suitors' Fund and Suitors' Fee Fund of the Court of Chancery, and the amount of fees and duties imposed by or under the authority of Parliament, and other matters connected with the finance of the Court; and I now propose to state the result, as concisely as I can, and the measures which I propose for the liquidation of the debt to the Consolidated Fund, and the ease of the suitors, for the consideration of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. I consider this subject one of great importance in the administration of justice in Ireland.

1. It is now upwards of 20 years since the first improvements in the Court of Chancery in Ireland were made. Tables of fees were established on a moderate scale for the different officers, particularly in the Registrar's Office. This was effected by the 4 Geo. 4, c. 61, by which certain charges were thrown upon the Consolidated Fund. The Masters' fees were abolished, and the Masters' salaries were directed to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund. By an Act of the same Session (4 Geo. 4, c. 78), after referring to the provisions made for the Masters, and also the like provision made by another Act for the Court of Exchequer, and that it was reasonable, in order to meet the said charges, that certain duties on stamps should be imposed on proceedings in the offices of the Masters and of the Chief Remembrancer, certain duties were imposed, and the stamps were to be distinguished as “Chancery Fund” and “Exchequer Fund.” I may observe, that as to the principal Exchequer duties, to the amount of about 3,000 l. a year, they were, upon the appointment of a second Remembrancer, converted from stamp duties once more into fees, by the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 55, although the Chancery fees were still left as stamp duties under the statute. It should be borne in mind that these duties were the fees in the Masters' offices converted by the statute into stamp duties, and were made a fund to reimburse to the Consolidated Fund the salaries, &c. of the Masters.

The 4 Geo. 4, c. 61, which imposed the fees on the suitors for the officers, authorised the Lord Chancellor to diminish or increase them from time to time, or to add new ones; but although they have never been diminished, they have been greatly increased.

The 4 and 5 Will. 4, c. 78 (1834), gave certain compensations, and created “The Compensation and Fee Fund of the Suitors of the Court of Chancery,” out of which they were to be paid. This fund consisted of 200,000 l., part of the unproductive cash in the Bank belonging to the suitors, which was invested in Government Stock.

In 1836 a new Court of Bankruptcy was established, consisting of a Commissioner at 1,500 l. a year, and a Registrar at 300 l. a year. Compensations were provided for the old Commissioners of Bankrupts, and certain fees were established, which were to form "The Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund Accounts." The compensations and salaries were to be paid out of this fund. If there should be an excess, the Lord Chancellor was authorised to diminish the fees, and in case of a deficiency, it was to be made good out of the fund called the "The Suitors' Fee Fund," and such sums were to be repaid out of the Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund whenever there should be a surplus. This is the substance, as far as relates to this subject, of the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 14.
78. A were

Now at this period (20 May 1836) there was not any such fund in existence in the Court of Chancery as "The Suitors' Fee Fund," nor indeed does the Act define to what suitors the fund belonged. But assuming it to mean what is not expressed, the funds of the suitors in Chancery, they were not the proper funds to bear the charge. In England no such charge was cast upon the suitors of the Court of Chancery for the support of the Court of Review in Bankruptcy. However, it was considered that the advance would only be a temporary one, and that the new court would defray its own expenses. The amount of the fees in Chancery at that time did not justify any such charge, and this charge actually rendered it necessary to greatly increase the fees to the suitors in Chancery.

In the same Session (6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 74, 13 August 1836) many of the offices in the Court of Chancery were abolished, and new offices created. Compensations were provided for the old officers and fixed salaries for the new officers, and the surplus of fees was to form "The Suitors' Fee Fund Account," and thus that fund was created. It was provided that when that fund and the expectant fees should be more than sufficient to pay the salaries and other payments charged thereon, and to repay such sum as might have been advanced out of the Consolidated Fund in aid thereof (which is the only direction in the Act for repayment of such advances), the Lord Chancellor may abolish or reduce any of the fees. Compensations are then provided to be paid, in the first place, out of the Compensation and Fee Fund of the suitors of the court; in the next place, out of the Suitors' Fee Fund; and lastly, out of the Consolidated Fund. Finally, so much of 4 Geo. 4, c. 61, as was inconsistent with the new Act is repealed.

In January 1837, Lord Plunket, by an order reciting that the fees in the Registrar's Office were inadequate to pay the expenses of the office, under the authority of 4 Geo. 4, c. 61, greatly increased the fees payable to the Registrar's Office under that Act, and those increased fees have ever since been payable.

I entertain grave doubts whether the Lord Chancellor had power thus to increase the fees. The 4 Geo. 4, c. 61, gave the fees to the officers, and enabled the Lord Chancellor to diminish or increase them. But the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 78, made the surplus of the fees a public fund, and it directed how the compensations should be paid, first, out of the Compensation and Fee Fund; second, out of the Fee Fund; third, out of the Consolidated Fund, which was to be repaid out of the second fund; and it authorised the fees to be diminished when the charges should be lessened; and it repealed so much of the 4 Geo. 4, c. 61, as was contrary to its provisions. It appears to me, therefore, that the Lord Chancellor had no longer power to increase the fund so as to charge the suitors of the passing day in aid of the Consolidated Fund; the Act had made full provision for payment of all the charges.

I must now again refer to the New Court of Bankruptcy. In 1837 a second Commissioner and Assistant Registrar were appointed. The Act authorising these appointments (1 Vict. c. 48, 12 July 1837) recited the appointment of the first Commissioner, and that his salary was directed to be paid out of "The Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund," and that the business of the Court could not be performed by one Commissioner. The Act directs that the second Commissioner shall be paid out of the Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund 1,500*l.* a year, at the same time and in like manner as the salary provided by the former Act for the first Commissioner; and the fee of 3*l.* for every sitting, imposed by the first Act, is increased to 4*l.*; and the Assistant Registrar is to be paid out of the Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund. In no part of the Act is there any reference to any fund belonging to the the suitors of the Court of Chancery. But not only the salaries of the first Commissioner and Registrar, but also the salaries of the second Commissioner and Registrar, have ever since been treated as charges upon the Suitors' Fee Fund, in aid of the Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund. It does not appear to me that these additional salaries were made charges on the Suitors' Fee Fund. No such charge ought to be created by implication. If the fund is to be charged for public objects, it ought to be by express words, so that the suitors of the Court may be aware of the disposition of the funds, and that the officers may know how to act. I do not, however, think that there is any charge by implication. The increased business requiring a second Commissioner, promised an increased revenue from the Court itself, and the additional fee of 1*l.* upon every sitting was manifestly intended to supply any deficiency. It could hardly have been intended to charge this fund with the additional salaries, when but a few months previously the Lord Chancellor had found it necessary greatly to increase the fees of the suitors of his Court, in order to meet their own expenses. I find that the words "in like manner" were relied upon as creating the charge, but the direction is, not that the additional salaries should be paid in like manner as the original ones, but that they shall be paid out of the Bankrupt and Compensation Fund, at the same times and in like manner as the original salaries.

2. I shall now state the operation of the foregoing measures upon the interests of the suitors.

First, As to the Suitors' Fee Fund :

This fund has paid in the whole for the Bankruptcy Court, in round numbers, about 20,000 l. This may not be quite correct, as I have not been able to procure a return for a short early period of the receipts, but I have allowed a full average. The receipts have never been sufficient to pay a shilling towards the salaries of the second Commissioner and Assistant Registrar, which have been wholly defrayed out of the Suitors' Fee Fund, and which payments amount to 12,600 l., and this sum has been paid out of that fund without any authority, if my construction of the 1 Vict. c. 48, be correct. The Bankruptcy Court this year has produced only 2,010 l. against 5,115 l., the amount of its expenses; so that the suitors of the Court of Chancery have this year paid 3,105 l. for the support of the former Court. I think that the Suitors' Fee Fund should have credit for this sum of 12,600 l., and that no further payments should be made out of it to the second Commissioner or Assistant Registrar. It does not appear to me that there is, at present, any fund provided for the payment of these salaries.

I think that the fees imposed by the Order of January 1837 are much too high, and should be diminished; and if they were duly created, it appears to me clear that I have power to reduce them to the amount fixed by the Legislature in 1823, and which power I have thought it right to exercise. This will give to the suitor the benefit which was provided for him by the Legislature twenty-one years ago, but of which he has been deprived during the last seven years.

The fee funds of the Court are now highly productive, and the charges upon them must gradually diminish, and by large amounts, so that the funds, notwithstanding this return to the old scale of fees, will meet the amount of charges to which they are liable, and will soon be greatly more than sufficient to repay to the Consolidated Fund its advances, and to bear the expenses cast upon them; and it is neither just nor politic to burthen the present suitors with a high charge, whilst future suitors will bear scarcely any burthen; nearly 3,000 l. a year charge will cease upon the dropping of one life. This arrangement, moreover, puts an end to the question upon the legality of the fees under the Order of 1837. The solicitors, whose costs have been reduced by the new Orders, have made serious complaints of the large amounts which they have to disburse for fees of Court and stamp duties.

The table of fees annexed to the Order of 25 January 1837 bears the signature of Sir W. McMahon, the then Master of the Rolls, as well as that of the Chancellor. It must have been post-dated, as Sir W. McMahon was then dead. Although the Order was made by the Chancellor alone, and the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls was not necessary, I have thought it right to follow this precedent, and the Master of the Rolls, who entirely concurs in the view which I have taken of the Order of 1837, and of the propriety of rescinding it, has undertaken to sign the old table of fees to be annexed to my Order.

The present state of the Suitors' Fund stands thus :—

This year - - - - -	12,802	7	2
Interest of Compensation and Fee Fund - -	6,916	14	8
Bankruptcy and Compensation Fund - -	2,010	1	4
	21,729	3	2
The whole charge, including all the expenses of the Bankrupt Account, in round numbers	20,400	-	-
Balance - - - £.	1,329	-	-

This is a clear annual balance, and deducting the 1,800 l. a year improperly paid to the second Commissioner and Assistant Registrar, the surplus annually is in round numbers—

£. 3,100

And there is a balance of cash to the same account of 16,323 l. 12 s. 6 d.

The Order reducing the fees must be laid on the tables of the two Houses of Parliament next Session, and will not be in operation until the end of the Session.

Secondly, as to the Stamp Duties Fund:

These duties were imposed on proceedings in the Masters' Offices, to meet the compensations and salaries of the Masters. It was not intended, contrary to the general policy of the times, to impose law taxes. The close of section 10 of the 4 Geo. 4, c. 78, which imposes the duties, shows that the duties were not intended to be permanently attached to the Consolidated Fund, for they are only to be paid into that fund until provision shall be otherwise made in Parliament. The Chancery Fund duties have produced, up to the 19th of December of this year - - - - - £. 283,302

The payments properly payable thereout, namely, the Masters' salaries and compensations, in round numbers, amount to about - - - - -	251,000
	£. 32,302

So that the Consolidated Fund has received 32,000 l. out of the Masters' Offices, beyond what was intended.

The present annual amount of the duties is - - -	14,300
The present charge is - - - - -	11,260
Balance - - -	£. 3,040

Which is an annual excess of income above charge.

3. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has already agreed to the appointment of a taxing officer for the Court of Chancery, to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund. He is very much required. The Masters say that their business has increased threefold, although I have relieved them from sitting on commissions of lunacy and of delegates. This additional relief will enable them to perform their duties with satisfaction to the Court and to the public. I have spoken to the Attorney-general in order to have the Bill prepared. The salary should be 800 l. per annum, and two clerks. It will not be necessary to draw upon the Consolidated Fund for these payments; for by the 4 Geo. 4, c. 78, very large duties are imposed on the certificates of bills of costs, which press heavily and unduly upon the suitor. The task of certifying the costs will henceforth devolve devolve on the taxing officer, and he should be paid, of course, out of a sufficient portion of these duties or fees for the performance of the work.

4. Before I proceed further, it will be proper to call the attention of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to advances out of the Suitors' Fund (not the Suitors' Fee Fund) for public purposes.

Under several Acts of Parliament various sums were paid out of the Suitors' Fund for the public service, amounting to 63,278 l. 3 s. 1 d., of which an account was transmitted by the Lord Chancellor of Ireland to Lord Morpeth on the 2d January 1837. The last of the above Acts, 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 68, authorised the Board of Works to draw to the extent of 50,000 l. on the Suitors' Fund, and this power was exercised in May 1835, to the extent of 25,000 l., which forms part of the 63,278 l. I may observe, that the powers extended to the Suitors' Funds of the two Courts of Chancery and Equity Exchequer, but the drafts were all on the funds of the Court of Chancery, except as to 13,781 l. drawn out of the funds of the Court of Exchequer. The last Act provided for the repayment of the advances by the Consolidated Fund, or so much thereof as should appear to be necessary to provide a fund sufficient to answer the demands of the suitors upon the Bank, whenever the general Suitors' Fund should be reduced to a sum not greater than the moneys advanced. This event happened in December 1836, when, to answer a draft of the Accountant-general's for 8,212 l., there remained in bank but 635 l. This compelled the Lord Chancellor to sell a considerable portion of the stock appropriated by Parliament for compensations, &c., but which has since been replaced. The Treasury, to meet the immediate pressure, repaid 25,000 l. to the fund, upon account, as appears from a letter from Mr. Spearman to Mr. Drummond, of the 31st of March 1837, leaving 38,000 l. and a fraction due to the fund, and which, from the state of that fund, ought then to have been repaid, for the balances are uncertain, and it would be alarming to have the account overdrawn. In 1840 the Board of Works drew upon the Suitors' Fund for 10,000 l. In 1838 the balance in favour of the fund was 145,000 l. In 1839 it was 142,000 l.; but in 1840 it was reduced at one period to 41,000 l.; and in November of that year was but 44,000 l. The Lord Chancellor of Ireland called the attention of the Government to this as an urgent matter, and the 10,000 l. was repaid, and no attempt has since been made to draw upon that fund; but upon calling for the accounts from the Bank of Ireland, I find another sum of 10,000 l. had been drawn for by the Board of Works out of the fund in June 1838, of which the Lord Chancellor clearly was not aware when he required the repayment of the 10,000 l. drawn for in September 1840. If he had been, it is clear that he would have required 20,000 l. to be repaid. The account was in a very unsatisfactory state at the latter end of 1841, and in March 1842 the balance was actually against the Accountant-general, so that no draft of his would have been honoured. This state of things should not be allowed to continue, and I have desired that the Bank and the Accountant-general will draw the immediate attention of the Lord Chancellor to the state of the account if the balance in favour of the Accountant-general should again become so small as to excite any alarm. The balance in his favour on the 20th of this month was 53,000 l., and I see no occasion for any present alarm.

5. I shall now proceed to state what measures I propose for the consideration of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. I have stated the sums which the Consolidated Fund has received from the funds of the Court; I have now to state that the aggregate of the sums advanced out of the Consolidated Fund, under the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 74, and which are repayable out of the Suitors' Fee Fund, amounts to 44,277 l. 18 s. 3 d. I propose—

First. That the 12,600 l. paid out of the Suitors' Fund for the second Commissioner and Assistant Registrar, shall be taken in part satisfaction of that sum.

Secondly. That 14,000 l., part of the cash in bank to the credit of the Suitors' Fee Fund, be now paid by my order as Chancellor to the Consolidated Fund, in further part payment of the above sum. I am not inclined to call upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer to pay any sum into the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the Suitors' Fund in further reimbursement of the moneys advanced out of that fund for public works, because I hope there will continue to be a sufficient balance in hand. But if there should at any time be a deficiency the Chancellor of the Exchequer should be prepared to meet it.

Thirdly. That a taxing officer be appointed, and that a more than ample portion of the duties on taxation imposed by the 4 Geo. 4, c. 78, be retained for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the new establishment. This would leave about 1,600 l. a year to be remitted, but as there is a duty of one guinea imposed on reports under interlocutory orders, which presses heavily on the suitor, and ought to be reduced, I purpose to reduce that duty one half, and therefore would remit only about 1,000 l. a year of the 1,600 l. for duties on taxation. The average duty on the above reports may be stated at 1,500 l. a year; if, therefore, 750 l. be deducted, that would make a deduction altogether of 1,750 l. a year. The duty on commissions of lunacy should also cease, now that the Masters no longer sit as Commissioners, but that is under 20 l. a year; so that a new officer will be provided for, and the suitor will obtain some relief without requiring any aid from the Consolidated Fund, and I have no doubt there will soon be a surplus. It should throughout be borne in mind that these duties are but the fees in the Masters' Offices.

Fourthly. That the second Commissioner and Assistant Registrar of the Bankruptcy Court, whilst they are retained, should be provided for out of the Consolidated Fund.

Fifthly. The future Masters' annual salaries should, as suggested by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, be reduced to 2,500 l., and a power should be given to the Chancellor, with the consent of the Treasury, as the fund becomes thus relieved, to lessen the amount of the duties. A like power should be given to the Chancellor generally, with the consent of the Treasury, over the rest of the stamp duty fees, and also a like power over the fees under 4 Geo. 4, c. 78, whilst any debt remains due to the Consolidated Fund. When that is paid off he can reduce the fees by his own authority, although he has no such power over the fees levied in the shape of stamp duties.

If these suggestions be acted upon the suitors of the Court of Chancery will have paid, in round numbers—

For public works - - - - -	48,000
For the Court of Bankruptcy, beyond the 12,600 l. - - -	7,000
For extra duties in Master's Office - - - - -	32,000 for which it is not proposed to take any credit on behalf of the fund. The suitors will now, in my view, repay 26,600 l. of the 44,000 l. advanced by the public, and they will continue chargeable with the rest of the debt, viz., 17,400 l., for which, and for all current expenses, ample duties and fees will remain, and moreover, their funds will still pay a large annual sum towards the expenses of the Court of Bankruptcy. If I remain here a short time longer, I think it probable that I may be able to suggest a mode of lessening the expenses of that Court, so as to relieve the Consolidated Fund altogether, without injury to individuals or prejudice to the public service. The measures which I have recommended may all be contained in the Bill for appointing a taxing officer, as far as they require legislative aid.

Sixthly. I now come to another point, namely, the expense of paying the two advocates who, under my new arrangement, sit with the three Judges under Commissions of Delegates. Sir James Graham agrees with me that the payment should be borne by the public, as the suitor has no such payment to make in England at present; there the advocates have but one guinea a day, and that is paid by the successful suitor. The allowance should be ten guineas the first day, and five guineas for every subsequent day; the amount will be about 300 l. a year. A clause for this purpose will be introduced into the Bill, for opening the Appeal Court to Roman-catholics, subject to the approbation of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Seventhly.

Seventhly. There is another subject to which I wish to refer, viz., the late additional stamp duties, as far as they bear upon the searches for registered documents. It is contrary to an enlightened policy to impose heavy duties upon those daily transactions which have for their object the safety and protection of purchasers, and which, without the imposition of stamp duty, entail a heavy expense on the transmission of property.

The systems in the two countries are distinct. Here common and negative searches are made by the officers of the Court, whilst in England the attorneys make the searches. Accordingly in the Stamp Act for England, 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, Schedule P. 1, a duty of 5*s.*, with a progressive duty, is imposed upon the copy or extract of any memorial, or of the register of any memorial registered pursuant to any Act of Parliament; whilst in the Act of Parliament for Ireland (56 Geo. 3, c. 56), a duty of 3*s.* is imposed, with a progressive duty, for the like copies; and besides, to meet the existing circumstances in Ireland, a duty of 3*s.* is imposed on each sheet of paper for a common search, and upon a negative search 3*s.* for each copy of any deed or memorial, &c., and 10*s.* upon the officer's certificate of such search, above all other duties. Then came the Act for assimilating the stamp duties, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 82, which imposed the same duties in Ireland as in England upon the articles, matters, and things contained in the English Act, 55 Geo. 3, c. 184. Now as regards the searches in question, this was altogether a mistake, for the articles upon which the duties were properly imposed in the Act of Ireland are not to be found in the Act for England, and consequently the article which seemed to embrace the copies or searches (but which really never was intended to have that application, and I think it doubtful whether it really does apply to them, for this very article is in the Irish Act, in addition to the articles as to searches) was applied to them, and this has caused an addition to the duty which was never contemplated. This error should, I submit, be corrected; it is a serious grievance; it never was intended thus to increase the duties, nor ought they to have been so increased; and the error can readily be corrected by imposing on the specific articles in the Irish Act (56 Geo. 3, c. 56, Schedule 1) duties of 5*s.* instead of the duties of 3*s.* imposed by the 56 Geo. 3.

I have requested the Attorney-general to have a short clause for this purpose prepared, so that the Chancellor of the Exchequer may be saved some trouble in case he should, as I trust he will, adopt my suggestion. It may be incorporated in the Bill for carrying the other objects into effect.

Eighthly. I now come to the last subject to which I wish to call the attention of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. By his Act of last Session for regulating the Common Law Courts, and by mine for the Protection of Purchasers, compensations are provided. A panic was wantonly created, and in a very short time, I am told that in two offices 26,000 judgments were redocketed without any necessity. An officer in the Court of Exchequer was the principal agent in creating the alarm. The officers of the Law Courts have wholly disregarded the direction of the last-mentioned Act, to close their books on the 1st November, and deliver them over to the new officer, and have detained them to make entries of the vast number of judgments left before that day. All the Chief Judges will meet early in the next term to consider the consequences of this proceeding, as to the validity of the entries, and the conduct of the officers. The compensations will, I dare say, be required on the receipts for this class of judgments. But as this increase was an abuse, and clearly not within the meaning of the Acts, those receipts should not be taken into the account. The Chancellor of the Exchequer will now be enabled to reduce the number of searching clerks in the Common Law Courts.

COPY of a TREASURY MINUTE, dated 10 August 1855.

MY Lords have before them “An account showing the totals issued on account of district lunatic asylums in Ireland up to the 31st day of August 1854; the amounts issued under Orders in Council sanctioning issues ‘on account,’ and showing the issues made by the Treasury on application of the Board of Public Works in Ireland under the General Orders in Council directing the work.” *

The total sum expended on the asylums specified in the annexed list, up to 31st of August 1854, was 313,973 l., of which 155,380 l. was issued by this Board without the preliminary of special Orders in Council sanctioning “issues on account,” under the erroneous impression that the general orders of the Lord Lieutenant in Council, directing the building of the asylums, was sufficient authority.

My Lords advert to the Bill † which has been introduced into Parliament in the present Session for remedying the oversight in question, by which it is amongst other things provided, that as regards all lunatic asylums built or enlarged by the Commissioners of Public Works, which have already been, or may hereafter be, handed over to the governors of such asylums as fit for the reception of lunatics, it shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant, upon receiving from the said Commissioners a certified return of all the moneys expended upon such buildings, to make an order for the repayment by the counties in which such asylums are situated, of the moneys so certified to have been expended, at such times and in such proportions as shall be fixed by such order; and by section 6 it is provided, “that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Treasury, if upon inquiries made under their directions it shall appear to them just that the county or counties liable to be charged in respect of such asylum should be relieved from a portion of the amount of the expenses incurred in the building of such asylum, to authorise and direct that remission should be made accordingly,

* House of Commons Paper, No. 111, Session 1855.

† Received the Royal Assent, August 14 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 109).

accordingly, to such amount as to the said Commissioners of the Treasury may appear just and reasonable."

Deputations from counties in Ireland chargeable with these repayments have represented to the Chancellor of the Exchequer that the outlay has been extravagant in some cases, and that the work has been very imperfectly done; while on the other hand the Commissioners of Public Works have (in their Twenty-second Report *) stated the expenditure to have been unusually moderate, as the following extract will show:—

"On making a calculation of the expenditure on the six lunatic asylums completed under this Board (including the Government asylum at Dundrum) we find, by comparison with the Parliamentary Returns of the cost of the district asylums erected in Ireland between the years 1822 and 1835, that the average cost per patient of the new asylums has been 74*l.* less than the average of the old asylums; the former being 148 l. per patient and the latter 222 l. There appears to be no Parliamentary Return showing the cost of county or district lunatic asylums in England, but from a statement prepared in the office of the Commissioners in Lunacy of the cost of 15 of the asylums erected in England since the passing of the Act 8 & 9 Vict., c. 126, the average cost per patient has been 201 l."

In order, therefore, to enable this Board to determine upon these conflicting statements, and to ascertain how far my Lords are called upon to exercise the discretion vested in the Treasury by the sixth section of the Act before quoted, they are pleased to appoint a Commission to consist of two persons, viz., an architect and a medical officer of a lunatic asylum in England, together with a secretary; who will proceed to Ireland for the purpose of inquiring into the matter, and will report to this Board their opinion upon the claims to relief adverted to.

My Lords are desirous that the Commissioners should make a local inspection of each of the asylums built by the Board of Public Works, with a view of determining whether any useless and unnecessary expenditure has been incurred in giving accommodation to a definite number of patients in each asylum, having reference to the site and the materials for building available in each locality, and whether the materials and workmanship have been sound and creditable.

My Lords will instruct the Commissioners of Public Works (Dublin) to furnish every information in their power, and give all facilities to forward the inquiry.

The Commissioners of Inquiry will be at liberty to take viva voce evidence, and to receive any written statements that may be offered by any party or parties interested, and when their inquiry is completed they will report the result thereof to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

My Lords are pleased to appoint Mr. T. L. Donaldson, architect, of London, and Mr. James Wilkes, medical officer of the County Lunatic Asylum, Stafford, the Commissioners for the purpose of this inquiry, and Mr. Spencer Shelley to be the secretary. And their Lordships desire that the necessary instructions be given to each of these gentlemen, and that they be desired to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Dublin by the 25th instant at latest.

Transmit copy of this Minute to the Commissioners of Public Works, Ireland, and desire that they will furnish every information in their power to the Commissioners hereby appointed.

Transmit copy of this Minute to the Chief Secretary for Ireland for the information of the Lord Lieutenant, and request that he will state to his Excellency that it is the object of my Lords that the fullest opportunity should be afforded to the ratepayers in the several counties in which such asylums are situate, to bring before the Commissioners of Inquiry hereby appointed, any statements they may wish to make. My Lords request that his Excellency will cause the secretaries of the several grand juries to be officially informed of the appointment of the Commission of Inquiry, and of the intention of the gentlemen composing it personally to visit each asylum at as early a period as possible. And that in order to save time it is requested that written statements, setting out any any cause of complaint such as may involve, in the opinion of the applicants, grounds for the remission under the recent Act of Parliament of any portion of the Government advances, may be sent addressed to the Commissioners or their secretary, at the Castle, Dublin, on or before the 29th instant, adding that the Commissioners will be prepared to enter into personal communication with the proper authorities on the occasion of their visit to each asylum.

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The REPORT of the Commissioners for Inquiring into the Erection of District Lunatic Asylums, Ireland.

May it please your Lordships,

PURSUANT to your Lordships' instructions, conveyed to us in the Treasury Minute of 10th August last,* we have to report, that we proceeded to Dublin on the 25th of August, and immediately upon our arrival, we put ourselves in communication with Colonel Larcom, Under-Secretary for Ireland, and the members and officers of the Board of Works.

We found that information had been officially given to the secretaries of the various grand juries, as representing the ratepayers, of the appointment of the Commission of Inquiry, and of our intention personally to visit each asylum at as early a period as possible; and that, in order to save time, it had been requested that written statements, setting out any cause of complaint, such as might involve, in the opinion of the applicants, grounds for remission under the recent Act of Parliament of any portion of the Government advances, might be sent to us or our secretary, at the Castle, Dublin, on or before the 29th of August; and adding, that we should be prepared to enter into a personal communication with the proper authorities on the occasion of our visit to each asylum.

We found that answers had been received from various parties, which documents were handed over to us.

We at once proceeded to fix the days for our visits to the respective asylums, and our secretary wrote to the resident officer of each, to apprise him thereof, as follows:

ASYLUM.					DAY FIXED.
1.	Belfast	-	-	-	Friday,	31 August.
2.	Londonderry	-	-	-	Monday,	3 September.
3.	Omagh	-	-	-	Tuesday,	4 "
4.	Sligo	-	-	-	Thursday,	6 "
5.	Ballinasloe	-	-	-	Monday,	10 "
6.	Limerick	-	-	-	Wednesday,	12 "
7.	Killarney	-	-	-	Thursday,	13 "
8.	Cork	-	-	-	Monday,	17 "
9.	Clonmel	-	-	-	Wednesday,	19 "

11.	Mullingar	-	-	-	Saturday,	22 "
12.	Richmond, Dublin	-	-	-	Monday,	24 "

Previously to starting on our tour of inspection, we had frequent conferences with Drs. Nugent and White, the Inspectors of Asylums; with Mr. Radcliff, Commissioner of the Board of Works; with Mr. Owen, the Surveyor; and the the Clerks of the Works of the Board ; and inspected the plans and specifications, contracts, bills of quantities, and other papers of the several asylums, in order to procure the fullest information connected with the object of our inquiries, and we made preliminary visits to Dundrum and Richmond Asylums, with the view of becoming acquainted with any peculiarities of arrangement or detail that might prevail in the Irish establishments.

We here take the opportunity of acknowledging the frank and unreserved conduct of the officers of the Board of Works, the resident physicians, the governors, architects, and all parties concerned, who have in every way assisted our inquiries and afforded us the fullest information.

We also arranged that the plans and papers of the asylums respectively should be forwarded to meet us at the several places, in order that we might compare them on the spot with the buildings as erected, and at the same time afford the governors the fullest information in our power from original documents.

We accordingly proceeded on our tour of inspection on Friday, the 31st of August, and were enabled to keep all our appointments at the several asylums, as originally fixed.

We cannot enter upon the details of our Report without emphatically noticing the great advance made in the interests of humanity, of late years, in Ireland, by the erection of the new asylums, whereby the sad condition of the insane poor has been so materially alleviated, and additional provision made for the care and treatment of more than 2,500 patients, at a cost (as appears by the annexed table*) of upwards of 340,000 l. There has been an earnest co-operation on the part of the Government authorities, of the officers of the Board of Works, and, in many instances, of the governors and officers of the asylums in effecting this. Ample and convenient sites have generally been purchased, on healthy, elevated positions, and commanding views of the most beautiful scenery. Due care and attention have been paid in selecting the most favourable aspects. A pleasing and not necessarily expensive style of architecture has been adopted, and carried out in a manner highly creditable to the architects engaged, and ornamental to the country. The accommodation has been generally complete, being founded upon some instructions carefully drawn up by the officers of the Board of Works, who have examined the English asylums, compared their working details, and studied the instructions to architects drawn out by the English Commissioners in Lunacy, of whose experience they have largely availed themselves.

It may be necessary to premise, that the Orders in Council, for additions to old asylums and for the erection of new district asylums, were issued in consequence, principally, of reports from the inspectors of lunatic asylums as to the want of accommodation in the existing buildings. In the case of new asylums, when the order was given fixing the locality and the number of patients to be accommodated, one of the members of the Board of Public Works made an inspection of the ground in the neighbourhood, with a view to obtain a proper site for the building.

The Board of Works then applied for designs to the leading architects of the country, confiding to their skill and experience the erection of the buildings, thus avoiding any grounds of complaint as to the invidious employment of their own officers in the execution of these important works. The designs were then revised by the Board ; and when fully settled, the quantities were taken out, the works offered to public competition, and carried into effect under contracts containing very stringent provisions. In all these steps very great precautions seem to have been taken to protect the public interests.

It is to be observed that these original contracts related solely, with some slight exceptions, to the structural parts of the buildings, and did not include any fittings or furniture. The papering and furnishing of the officers' residences, various machinery, the provision for lighting and heating, farm buildings, and many other matters and things essential to the completion of the establishment and rendering it fit for occupation and use, formed supplemental items of expense. Consequently, the original contract afforded no just criterion as to the ultimate outlay to be incurred, although the governors and ratepayers ratepayers have, in some instances, been erroneously led to consider that the whole of the expenditure was included in the first contract, and have complained that the estimates had been much exceeded.

In the observations that we shall have the honour to submit, we beg that it may not be inferred that our remarks upon any imperfections are to be considered as condemnatory of the exertions of those who have laboured to render these new asylums as perfect as they can be under certain difficult circumstances; at the same time, our mission has not for its object to eulogise the success of these operations, but rather to record any departure from the prudent expenditure which should regulate this class of buildings, and any want of due caution in their erection and completion. During this inquiry, some facts have incidentally presented themselves to our notice which we feel called upon, as not at variance with the humane motives of those engaged in this great work of benevolence, to bring before your Lordships, stating frankly the result of our experience, and offering any suggestions likely to render the working of these asylums more complete and efficient.

It is obvious that patience and forbearance are necessary upon the first occupation of all large buildings of this description; some wants may still remain unsupplied, some peculiarities of site may produce inconvenience, and many things, at first objectionable, may be subsequently improved.

Time and experience, and the hearty co-operation of the governing bodies, can alone bring into harmony and good working order, establishments consisting of such varied and numerous appliances.

As the claims for remission advanced by various local Boards mainly rest upon the manner in which the structural parts of the asylums have been built, we think that the subject will be best treated and more readily understood by an examination of the "instructions" for the guidance of architects employed, (drawn up by order of the Board of Works at Dublin, and bearing date January 1848), selecting those paragraphs or clauses particularly which claim our special attention, and offering comments upon them as we proceed, referring to our special Reports on each separate asylum for more detailed information; and in the observations that we shall have occasion to make, we shall be guided by the judicious principle laid down and so well expressed in a Report made to the Board of Works at Dublin, on 1st May 1849, by one of its officers, Mr. F. V. Clarendon; viz.

"In submitting the following remarks I have proceeded on the principle that lunatic asylums are, hospitals for the recovery of curable patients, and houses for the reception of incurable lunatics, and not prisons for the safe custody of dangerous madmen; and with this view I would propose the abolition, as far as it is practicable, of any arrangement which may present the gaol-like character of many of the existing asylums, but at the same time to preserve sufficient strength in construction as, in conjunction with efficiency on the part of the attendants, will render the buildings perfectly secure and well adapted for the purposes intended."

"The building to be erected at _____ is intended to contain patients, with the requisite accommodation for officers and attendants. The architect will bear in mind that he is designing a hospital and not a prison; taking care, while he provides a building capable of affording the necessary classification and security for patients labouring under the excitement attendant on mental disease, that the appearance of restraint and confinement may be as much as possible avoided. The enclosure walls need not be more than six feet six inches high. The airing-yard walls may be made five feet six inches in height, or iron railings may be provided, except where yards are used for refractory patients. It will be unnecessary to provide iron bars for any windows."

In the buildings we have inspected these instructions appear to have been most carefully carried out; and, in general, the new asylums, both in their internal arrangements as well as their external design, are cheerful, well lighted, and present a strong and most favourable contrast to the older asylums. In reference, however, to the airing-court walls the principle seems to have been, in a great measure, lost sight of, and in many instances they are unnecessarily high, and a sufficient distinction in this respect has not been made between the airing-courts for the refractory and those for the more tranquil patients.

"The main front of the building and day-rooms to have, if possible, an aspect about south-east to south-west; and in arranging the general plan, it is desirable to avoid having the yards at rear much enclosed by projecting buildings."

We have found all the asylums, except Omagh, built with their principal parts, as nearly as possible, facing the south, and, with that single exception, the corridors and day rooms are placed on that side. In the case of Omagh the design was planned in accordance with the instructions, but the corridors and day rooms were changed after the contract had been signed, to gain the southern aspect in the rear.

We have, however, remarked that in no instance have the airing-yards been placed in the front. The consequence is that they are generally too much enclosed, less spacious than they should be, and surrounded by buildings and high enclosure walls, which exclude the view of the country. For the greater part of the day the patients are precluded from the genial influence of the sun's heat, the height of the main building intercepting its rays, and the northern aspect rendering the yards cold and exposed to the bleakest winds.

In some instances, therefore, the position of the staircases from the corridors does not answer the intended purpose of immediate approaches in connexion with the yards.

The whole of the ground surrounding the asylums having been purchased for the immediate use and benefit of the patients, it would seem that nothing can be more fitting than the appropriation of the principal front to the recreation or airing-courts, where the patients would enjoy greater warmth, generally more cheerful views, with a feeling of greater freedom than the present position of the yards permits.

"The style of architecture best suited to the general quality of the building materials in this country, and admitting also of additions being easily made to the asylums hereafter, is the Gothic, the main walls being of uncoursed rubble masonry, with cut-stone quoins and dressings. It is open, however, to the architect to submit his views to the Commissioners respecting any other style that he may consider more suitable. Whatever style may be adopted, no external coating of stucco or other composition will be allowed."

The style adopted has been objected to on the ground that it involves an useless expense of decoration in the mouldings, buttresses, gables, and oriel windows, &c.; and the cut-stone quoins have been complained of, as being unnecessarily costly.

We have found that the material most general in the country has been the blue or dark grey limestone, peculiarly adapted for uncoursed rubble masonry. At Mullingar, the local stone is easily worked for quoins, and some of those in the minor buildings are so executed; but in other places the stone is so hard and brittle as not to admit of any working; and, consequently, in such instances as Killarney, the quoins were necessarily of cut stone. We consider the style suggested to admit of effective, though simple, treatment; and it was generally admitted in our conferences with the governors, that the public institutions of the country should not reflect too much its poverty, its crime, or its misfortune, and that the lunatic asylums, at the same time that they receive a sober architectural treatment, should not be mere repetitions of the character of an union workhouse or prison, and thus give an unhappy aspect to a locality. It must, however, be acknowledged that, at Cork and Sligo, there is an excess of embellishments, ornamental it is true, but much beyond what is suitable for such an institution, and that, at Mullingar and Killarney, some allowance should be made for unnecessarily ornamental parts and uncalled-for cut-stone quoins and dressings.

At Omagh, Richmond, Sligo, Cork, Killarney, Kilkenny, and, in fact, at all the asylums, the driving rains from the south-west and east, have, more or less, caused damp in the walls facing those aspects, and the result has been, in Cork and Killarney, to render the walls absolutely reeking with wet, producing rot in the timbers inserted in them. Considerable reparations have therefore been been necessary, and much is still required to remedy the defect at Killarney. This serious injury to the walls affects the stability of the buildings and their fitness for occupation, particularly by persons already in an infirm state of health.

The inherent nature of uncoursed rubble masonry involves the use of a considerable quantity of mortar, and requires the interior to be soundly packed. It is absolutely necessary, in order to render it staunch or weather-tight, that the joints of the front work be particularly well filled with mortar, and the joint struck at once, the stones not being too close together, lest there should not be room for the mortar. It was ascertained at Mullingar that the masons mutually challenged each other to produce the closest and neatest work; the stones were therefore brought up so near to each other as completely to close the joint, and not admit of sufficient mortar to stop; hence these narrow interstices admit the wet freely. We caused four holes to be made in different parts of the buildings at Killarney; the work, when opened, was found to be substantially packed and well put together, but there was an excess of mortar used, some hard and well set, especially in the north walls, which were perfectly dry; but in the south-east and west walls, the mortar was soft and pulpy, as though it had recently been put in.

In a joint report by Mr. Owen, architect of the Board of Works, and Sir John Benson, a local architect of eminence possessing the confidence of the governors, dated 8th February 1854, it is stated that "there is not any defect in the walls," which we presume to mean the solid stability of the construction.

At Killarney and at Cork, certain remedial measures had been adopted to render the walls dry. The mortar had been raked out from the joints, and they were then well pointed with Portland cement as far as it could be got in. On a portion of the central building of Killarney, and over the whole surface of the Cork Asylum, a thick wash of Portland cement had been applied, which "it was hoped would prove sufficient to render the surface impervious for a time, until the walls had the opportunity of drying thoroughly into the heart of the masonry." Some stress has been laid on certain fissures in the blocks of stone, which are apt to split after the work has been set, which is said to arise from the weight, when the stones have not been laid in the work in the way of their natural beds. Although this was found more frequently at Killarney or Cork than at Mullingar, yet it was not very obvious that damp to any great extent resulted from these accidental fissures. We are inclined to think that if a front mortar, such as Portland cement, had been used to the depth of three or four inches during the work, and the joints had been at once struck, as in hydraulic constructions, it would have proved an effectual prevention to the admission of wet at the joints and beds.

This matter has called for more than usual attention on our part, as the expense of supplementary work to cure the damp has been generally objected to, on the ground that the great experience of the Board of Works, derived from the like defects in the workhouses and other buildings, had proved that the ordinary construction of uncoursed rubble masonry is totally insufficient to keep out the driving wet, when exposed to southerly, western, and eastern aspects. This experience should have induced the Board to insist upon extraordinary precautions being taken to prevent the recurrence of so terrible an evil, which had hitherto baffled architects and builders of the longest standing and highest repute. At Cork, the repairs have amounted to 1,707*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* At Killarney, although at the time of our visit only half the building had had the damp walls repaired, 632*l.* 7*s.* 1½*d.* had been expended, for it was found necessary to take out great quantities of decayed timber, such as the rotten ends of joists and girders, and to substitute fresh woodwork.

We consider that these expenses, and any further sums necessary to complete the repairs, should not be put to the charge of the districts, but may be fairly considered to be one of the remissions contemplated by the Act.

We deem it our duty, upon consideration of the state of Killarney Asylum, to urge upon the Government authorities to complete forthwith the necessary repairs, apprehensive that if another winter were allowed to pass without the requisite work, a very extensive progress of dry-rot would result.

In all other cases where the damp or other imperfect work to any great extent still exists, we beg to recommend the adoption of one of two courses, as may be deemed the more expedient: either that the Board of Works should without cost to the counties, remedy the defective pointing and other unsound works, or that the local Boards should be allowed to submit a specification and estimate to the Board of Works of the repairs which they deem necessary, and which, if approved as to efficiency and cost by the Board of Works, should be executed by the parties selected by the local Board, and paid for by the Board of Works, without charge to the counties, when certified by their own officer to have been soundly and satisfactorily completed. This work to be considered as releasing the Board of Works from any future responsibility.

“The whole of the corridors, day rooms, and sleeping rooms to be lined with bricks, but not plastered. There should be a sound flooring between the ground and first floors; but this may be dispensed with between the first and second floors. The day rooms and corridors to be provided with open fire places.”

The requirements of this paragraph have been fulfilled in all the asylums; but frequently the inside lining has been of such porous bricks as to be totally inefficient. And it may be remarked, that whenever the wet has penetrated the mass of the construction, no bricks, however sound, will prevent it going right through the wall. Generally the bricks are very roughly made, and do not present a fair face, so that the walls of the corridors, sleeping rooms, and day rooms not only have a cheerless aspect, but from the roughness of the surface, and not being plastered, they easily catch the dust and dirt, and look unclean. In one asylum only (Omagh) there is a wood lining four feet six inches high to the walls of the corridors and sitting rooms, which gives great comfort to the patients; and the walls of the day rooms are also plastered. It appeared to us that great economy of labour would result if the walls were all plastered; and the medical and other superintendents were unanimous in their opinion that it would be extremely desirable on every account to have them plastered, as they are in the older asylums.

The day rooms and corridors are provided with fire-places, with the exception of two day rooms at Mullingar, which possibly may have been originally intended for dormitories. But we are of opinion that, if only as a means of ventilation, fire-places are desirable also in all dormitories.

With regard to heating, fire-places are not sufficient for insane patients, many of whom have a very torpid circulation; and very frequently the fire-places are placed in the outer walls of the corridors, whereby a great degree of heat is lost, and the warmth would be much increased if the fire-places and their flues were inserted in the inner walls. In one only of the asylums visited by us was an artificial system of heating by pipes adopted, namely, at Londonderry, and which had been only partially successful. We think that the sanitary condition of the patients would be considerably improved if there could be some general system of distributing warmth throughout all the rooms and corridors occupied by the patients. This was intended to have been done at Cork, but ultimately abandoned.

With respect to ventilation, it is generally effected by flues carried up the walls into the roof; but in some instances, as at Cork, Killarney, &c. they are discharged into a horizontal shaft in the roof, which delivers the vitiated air into vertical shafts, specially prepared in connexion with the flue of the boiler for the hot water intended for the baths, &c. on the uppermost floor. But we found that this boiler, on which the system depends, is rarely in operation more than once a week, sometimes less frequently; and that from some cause or other it does not act with full effect to produce the contemplated draft in the foul-air shaft. Openings are sometimes made from the day rooms, dormitories, and single rooms into the corridors, but they have not always acted well, and generally the apertures are too small. At Killarney and Kilkenny the action was satisfactory; in others we could not discover any. Hence the single rooms and dormitories become intolerable, at night, producing profuse perspiration in the patients, a sense of suffocation, and concentration of that impure air peculiar to the exhalations from insane persons, which must be very prejudicial to their health, and was generally complained of by the medical superintendents, matrons, and attendants as intolerable. We found at Cork, that the gratings for the escape of the foul air judiciously placed near the floor, were quite choked by flock for want of habitual care in the attendants, and the operation of the flues rendered nugatory.

"The number of single rooms to be provided need not exceed one-third of the whole number of patients; they may be made seven by nine, and twelve feet high.

"The dormitories may be constructed to contain from three to twelve beds each, according as the architectural arrangements will admit; at the same time, if dormitories for three patients can be avoided, so much the better. Although the maximum is fixed at 12 in some well-managed asylums in this country, a great number of patients sleep in the same dormitory without inconvenience to the regulations of the establishments; so that if circumstances rendered it very desirable, one or two rooms might be provided for as many as 15 patients. In all cases there should be a space of at least two feet between the patients' beds."

The relative proportions of single rooms to dormitories has been departed from in several of the asylums. At Belfast, there are only 73 out of 314; the proportion should have been about 100 to 214. At Kilkenny, the numbers are 34 single to 116 in dormitories; they should have been about 50 to 100. At Sligo, one-fifth only are in single rooms, instead of one-third. At Omagh, Mullingar, Killarney, Cork, and Richmond, the proportions are sufficiently near, and the sizes are all correct.

The proportion of beds in dormitories varies from three to eight, and there are generally about 50 superficial feet for each bed. To avoid subsequent overcrowding by an inadvertent departure from the number of beds intended to be placed in each dormitory, the number should be painted over the door.

"There should be day rooms provided in each ward, their size depending on the number of patients. It has been found an economical arrangement in some of the English asylums, to make a portion of the corridor serve as a day room, by adding a projection, well lighted. The comfort of this arrangement might be increased by having folding doors, sliding into the projecting walls, so as in winter to enclose a portion of the corridor, in which an open fire-place, in that portion of the corridor, should be provided.

"It will be desirable to have the wards so arranged with respect to each other, and to the means of communication, that the medical officer and others, on inspection, may not have to retrace their steps."

The suggestion, founded on English precedent, has been carried out at Sligo, but it has not been successful, as the day room becomes full of draughts, and, therefore, comfortless; and the interruptions caused by a thoroughfare, disturb the patients. Separate day rooms are, consequently, preferable, and have been provided in every other instance.

The last paragraph has been carefully attended to by the architects of the several asylums visited by us.

"In making the design, there should be a division of the asylum into three distinct classes for each sex, and a complete separation of sexes. The worst class of patients, such as refractory and epileptic, generally occupying the ground floor, the greatest proportion of single rooms will be required for this class. There may, however, be one or two dormitories for small numbers, provided with rooms for attendants in the proportion of one to every 10 patients.

"On the first floor of the building, the proportion of single rooms may be diminished, and the dormitories made to hold as many as eight or 10 patients each, with rooms for attendants, say one to every 14 patients.

"On the upper floor of the building, where the patients are quiet and harmless, very few single rooms will be required, and those only to be used in case of patients becoming troublesome during the night. The attendance on this class will be one to every 16 patients.

"In each separate ward, a warm bath, a water-closet, and a washing room must be provided. When the arrangement will not admit of a small store room being provided, a large press for clothes in the corridor will suffice for each ward.

"In planning the attendants' rooms, it is desirable to have them near the dormitories, and if immediately adjoining, there may be an opening between for inspection purposes."

These instructions have been implicitly carried out, but we may remark that, generally speaking, the attendants' rooms are too small, and not completed nor fitted with that comfort which is due to persons engaged in such arduous and responsible duties.

The attendants' rooms have rarely inspection openings, and very frequently they are not so judiciously placed in reference to the dormitories, as is desirable.

We consider that inspection openings should at once be inserted in all the attendants' rooms attached to the dormitories, and in many cases glazed doors of communication would add much to the efficiency of the attendants' control over the patients.

Water-closets.—We had ample evidence in our visitation of the insufficiency of the peculiar description of water-closet in general use in the old as well as in the new asylums. The impossibility of insuring that amount of care and attention on the part of the servants, which is necessary to keep them in order and prevent them from becoming offensive, was a subject of universal complaint. Although the basins are intended to be constantly partly filled with water, we found that from the wearing of the wooden plug this was rarely the case, and the soil was constantly exposed. Their defective working and the nuisance arising from them was general, and the duty imposed upon the attendants of emptying and flushing them, was complained of as most disgusting.

The objections to them appear to us to be so palpable and well founded, that we recommend that they should at once be replaced by closets of the description now in general use in England, and consisting of an enamelled iron pan and trap of at least six inches in diameter, with a separate cistern for flushing, which should be effected by the action of the seat. The seat also, instead of being of deal, should be of oak, placed at a moderate height from the ground, and the slope which is frequently given to them should be done away with. In all the closets on the men's side we think urinals should be put up, which will probably tend to correct the objectionable habits of the patients.

Wherever the floors of the water-closets are of wood, we recommend that they should be either covered with lead or replaced by tiles set in cement. The closets in the old asylums as well as the new equally require alteration, and at Londonderry additional ones are greatly wanted, as we found that there was only one for the use of patients in the whole building, and they are therefore compelled to use the privies in the airing courts at all times and at all seasons. We found these in a most dilapidated and filthy state, and from their construction (the soil being collected in wooden receptacles on wheels, which are periodically removed and cleansed out), not at all calculated to induce habits of propriety and cleanliness in the patients. In connexion with this subject we think the water-closets or privies in the airing courts (which we found generally offensive and much out of order) require attention. The plan of having two seats in the same closet hardly seems to be necessary, and we would recommend that one good closet should be put up in each, and that on the male side a division wall should be erected, and a urinal placed in the other portion of the closet, with a doorway in such position as not to expose the patients. A means of flushing this occasionally from the closet cistern should also be provided. We consider that the present water-closets in the new district asylums, and also in those of the old ones, to which additions have lately been made, should be replaced by others, of improved construction, and that the expense thereof should be remitted by the Treasury.

The baths are usually made of slate, and no objection seems to be made to them. In one at the Sligo Asylum we found that the waste-pipe was in some way connected with that of the adjoining water-closet, and that the soil from the latter regurgitated into the bath. The water also, in many of them, was a long time in running off, which seems to be occasioned by the plan adopted for securing the plug, and which causes an obstruction. This however might be easily easily remedied if found to be inconvenient. The lavatories are usually conveniently arranged, and consist of enamelled basins set in slate tables. In many of the asylums they are too high, and rather narrow, the patients running some risk of striking their heads against the tap when leaning over the basin. At Ballinasloe this is effectually guarded against by placing the basins further from the wall, and conducting a pipe from the tap under the slate to the rim of the basin; a method decidedly superior to that adopted in some of the asylums. Most of the floors of the lavatories are of deal, and, to preserve them from rot, we think they should all be covered, as soon as possible, with sheet lead.

The want of store rooms in the galleries of many of the district asylums, in which to keep the patients' clothes and various articles in general use, is much felt. The same is the case with regard to sculleries, in which to wash up and arrange the plates, dishes, spoons, mugs, &c., used at meals. At present, the usual system is to take these articles to the general scullery; and this is complained of, as causing much trouble and confusion in the kitchen department, and taking the nurses and attendants out of the galleries more frequently than is desirable. We consider that store rooms or presses, and also sculleries, should be provided in all asylums in which they do not at present exist, and that the latter should be fitted up with a sink or trough, lined with lead, plate-racks, cupboards, &c., and both hot and cold water laid on.

"The corridors need not exceed 10 feet in width, and the windows in them should be large, to open at the top. The windows of the building generally will be large, and all, or nearly all, the sashes to be of metal: the windows may be set as low as three feet six inches from the floor. The doors to the single rooms for patients should be made to open outwards."

The sashes used in the new asylums were universally complained of, as being both unsafe, and not admitting sufficient air for the free ventilation of the building. The frames are usually of cast iron. Those most generally in use open at the top by means of a sash, hung on pivots placed a little below the centre, and fastened by a catch at the top of the frame, on releasing which, by means of a stick, the sash falls open by its own gravity. In some cases the catch terminates in an arm and ball, which projects about six inches, and offers a ready means of a patient's hanging himself from it, which in one instance was stated to have been attempted. Unless the windows are guarded by shutters, the patients can readily open them; and from the imperfect way in which many of them are stopped, allowing the sash to fall open at right angles, several escapes have taken place through them, and one or two from windows at a considerable distance from the ground, but, fortunately, without being attended by serious injury. When these windows are stopped at such a distance as would prevent a patient getting through them, the quantity of air admitted is very trifling; and we apprehend that, under any circumstances, an excited patient would readily either break the stop, or even the sash itself, if so disposed, and make his escape. Occasionally the pivots were pointed out to us as becoming loose with wear, which of course renders them more liable to accident. In some asylums the windows open by means of two moveable sashes hung on wire cord, which balance each other, the raising of the lower sash being followed by the depression of the upper. The distance to which these opened varied considerably, but in some instances would readily admit of a man getting through. The wire cord was complained of, as constantly breaking and getting out of order, and is evidently too thin for the purpose.

In the Cork Asylum we found many of the windows permanently fastened down, to prevent escapes or accidents, thus preventing all ventilation. In others, the bed-room windows for excited patients had been boarded up, to prevent escape. In several asylums, in which shutters are provided, they are so imperfect in construction and mode of fastening, that they afford no great safeguard, and we doubt whether a sufficient number are so protected. We think that this subject requires considerable attention in all the asylums we have visited; and we would recommend, either that the windows hung on pivots should be effectually stopped at a proper distance, to prevent the patients getting through them, and that some simple means of fastening them should be adopted, or (what would probably be better, and admit of more ventilation) that the moveable iron frame should be fixed, and the glass removed, and a glazed wooden sash, corresponding to it, should be hung on the inside by means of hinges, and fastened by a small spring catch and key. In the same way we suggested that the double-action sash should be permanently fixed, and part of the glass removed, and a glazed wooden sash added. With respect to the shutters, we think there is generally a deficiency of them, and that they should be put up in such rooms as the governors, with the advice of the medical officers, suggest. The most secure description of shutter seems to be one made of solid inch-and-a-quarter deal, clamped top and bottom, and morticed and tenoned, which should fit into an inch-and-a-half oak frame, firmly fixed round the window, and secured by a spring lock and key.

“ The kitchen to be large and well ventilated, detached from the main building, and approached under cover : the laundry, wash-house, and drying room all to be of large dimensions, so as to allow of an increased number of patients being admitted to the asylum without having to alter these offices.

“ Two or three work-rooms (for trades) will be required, in or adjoining the building on the male side. The laundry will be approached from the female side, without passing by the entrance to the kitchen.

“ An engine-room must be provided at the rear of the kitchen, the boiler of which will supply the laundry and kitchen with hot water and steam for cooking.

“ Sleeping rooms for a cook and laundress, and two rooms for steward or clerk will be required, as well as stores for meat and bread. A bakery and dairy should also be near the other stores. A large store-room for the matron must be provided.”

All these requirements, which relate to the domestic economy of the asylums, are admirably provided in the new buildings, which are ample, spacious, and airy. Generally there is a boiler to supply the laundry and kitchen with hot water and steam for cooking. But we think that a more complete system of apparatus might be adopted, calculated to save labour and economise fuel, and provide for general distribution of hot water throughout all the parts occupied by the patients as well as the offices.

“ The residences to be provided will be for a medical officer in charge, a principal attendant, and a matron. There should also be an office for a clerk, a board-room, surgery, and hall-porter's room. Two rooms, one on each side of entrance building, to be provided for the reception of male and female patients on first arriving, and for friends of patients when visiting them.

“ Airing yards will be adjoining the buildings, say two on each side, with separate approaches thereto. The tranquil patients can have access to the pleasure-grounds for exercise.”

Good accommodation is generally provided on the plans for these officers; but it appears sometimes, as at Mullingar, that a distribution of the apartments has been made since the completion of the building without sufficient consideration for the comfort and convenience of the matron, whose position in such asylums is second only to that of the medical officer, and whose rooms should be allocated where she should not be exposed to unnecessary fatigue, and her domestic offices should be equally convenient, and as easy of access as those of any other officer.

We may remark that none of the officers' apartments have been properly finished off in any of the asylums, and that the completion of the plastering, painting, and paper-hanging is generally as yet omitted; but we presume only until all damp has disappeared, and the walls, ceilings, and joinery are seasoned, and fit to receive the last coats and fittings. The comfort of these officers is of primary importance, when their unremitting labours and anxious cares are considered; their residences, therefore, should be forthwith completed, and the proper conveniences and fitments provided.

As mentioned in a preceding part of this Report, we have not generally found the airing yards sufficiently spacious or judiciously placed. Too little reference seems often to have been had to obtaining for the patients a cheerful look-out, look-out, which is easily attainable in all the asylums; and sunk fences being generally omitted, the yards are enclosed by high walls and domestic buildings. These obstructions keep out the view, and give the appearance of felons' yards, instead of airing courts for patients of infirm health and diseased mind, to whom cheerfulness, sunniness, and space, are essential even for the worst class.

At Cork the surface is on such a rapid fall of ground that the patients have little or no level space to walk on, and remain generally seated on their benches or crouching on the ground. The original plans of the asylums, as designed by the architects, almost always contemplated the yards being placed on the south front, but the alteration has subsequently been made, and at Cork with the express approval of the governors and medical officer. At Mullingar the airing yards are at the rear, but good-sized, airy, and cheerful; two of them, however, are too much deprived of the sun. At Cork, Killarney, Sligo, and others, a fresh disposition ought to be immediately made, and the courts should be brought to the front, inclosed by sunk fences, be more ample in space, and thus any appearance of confinement and restraint removed as much as possible. Instead of having the character of gardens, and being ornamented, as in England, with trees, shrubs, and flowers, there are few in which, as yet, any attempt is made to divest them of the gaol-like character which the gravelled surface and high walls give them. In most of the new asylums the Board of Works seem to have purposely omitted laying out the airing courts, under the impression that this would afford employment to the patients, and be a saving in expense; and at the same time perhaps give the resident manager an opportunity of treating them according to his own taste. In several, however, they remain in the same rough and unfinished state in which they were originally left, and no efforts appear to have been made to render them fit for occupation; in some cases, as at Richmond, they are unsafe for insane patients.

The medical officers have, in other instances, exerted themselves successfully, and particularly at Mullingar, to improve the aspect of the airing yards; but in some asylums since their occupation by the governors, attached sheds have been incautiously built, which still more inclose the yards and impede the view, as also immense piles of peat for the winter store have been stacked close to the walls, which may possibly keep off the chilling blasts from the north, but render the courts dreary.

We think that immediate steps should be taken by the local bodies or Board of Works to remedy the evils we have pointed out in the airing courts. We would suggest that, whenever practicable, they should be placed to the south, either at the front or sides of the buildings; that they should afford ample space for exercise, and also for the amusement of the patients. The inclosure walls should, by means of sunk fences, be kept as low as possible, and inexpensive arbours or sun shades of a more ornamental and rustic character should be introduced instead of the sheds now in general use.

"The staircases leading to the two upper floors should be walled up to the top, and not left with open rails. Partition walls, fire-proof, with iron doors to cut off communication, should be erected at convenient intervals."

"An infirmary for each sex, detached from the main buildings to accommodate, say 10 per cent. on the number of patients in asylum, with baths and water-closets, kitchen and attendants' rooms, to be provided; also a chapel, with sittings for half the number of persons in the asylum, will be required; and it is also desirable to have a large room that can be used both as a school and music room. These may be arranged as detached buildings, or as forming part of the main building. Stables and farm offices are not to be placed close to the main building. A lodge at the principal entrance to be provided for a gatekeeper."

In all of the asylums the staircases are built as directed, and in several, though not in all, iron doors are put up to cut off communication in case of fire.

At Belfast and Kilkenny, the infirmary is provided in connexion with the main building. At Omagh, Sligo, the Richmond, and Killarney, they are detached. At Cork, an old detached house has been fitted up for the reception of 15 men and 15 women. At Mullingar no infirmary is yet erected, and the governors are anxious that one should be provided forthwith. It is to be observed, that in some of these there are no single rooms, and in others too few ; a serious deficiency in cases of epidemics, or severe attack of illness, or approaching death. The arrangements of kitchen, scullery, larder, and store-rooms, &c., are imperfectly provided ; considerable reductions having been made in the architect's plans to keep down the expenditure at the expense of the efficiency of this department as regards the patients, and to the discomfort of the attendants.

Sufficient chapel accommodation is generally provided for both Protestants and Roman Catholics. In most instances the two communions have worked harmoniously together, but at Belfast and at Richmond, inconvenience is stated to have been experienced by the use of one place of worship for various classes of worshippers.

Music or Recreation Halls.—We found that large central rooms have been erected as music or recreation halls, and to serve also as school-rooms. Most of them are used periodically, and the general evidence of the medical officers is favourable as to their utility in amusing the patients, and relieving the monotony of their seclusion. At the Cork and Killarney Asylums the large rooms erected for the above purpose have not yet been used. Still, in the face of the testimony borne in other asylums, both in Ireland and elsewhere, to their beneficial effect, we can hardly regard this as a proof of their being useless ; and when these institutions are in a more advanced state, and in complete working order, they will, no doubt, be found useful aids in the moral treatment of the patients. We have frequently thought that these rooms might also be employed with advantage for other purposes besides recreation ; placed, as they usually are, in the centre of the building, easily accessible from the patients' apartments, and in close proximity with the kitchen, we have suggested that they should be used as general dining-halls for those patients of both sexes who are not confined to their rooms or galleries by sickness or excitement. Besides facilitating supervision, and ensuring the various meals being served hot, and in a more systematic and orderly way than would probably be the case if the patients dined in their several galleries, we think the moral effect upon the patients themselves would be beneficial, and that the propriety and decorum observed by the general mass would imperceptibly influence the more turbulent and excited. At Kilkenny this plan had been adopted, and we gladly embraced the opportunity of seeing the patients at dinner, and of satisfying ourselves of the practicability of the plan, the advantages of which were fully corroborated by the resident physician, Dr. Lalor.

With the exception of the Richmond Asylum, where classes are formed for the instruction of patients in reading and writing, we did not find that the recreation halls were used as school-rooms, which seems to have been one of the objects for which they were originally erected. Employed in this way, we think they would be found to be most useful and valuable in the treatment of the patients, and as the practicability of instructing the insane is now so clearly proved, we would beg to suggest that every advantage should be taken of the means so wisely provided in the new district asylums for this purpose.

"In preparing plans, it will be unnecessary for the architect to provide for heating and ventilating the main buildings."

Some provision for ventilation has been made by the architects ; but the employment of any general system of introducing warm air into the galleries or rooms of the new Irish asylums has been omitted, in accordance with this printed instruction of the Board of Works. At Cork, however, considerable unnecessary outlay is stated to have taken place in building extensive basements in connexion with some artificial system of heating the building, which was subsequently abandoned ; and a remission on this account is now claimed by the governors. The corridors and day rooms are exclusively warmed by open fires, and though the testimony of the various officers as to the temperature during the past winter of the different asylums we have visited, differs considerably (and no systematic register has been kept), there seems to be little doubt that the extensive corridors, and consequently the bed-rooms, must be very cold during the winter months. In the new Richmond Asylum a corridor 78 feet long by 10 wide and 12 high (9,360 cubic feet) is warmed by one fire-place. In the Omagh Asylum the corridors running along the main front are 204 feet long, long, and contain 24,480 cubic feet, and are warmed by two fires; while at Kilkenny, where the corridors are only 160 feet long, and contain 19,200 cubic feet, three fire-places have been erected. In the latter a comfortable temperature would probably be obtained if good fires were constantly kept up; but in the former, they are quite inadequate to warming the building properly. The circulation of the warm air from the corridors through the bed-rooms is provided for by means of openings over the doors; but we found that practically the fires are never kept up during the night, and consequently that the temperature is much lowered at a time when it is important that it should be maintained.

We are of opinion that in asylums built upon the plan lately adopted in Ireland, with extensive corridors, containing numerous windows, it is impossible to obtain an equable temperature by means of open fires; and that it would have been desirable in the original construction of the buildings to have provided flues for the introduction of tempered air by means of some of the systems adopted in the large institutions in England. We think that frequent daily registers of the temperature should be kept during the winter in all these asylums; and that if it should be found lower than is compatible with the health or comfort of the patients, either additional fire-places should be erected in the galleries, or that they should be warmed by means of hot water or steam circulating in pipes carried above the floor.

The ventilation of the bed-rooms of the district asylums is attempted in various ways; but in none does it appear to be effective, and they were generally stated to be close and offensive at night. With the exception of the Cork Asylum, the openings for taking off the foul air are placed immediately under the ceiling, and communicate with perpendicular flues, which either terminate in the roof or in horizontal drains carried into large extraction shafts. In most of the asylums the openings in the various rooms appeared to us to be too small to ventilate them effectively, even if an active extraction went on. But in many we found that there was no current through them at all, and in others that it was so feeble as to produce no perceptible effect in removing the foul air. In those asylums in which the flues terminate in perpendicular shafts, the rarefaction of the air is provided for by means of the fire which heats the water for the baths, the boiler of which is placed in the roof. As the water for this purpose is usually heated only once a week, the extraction would be almost inoperative at other times, supposing that it answered. But either from the fire being insufficient, or not in a proper position, the amount of rarefaction was inadequate to produce the power necessary to extract the air from a large number of rooms, and especially from those placed at remote distances, and practically the ventilation is very imperfect.

At Cork, the system of ventilation is similar to that so successfully adopted in many of the prisons and large institutions in England. The foul air in the two lower floors of the building is taken out of each room by openings just above the floor which communicate by means of flues with large extraction shafts. As we understood that the expense and inefficiency of this system would be brought before us as a subject for remission, we carefully examined every part of it. The openings in the various rooms appeared to be ample in size, and to communicate with flues of sufficient area; but in the associated dormitories they were perhaps insufficient in number. The iron gratings covering these openings we found entirely blocked up with particles of dust and dirt, which appeared to have been accumulating for a length of time, and completely obstructed the passage of air through them. In several rooms we had these gratings cleared out, but there did not appear to be any extraction going on, either in that part of the building communicating with the shaft in which the fire was lighted, or that in which there was no fire. On the upper floor the flues were taken out of the rooms immediately under the ceiling, and in this part there was a free current. The extraction shafts, three in number, are of considerable area, and at their base, just under the roof, the fire is placed which heats the boiler for the baths, and at the same time is intended to rarefy the air in the extraction tower. The top of these towers is covered in for the purpose of preventing the rain beating down, and the sides are also inclosed by louvres, the openings in which do not at all appear to be sufficient for the area of the shaft. We think that to this, and the incapacity of the fire connected with the boiler at the bottom of the shaft adequately to rarefy the air, the inefficacy of the ventilation may be in a great measure attributed.

The principle of ventilation adopted in the Cork Asylum seems to be the most simple and approved; and, though at present it has failed, we consider that the outlay incurred in introducing it can hardly be regarded as unnecessary, provided it can be rendered effective. The adoption of some artificial means of carrying off the vitiated air, independent of open windows, in all institutions where large masses of human beings are congregated together, and especially in lunatic asylums, is a matter of primary importance, and the omission of this in the Mullingar and Sligo Asylums we regard as a great defect. Though the systems adopted in the other asylums which we have visited, are at present inoperative, we still think that, as the flues are already made, means may be employed to remedy the defect, and probably at trifling cost. In many cases the area of the openings into the several rooms is obviously too small, and wherever the perpendicular flues terminate in the roof they should be taken into shafts or towers containing fire-boxes. The observations we have made in reference to the ventilating shafts at Cork would equally apply to other asylums in which they are employed.

We would suggest that the opinion of some engineer practically acquainted with the ventilation of large buildings should be taken in reference to the system of ventilation employed in the new district asylums; and that the Board of Works should carry out such measures as he may suggest to render it effective, and that the additional expense should be borne by the Treasury.

Water Supply.—The usual supply of water is derived from wells, which in several instances have failed; and at Cork and Sligo considerable expense has been incurred in consequence. At the former the supply was so precarious, that it became necessary to convey water from the top of the hill, by means of pipes, into a large tank at the back of the building, which, being on a high level, forces it into the various cisterns, and an unfailing supply is thus obtained. At Sligo, the well was so constantly pumped dry, that advantage was taken of the pipe which supplies the adjacent workhouse with water, and a branch taken from it to the well. Further, to provide against any deficiency, a tank is now being made close to the river, the water from which will be taken into it, and pumped up for the service of the house. We consider that the expense attending these alterations, both at Cork and Sligo, should be remitted.

At the New Richmond Asylum a complaint was made of an occasional deficiency in the supply of water, but no means had been taken to ascertain whether this arose from the well being pumped dry, or from some imperfection in the pumps themselves.

With the exception of Cork, the water is raised in all the district asylums by means of a two or three-lift pump, to which a double crank and fly-wheel are attached. These are worked by four or six patients, and are generally placed in small inclosed sheds, which are stated to be oppressively hot in summer. At Sligo, we found the pump shed to be ten feet eight inches long, eight feet wide, and seven feet six inches to the wall-plate, and in several other asylums they were equally confined.

The employment of insane patients at laborious work of this description was universally denounced by the officers of the asylums we visited, both on medical and other grounds, and, in some instances, obvious ill consequences were stated to have arisen from it. In this opinion we entirely concur, and consider both the description and the amount of labour thus imposed upon the patients, to be highly objectionable, and not calculated to improve either their mental or physical condition. In large institutions also, in which an ample supply of water is so essential to the health and comforts of the inmates, it is most important that it should not be solely dependent upon so uncertain a means of raising it, and we think it would add greatly to the well-working of these establishments, if steam or horse-power were generally substituted for the manual labour now employed. Should this suggestion not be adopted, the substitution of a capstan, of large diameter, for the present crank, by which the labour could be distributed over a large number of patients, and which should be inclosed by a large, well lighted, and well ventilated shed, would, to a certain extent, be an improvement upon the present system. The hot water for the baths is warmed by means means of boilers placed in the upper floor of the building, which are heated periodically, when the baths are required. It appears that it takes from three to five hours to heat the water, and even then the supply is not sufficient to allow each patient to have clean water, and consequently several use the same bath. If a bath is required in any case of emergency, water has to be procured from the kitchen or laundry; but the most serious want of a proper supply of hot water is felt in the case of patients who are dirty in their habits, and require frequent baths or ablutions, and for whom cold water is necessarily used. Should steam be employed for pumping or cooking, we would strongly recommend that the water should be heated by the same means, and, in the meantime, we think that a constant fire should be kept up under the boilers, so as to ensure a supply of hot water at all hours.

SEWAGE DRAINS.

THE method usually employed for disposing of the sewage from the new asylums is to convey it into tanks, erected at a short distance from the buildings, from which the contents are periodically pumped up for distribution upon the land.

These tanks are closely covered over and seem to be of sufficient size, and the complaints of any nuisance arising from them were rare. In several instances the pumps attached to them were stated to be out of order and inefficient, arising most probably from some obstruction to the valves or pipes, and consequently there was an overflow in some cases, which ran to waste and was complained of. At Sligo a separate tank was in course of erection to receive the overflow, and it seems desirable that in all the district asylums every provision should be made, both to prevent any nuisance arising from this source, as well as to employ the sewage profitably in irrigation. Frequent complaints were made of the drains being imperfect, and inadequate to the work they have to perform. The main sewers seem to be of sufficient size, and generally properly constructed; but some of the smaller drains appear to get at times choked, and, in some instances, from rats working their way into them. The employment of strong glazed socket-pipes would, no doubt, have been more effectual in preventing this than the brick drains at present employed.

The nuisance and complaints arising from the sewers may, however, in a great measure be attributed to the want of more watchful care upon the part of the attendants, and to the entire omission of any provision for flushing the drains. At the Cork Asylum the position of the reservoir, and the ample supply of water, afford every facility for this precaution, and we consider it a subject of such importance that we would suggest that steps should be taken in all the district asylums to provide means of flushing the drains once or twice a week, and also that any particular drains which are liable to become obstructed should be taken up, and socket-pipes of sufficient diameter substituted for them.

FURNITURE FITTINGS.

THE furniture supplied to the new district asylums is scanty, and of the commonest description; and a too severe economy has evidently been exercised in this respect, and considerable additions are required for the comfort and convenience of the patients. We had occasion generally to remark upon the unsuitable and dangerous description of bedstead which had been supplied to the new asylums, and which, besides being bad in design, were, in many instances, most roughly and imperfectly made. This was especially the case at Mullingar; and several which we examined, and which had not been used, were so faulty and put together so badly, that pieces were broken off with the greatest ease, and might form very dangerous instruments in the hands of patients.

The frame is made of common bar iron screwed together with nuts, which can readily be unscrewed by patients, and instances were mentioned in which they had been taken to pieces by them in this way. The bottom, instead of being of sacking stretched on rods, as is usually the case in English asylums, is formed of laths rivetted to the frame, which can be broken out without difficulty, and would form very dangerous weapons in the hands of an insane patient. The laths are also liable to rust, and then ironmould the bedding, and straw mats have been employed in some asylums to prevent this. The head and foot is formed of sheet-iron, which is easily cracked, and sharp fragments broken off. Projecting from each angle of these, a perpendicular stud, about two and a half inches high, rises, which offers a ready means for a patient hanging himself from it, and suicides have not unfrequently taken place in England from bedsteads offering less obvious means of accomplishing such an object. We consider these bedsteads unsafe, and totally unfit for a lunatic asylum.

Having thus gone through the principal points bearing upon the object of our inquiry, and indicated, as concisely as we could, the grounds upon which we consider that remissions may in some cases be made in accordance with the provisions of the Act of last Session, and in other cases that additional works should be carried out without charge to the ratepayers, we beg leave to refer to our annexed Reports, on the Asylums separately, as containing the details of each case; and we add the following summary of our recommendations:

SEPARATE REPORTS.

(1.) BELFAST.

WE visited this asylum on the 31st of August, but there were no governors present; and Dr. Stewart, resident physician, who attended, stated that there was no specific complaint as to the building itself. The only cause of dissatisfaction had been the great delay in the completion of the works, and the utter want of control by the governors in regard to the arrangement of the new buildings. The works were begun in 1852, and were not expected to be completed in less than two months after the date of our visit.

Mr. Lanyon, the architect, who was present, informed us that the delay had arisen from the failure of the contractor, and the necessity of the works being taken up by the architect for completion.

The outlay consists of 4,311*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.* for the purchase of 12 A. 3 R. 19 P. of land, and 12,397*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.*, the expense of the inclosure walls and additions to the main building, and for furniture, fixtures, &c. The plan was originally upon the radiating principle, like those of Londonderry, Ballinasloe, Limerick, and Clonmel. The original accommodation was for 104 patients; the additions gave an increase of about 210.

The present airing yards, which are enlargements of the old ones, are at the rear, and still very confined and gloomy, consequently quite unfit for the purpose. We are of opinion that advantage should be taken of the recent outlay which has given so considerable an increase of land, to remove them to a more cheerful and healthy aspect.

The original grant was for 17,527*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* The expenditure, it is supposed, will not much exceed 16,000*l.*, leaving a considerable balance in favour of the asylum, applicable to the improvement of the yards.

We do not see any grounds for recommending any remission upon the expenditure.

(2.) LONDONDERRY.

WE kept our appointment here on the 3d of September, and met Sir R. Ferguson, M. P., the chairman of the governors, attended by Mr. Cluff, the resident superintendent.

There has been a very judicious outlay of 1,412*l.* 3*s.* in the purchase of a field of 15 A. 0 R. 18 P. It is on a higher level than the asylum, is surrounded by a high and thick quickset hedge, which forms an inclosure, and precludes the necessity of any boundary wall. It is separated from the present grounds merely by a public road; but as building land it is most valuable, and affords singular facilities for the erection of a distinct building on the associated principle, for the reception of a class of harmless, quiet patients. The questionable policy of the additions recently made to the old asylum at Ballinasloe, which, like this, is upon the radiating system, leads us in this place to observe, that the greatest caution should be exercised in providing additional accommodation in this, or indeed in any of the district asylums. No plan for this purpose should be adopted without the mature consideration of the governors, assisted by the medical officers, and the full approbation of the inspectors of lunatics.

The plan suggested in the last valuable report of the inspectors of lunatic asylums for providing for the insane at present in the workhouses, and at the same time for relieving the asylums of the harmless and incurable cases, by erecting auxiliary houses for them adjacent to the main building, and devoting the latter to the reception of the more recent and acute cases, coincides so entirely with our views upon this subject, that we shall be glad if any observations of ours give the least additional weight to their recommendation. The erection of plain but cheerful and substantial buildings of this description, consisting of associated dormitories, large day rooms, and the requisite conveniences, without the extensive corridors which occupy so large a proportion of the space and add so greatly to the expense of the new district asylums, ought not necessarily to be costly. In many instances these buildings might probably be so arranged as to admit of connexion with the main building by means of a covered way, so that the present kitchen and offices would serve for both.

The present asylum at Londonderry, which, as we have already observed, is upon the radiating principle, might be enlarged by raising it, along the front, another storey, but its extension in any other way seems to be impracticable. Considerable outlay is required to remedy defects in the present building. The want of water-closets in the galleries is greatly felt, there being only one in the house, and the patients are consequently forced to make use of the privies in the yards, which are in a very dilapidated state and perfect nuisances. The want of lavatories, store-rooms, proper rooms for the nurses and attendants, baths, &c., are also serious defects; and the water supply and drainage, and also the laundry and washhouse, require a total revision. In remodelling an old institution of this description, it seems almost to be more essential that an architect of experience in the arrangement of lunatic asylums should be employed than in the erection of a new one. It will require all the practical skill and intelligence of one who, being well acquainted with the peculiar wants, &c., of such an establishment, could recommend the most judicious mode of improving the present building and making such additional buildings as should most advantageously contribute to the classification and treatment of the patients.

There is no claim to remission in this case, no outlay for building having taken place.

(3.) OMAGH.

THIS asylum, an Elizabethan building of limestone, with dressed quoins, &c., is situated rather more than a mile from the town, and on a slightly rising ground, with a fine view of the river and distant hills. Attached to it are about 30 English acres of land, which afford ample occupation to the patients; and when the grounds are laid out and planted, the external aspect of the institution will be greatly improved.

We visited the asylum on the 4th of September, pursuant to the notice already given; but there were none of the governors present. We were attended, however, by Dr. West, the resident superintendent, who afforded us the fullest information.

This building has not been erected conformably with the contract plans, the corridors having been subsequently changed to the rear, that is, from the north side to the south, and the infirmary, which is a distinct building, has been erected upon a reduced scale, and is of one storey instead of two, as originally designed. It had not yet been occupied when examined by us.

The general disposition of the plan is ably laid down, and the accommodation for the patients very complete.

Immediately behind the entrance-hall is the recreation or music room, 38 feet long by 23 wide, and 19 feet 5 inches high. This is occasionally used for the patients; and Dr. West speaks favourably of the influence exercised by assembling the patients for music and dancing.

The officers' apartments are ample, and the domestic offices spacious and airy. The style is simple, and there is no extravagance or waste to any material extent; we have consequently no recommendation to make for remission on this head.

There are several settlements in the central building, and some of the masonry will have to be taken out and replaced with new. The lintel of the central entrance doorway is mainly upheld by the wooden frame. One of the front walls of the east wing has settled under a projecting and overhanging chimney-stack. There are several serious settlements over the doorways to the right in the entrance hall, which continue up every storey over.

The damp exists to a considerable degree in those external walls exposed to rain, driven by eastern or western wind; and it is to be observed that the lining lining bricks are generally of a porous quality, having been insufficiently burned.

The timber of the lintels and wood-bricks appears frequently to have been worked in green, and has shrunk so as to leave the door-heads and blocks loose in the wall.

The joinery in some parts has shrunk, and will require re-framing and being put into complete order, and the shutters now nailed up, to prevent patients escaping by the windows, to be fitted with proper fastenings.

The ceilings are so much cracked, and the last coat so rotten, that considerable reparation will be required. Whenever the rain has penetrated the outer walls, particularly in the officers' residences, the plastering has become quite rotten, and has fallen off in large flakes.

The water-closets generally appeared to work ill, and most of them overflow in their soil-pipes, flooding the ceilings and walls beneath, and require remodelling.

The arrangement for the supply of water is very insufficient; and the means used to obtain it, by the labour of patients, is objectionable. Means have been taken to obtain water from the river by a machine, but this is precarious.

We consider that the expense of remedying these defects of construction and other imperfections should be allowed, and they should either be executed by the Board of Works or by the governors, subject to the control and supervision of that Board, as recommended by us in a previous part of this Report, and paid for by Government.

(4.) SLIGO.

ON the 6th of September we met the Right honourable John Wynne and other governors of this asylum; and received the complaints of these gentlemen, which were principally directed against the costly nature of the works, and the increased outlay caused by the position selected for the building. It was stated that the situation would have been more advantageous as originally selected by the architect, so as to have allowed of a better distribution of the airing courts, and to have avoided the cutting and carting away of the ground, and the construction of a basement not used. Objection was also made to the cost of the earthwork, occasioned by want of vigilant superintendence and mode of execution.

The style of the architecture is Elizabethan; the masses are good, but much too floridly carried out for such an edifice.

The spot originally contemplated by the architect for the building was altered, and the position which it now occupies decided upon by the Board of Works. We concur with the governors in thinking the alteration not judicious, both as regards the building itself and the distribution of the airing yards, and as entailing greater and unnecessary expense.

Considerable reductions were made by the Board of Works upon the original estimates and contracts; but there still remain moulded projecting cornices and strings, ornamental gables, parapets, and labels round the windows, and at the quoins and bay-windows, and other decorations, effective in appearance, but expensive in execution, and not requisite in such a building. A portion of the plastering and joinery of the inside is too ornamental, and the plain work of the former very roughly finished off.

We think that the introduction of lines of horizontal strings very judicious for throwing off the rain, preventing the water from running down the face of the walls, and the damp arising therefrom; but we are of opinion that they should have been more simple in design.

We beg, therefore, to recommend a remission of the sum of 3,000 l. to meet the useless and unnecessary expenditure in carrying out such a class of building.

The governors complain of the want of steam or horse-power to raise the water for the supply of the establishment, as they consider the use of labour by patients very prejudicial, and interfering with their recovery.

We are of opinion that the water-closets should be entirely remodelled; the door-frames, &c. of the interior securely fixed and finished off; the damp effectually remedied; and all imperfect work made good, without cost to the ratepayers, irrespective of the remission above recommended.

The position of the airing yards is very objectionable, and was justly complained of. As there are admirable opportunities for placing them to the front and sides of the building, we recommend that plans be drawn out, with the concurrence of the governors, and submitted to the Board of Works, and when approved, that they be carried out at the expense of the Treasury.

(5.) BALLINASLOE.

WE visited the asylum on the 10th September, and were attended by Mr. McKernan, the manager, Mr. Kempster, the architect, and Mr. Kirkaldy, one of the governors.

The works, which had been recently executed, consist of some additions to the old asylum, the original plan of which is on the radiating principle. These additions have been made at the extreme ends of each arm, and give day rooms and dormitories, with certain conveniences, as baths, water-closets and sculleries to the corridors, and also two infirmaries. But the asylum, which was originally wholly composed of single rooms for patients, has gained only a very limited increase numerically, for the new buildings have been mainly a substitution of improved accommodation, in lieu of certain rooms hitherto unfit for the purpose, and which have been done away with in consequence.

These new works have been executed in conformity with the character of the original building, and to a certain extent less expensively. There has been no extravagance or waste.

We are of opinion that the airing yards want extension, and that a steam apparatus is required for the domestic purposes, as also some steam or horse-power for the hot water supply and pumping up the cold water instead of the patients' labour. The means of ventilation have been somewhat provided for; but as they are intended to act in connexion with the flues of the chimneys from the fire-places of the day rooms or dormitories, which are seldom lighted, the air-flues are almost, if not quite, inoperative.

We cannot recommend any remission in this case.

(6.) LIMERICK.

THE Commissioners visited this asylum on the 12th September.

It is an old asylum on the radiating principle, and no additions have hitherto been made to it.

Much judgment will be required whenever the subject of additional accommodation comes under consideration.

The Board of Works recently negotiated with the Railway Company, whose terminus adjoins the boundary, an interchange of land by which the asylum gains about—

Fifteen acres, at a cost of - - - -	936	2	8
Building boundary walls, and repairs - -	692	4	8
	£.	1,628	7 4

We consider the acquisition of this land very judicious, and there have been no complaints as to the cost.

We have no remission to recommend.

(7.) KILLARNEY.

(7.) KILLARNEY.

THE Commissioners met on the 13th September, Lord Castlerosse, M. P., chairman, and several other of the governors.

The committee complained generally of the too-decorative character of the façade, the quantity of cut stone being too great, and it was suggested that brick reveals and mullions would have been more appropriate. It was also stated that too much accommodation had been provided for the wants of the district, and that expensive repairs had been requisite from the unsoundness of the construction.

We do not think, considering the style of building adopted, that there has been an excess in the use of cut stone and ornamental work beyond the sum of 822 l. 12 s. 10 d. We are not of opinion that the general adoption of brick-work round the openings of the windows would have been appropriate, or even desirable in an economic point of view; for we have ascertained that in some cases where, from a desire of saving, the Board of Works have had such work done it has proved, if anything, more costly, and has much disfigured the building.

It is true that there are now only 150 patients in the house out of the 250 for whom accommodation is provided, but from what has occurred elsewhere we think this excess of accommodation will not ultimately be regretted, as we have little doubt that it will presently prove not at all too large for the district. Until, however, the room is required for paupers, we would beg to suggest that a great boon would be conferred upon patients just above this class, if arrangements were made to admit them into this asylum. The rate charged for their maintenance should, of course, leave some surplus after covering all their expenses, and would probably then be lower than is charged in private asylums. Besides the direct benefit which would thus arise, the cost of the patients now in the house would be reduced by certain establishment charges being spread over a larger number of inmates.

It was evident that, from the nature of the construction, an expense of 632 l. 7 s. 1 d. had been already incurred to remedy the defects caused by the damp, and which seemed to have proved successful; but the defect had been remedied in only a part of the building, and we considered it to be our duty to urge the Board of Works and the Irish Executive to have the reparations completed at once, so as to render the building sound and weather-tight before the winter set in. We are of opinion that the cost of these operations ought not to fall upon the ratepayers, and that this expense forms a reasonable and just ground for remission on account of unsoundness in the original works. Water is supplied from a well, raised by the labour of the patients, who are overtasked; consequently the supply is insufficient, and a derangement of all the cleaning arrangements necessarily ensues. It is therefore desirable to have a machine moved by steam or horse-power.

All the airing yards are at the back of the building, with a northern aspect, and are small and cheerless. We think that new airing courts, in a more eligible situation, should be formed on each side, with southern aspects and of suitable size.

The water-closets should be remodelled as suggested in our General Report.

(8.) CORK.

WE visited this asylum on the 15th of September, and minutely examined the several buildings and the grounds, accompanied by Dr. Power, the resident manager, in order to be prepared for the meeting of the governors, which was fixed for the 17th. The plot of ground is situated on the side of a hill with a very rapid fall from north to south, the principal front facing the latter aspect. The selection of the site seems to have been a matter of considerable discussion at the time among the governors, and the present plot appears to have been selected from several under consideration, as offering advantages which others possessed in a less degree, or not at all. The abundant supply of pure water from an original spring which rises within the grounds themselves, may have offered a very material inducement. But the rapid fall of the ground seemed to us to have been productive of expense of construction, and to have presented great difficulties of arrangement, particularly in reference to the airing yards. The governors, however, do not object to the purchase, nor claim any remission on account of it.

The airing courts were originally placed to the front of the building, which was considered by the architect to be the proper position for them; but they were subsequently removed to the rear, with the sanction of the governors and resident medical officer, to whose decision the question was referred by the Board of Works, as shown by the minutes of meetings held in April and May 1851. Besides being quite inadequate in size for the number of patients they are intended for (at the time of our visit there were 86 in one yard and 54 in another), they are unsafe and totally unfit for insane patients on account of their steepness, the bank upon which they are placed rising 13 feet 6 inches in a distance of 55 feet 6 inches from the floor line of the building to the upper walk, upon which a shed is placed against the wall. From their position they are necessarily so much shaded, that in winter the resident physician objects to the patients using them, on account of the cold, and consequently those patients who are not in a state to walk in other parts of the grounds are kept in the house for long periods. The airing courts at each end of the building project beyond it, and consequently have both sun and a fine view to the south over the valley of the Lee; but these are also much too small, and require judiciously laying out and planting.

In some of the airing courts, and those occupied by the most refractory patients, we found deep areas against the building for the purpose of lighting the basement story, surrounded by walls about four feet six inches high. Attempts were stated to have been made by patients to jump over these, and they are so obviously unsafe in their present state, that we think immediate steps should be taken either to arch them over, or make them otherwise secure.

We consider that it would still be most desirable if a large garden could be made to the front of each wing for the more quiet class of patients, the walls of which might be kept low, by means of a sunk fence, and thus not interfere with the general appearance of the building. This did not appear to be impracticable from the contracted space in front and peculiar formation of the ground, and we think that advantage should be taken of the break between the blocks of building to form cheerful airing courts in that position.

We find by a minute of the Board of Governors, held on the 31st December 1846, presided over by Lord Bandon, that it was proposed by James Roche, esq., and seconded by James Murrough, esq., and resolved:—"That the governors fully approved of the plans, &c., for the new lunatic asylum, as laid before them by Mr. Atkins."

We saw these original designs, which were more expensive than the building as now carried out, and contemplated a detached chapel with a lofty spire, and also a detached music hall, the expenditure on both of which has been materially curtailed by the Board of Works.

At our meeting with the governors on the 17th September, objection was taken to various items of the expenditure which had been incurred, and subsequently we received from them a statement of the several sums from which they seek relief, under two heads:

One for works and materials, amounting to	10,775	3	4
The other for professional services in the erection	4,401	2	-
Making a Total of	£. 15,176	5	4

Great stress had been laid upon the unnecessarily ornamental character of the elevations. But the drawings of the façades do not present any features of a decorative character which might not reasonably have been admitted in a design already approved by the governors. Economy and compactness would have been produced by bringing the three masses of buildings close together, instead of extending them over a frontage of 965 feet, and leaving them separated by intervals, and the working of the institution would, no doubt, have have been greatly facilitated. Much walling would also have been saved, greater warmth produced, and there would have been less exposure to the weather. There is an appearance of costliness in the wrought stonework of the quoins, window-mullions, and reveals, as executed in some buttresses and projecting windows. The playfulness of the outline, the gable-ends, chimney-shafts and capped staircase towers, rising from the front, and the ventilating turrets, also give an aspect of costliness.

We are prepared to admit that a considerable portion of ornamental stone work, some construction in the basement intended for a system of heating and ventilation, subsequently abandoned, and some other items (as well as the whole of the expense incurred in remedying the damp caused by original unsound construction, amounting to 1,707 l. 7 s. 8 d.), are just and reasonable grounds for the claim of remission. We beg therefore to recommend for your Lordships' consideration that the sum of 4,305 l. 12 s. 4 d. should be allowed, in addition to the 1,707 l. 7 s. 8 d., as a deduction from the gross cost of the asylum, making altogether 6,013 l. But we are of opinion that no deduction can be reasonably expected from the charges for professional services and superintendence of the works in the erection of the building, as they are necessary expenses, and, with a very slight exception, have been paid, not to officers of the Board of Works, but to the architects, surveyor, measurer, and clerk of the works, employed for this specific purpose. We think that the water-closets should be rectified by the Board of Works, and that this expense and any outlay required to render the system of ventilation effective, should not be borne by the ratepayers.

(9.) CLONMEL.

THIS asylum was visited on the 19th of September, when several of the governors were present. Dr. Flynn, the resident physician, was unavoidably absent. There was no specific cause of complaint as to extravagance, the main ground of objection being the want of a statement of accounts to show the nature of the outlay upon which an assessment was claimed. Upon application to the authorities in Dublin, we were enabled, at a subsequent period, to furnish the governors with full particulars of the works executed, which mainly consisted of an enclosure wall to surround the 20 A. 0 R. 30 P. of land recently added, which had been a very judicious purchase at the moderate price of 2,031 l. 17 s. 11 d. The wall, upon inspection, appeared to be admirably executed, and very cheaply done. We have, therefore, in this case no grounds for recommending any remission.

The governors present stated that considerable additional accommodation would shortly be required to provide for the increasing wants of the county; and we found the beds too closely packed in the infirmaries. It was stated that if the Government would allow them to execute the works themselves, they might be willing to undertake the necessary addition.

We venture to suggest that, if it could be legally done, the governors be empowered to employ an architect, and to prepare plans to be submitted for the approval of the Government, and to execute the work; subject, nevertheless, to the ratification of the contracts by Government, and to the occasional inspection of the Government officers during the progress of erection, to ensure the due fulfilment of the contracts and sound construction.

The experiment might be made, in order to see if such works could be efficiently carried out by public bodies, and thus remove much of the irksome responsibility attaching to the Government Boards. It might do away with the dissatisfaction on the part of the ratepayers, which at present arises from such operations being carried into effect under the direction of the Board of Works, without the controlling and concurrent action of the local authorities.

The architect who should be employed ought to be experienced in asylums, as the additions, from the defective nature of the original plan, which is on the radiating principle, will require considerable judgment, in order to combine well the new works with the existing buildings, and in conformity with the present improved treatment of the patients.

Perhaps detached buildings, like those already suggested for Londonderry, for quiet and harmless patients, might offer greater advantages than enlarging the present asylum, and the ground recently purchased offers every facility for this purpose.

(10.) KILKENNY.

WE inspected this asylum on the 13th of September, attended by Dr. Lalor, medical superintendent, and met the Bishop of Ossory and Ferns, and several other members of the committee. It was a subject of complaint that the district should be liable for the expenditure incurred in making good defects, and parts of the buildings were pointed out to us where damp existed to a great extent, especially in the officers' residences in every storey, particularly in the south and east and south-west aspects. The wet had also penetrated through the walls in parts occupied by the patients. We had the wall laid open at the west end of the uppermost corridor, and found the bricks to be tolerably good and hard burned, but the work was ill packed, and hollow pockets left. We examined the joints of the south front, and had some opened. Most of these we found to have only a small depth of front mortar, and the work behind was found to be hollow, so as to admit easily of the insertion of a large knife or tool. We found also some buttresses, useless for any constructive purposes, and not necessary for ornament. Those in the wings are of very unsound execution, not properly bonded into the walls, in fact, independent of them; and some of those in the central building obstruct materially the light and air, so that if removed, which we strongly recommend, as they are in no way structurally necessary, the buildings would be considerably improved, particularly in the basement and entrance floors.

The plastering of the ceilings throughout is extensively cracked. Some doubts were expressed as to the soundness of the slating; but we inspected it at once, and subsequently had it examined by a slater. The quality, sizes, and laying of the slates were found to be satisfactory, but the nails, instead of being zinc composition, as required in the specification, are of iron. The whole of the roofs are now sound. We were led to conclude that the clerk of the works had very much neglected his duty during the progress of the building.

It appears to us just and reasonable that the county should be liable only for the amount of the original erections, and that they should not be charged for the expenses incurred already or which may still be necessary, to render the walls dry and weather-tight, to repair and finish off the plastering, to make good any unsound woodwork and joinery or other fittings, to remodel the water-closets, and rectify those matters generally, many of them of minor moment, but still essential to the comfort of the officers, which still may require reparation or further work, in order to put the establishment into complete working order.

We are not of opinion that useless or unnecessary expense has been, to any material extent, incurred in this asylum, the plan of which is laid out with great skill, and the exterior designed with considerable taste.

The two airing courts originally provided on each side have been thrown into one, but their aspect and the want of sun is very objectionable, and there is no view from them. Although many of the patients walk in the grounds attached to this establishment, the want of another airing court necessitates at times the association of noisy and excited patients with the more quiet and orderly, to their obvious annoyance and disadvantage. We would recommend, at all events, that the present airing courts should be partly turfed over and planted, and made as cheerful as their position permits. And it would be desirable to form an additional one on each side, with a southern aspect, for a quiet class of patients.

It appears that this asylum is likely to prove insufficient for the cases that will probably present themselves for admission. The disposition of the plan is such as to admit easily of extension when required, and a distinct infirmary might be erected.

(11.) MULLINGAR.

THIS asylum was twice visited, viz., on the 8th and 22d of September; on the first occasion more especially for the purpose of inspection, and we only met there one governor and Dr. Berkeley, the medical resident, there not having been time to give due notice, so as to enable the governors to be present. On the second visit, on the 22d of September, there was a full attendance of the governors, who delivered in a paper embodying the objections and complaints which they had to allege in regard to the building.

We are of opinion that there has been an unnecessary use of the Tullamore stone and ornamental work, and recommend that the sum of 1,715 l. be remitted on account of this useless expenditure, which, although assisting the decorative character of the building, is not called for in an edifice of this nature. We conceive that the asylum should be rendered weather-tight, and that any expense already incurred to remedy unsoundness and various other defects alluded to in previous parts of this Report, or that must be incurred to effect this purpose, should not be charged on the ratepayers, as the building should have been left sound and creditable. This defect is not attributable to the materials, which are excellent, but to the work, the stones being set too near to each other with close joints, which prevented the flushing up with a sufficient quantity of mortar to close effectually the joints and prevent the passage of the soaking rains.

The attention of the Board of Works has been called by us to other minor points of detail, which do not properly come within the scope of this Report, but with which we thought it desirable to make the Board of Works acquainted.

The governors complain that there is no infirmary erected, although it formed part of the original contract; and they are of opinion that it may be soon required. It might be desirable, if the governors were disposed to undertake the erection of the infirmary, to allow them to do so, the plans being submitted for the approval of the Government; and the confirmation of the contracts, and the verification of compliance therewith, being subject to the Board of Works, whose officers should, in addition to the governors' architect, occasionally inspect the work during progress, to ensure sound construction and fulfilment of the contract.

The governors are anxious that effectual provision should be made for adequately heating the house, and for obtaining hot baths at a short notice in different parts.

(12.) RICHMOND ASYLUM, DUBLIN.

(New Building.)

THIS asylum was visited on the 30th August and the 24th September, and on both occasions we were attended by Mr. Wrigley, the superintendent, and Mr. Murray, the architect; but there were no governors present, nor had we before us any complaints or claims for remission.

The old asylum, which had originally been built on the radiating principle, being found insufficient, the new erections consist of a separate building, calculated to contain 162 patients, and a detached group, composed of a central chapel, flanked by a male infirmary on one side and by a female infirmary on the other. There is also a porter's lodge, and an enclosure wall to the plot of ground recently purchased, and on which these buildings have been placed. The cost of the ground was 1,708 l. 17 s. 9 d., including several houses. It immediately adjoins the old asylum grounds, there being an underground communication passing under a public road, so as to afford direct access from one to the other.

The airing yards are at the rear, very small, and, at the time of our inspection, in a very unfinished state, and quite unfit for the occupation of insane patients. We recommend their being removed to the front, to be of enlarged dimensions, and to be laid out as gardens, with trees and grass-plots. The ventilation of the main building and infirmaries appeared to us to be very imperfect; and we found that the provision of the architect, in the original drawings for this purpose, had been omitted by the Board of Works from motives of economy. The windows generally acted imperfectly, and those on the staircases, being wholly fixed, did not allow of being opened for ventilation. The water-closets were as defective as those in all the other new asylums, and much complained of by the officers. Sculleries are wanting in the corridors, and the closets or presses for clothes are still unsupplied.

There was considerable appearance of damp in parts, and particularly in the chapel, which should be immediately remedied.

The infirmaries, which are calculated for 26 males and 26 females, are inconvenient in their arrangements, not being provided with single rooms for patients—a necessary precaution in case of infectious diseases, or illness of a serious nature. The provision for drains seemed complete, but there was a prevalence of foul smells, and the chimneys generally smoked, especially that in the kitchen, and there was insufficient accommodation for the servants.

We remarked that the rooms appropriated to the matron in the infirmary were not conveniently placed, and their situation caused her unnecessary fatigue and trouble, and interfered with the immediate discharge of her duties.

The supply of water seemed defective and uncertain, and was raised by a 3-inch barrel pump worked by four men. We could not ascertain precisely why the water had not been laid on from the public waterworks, which we presume must be sufficiently high to reach the upper storeys of the asylum.

Although we do not consider it necessary to submit any suggestion as to remission, yet we beg to recommend that the defects above pointed out should be at once remedied and made good, and various little matters and jobs, which require to be completed, at once executed, in order to put the asylum into complete working order, and which should have been done before the asylum was handed over for occupation. The cost of these works should not be charged to the ratepayers.

The chapel, originally built for 300 patients, was complained of by the clergymen, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, as being insufficient in size for their congregations, which were stated to consist of 345 Roman Catholics, and 123 Protestants; and objections were made to the carrying on divine service by both communions within the same chapel, the separately apportioned parts being divided only by a screen. The chapel serves for the patients of both the old and new asylums.

† Add 2,845 l. 6 s. 9 d. for Infirmary, which belongs to both Asylums.

Note.—At the suggestion of the Inspectors of Lunatic Asylums, no Infirmary was built at Mullingar, it being intended to make portions of the corridors available for the purpose.

In the cases of Belfast, Londonderry, Ballinasloe, Limerick, Clonmel, and Richmond, the land purchased was in addition to the grounds already attached to the Asylums. In the other cases it was the first and entire extent of land provided.

In the cases of Belfast, Sligo, Mullingar, and Richmond, the total cost set down will not give the entire expense, as the accounts in these cases have not yet been finally settled.

Office of Public Works, 2 November 1855.

COPY of a TREASURY MINUTE, dated 18 December 1855.

My Lords have before them the Report of the Commissioners, appointed by the Minute of this Board of 10th August last, to inquire into the erection of lunatic asylums in Ireland, with the view of ascertaining whether there were any grounds for exercising the powers vested in their Lordships by the 6th section of the Act 18 & 19 Vict., c. 109, viz., to relieve the counties in Ireland from the repayment of a portion of the sums advanced from the Consolidated Fund for the erection of lunatic asylums.

The Commissioners have recommended that in certain cases remission should be made of sums expended by the Board of Works, upon the grounds of undue cost for ornamental work, or for work done twice over, owing to original malconstruction.

And they further recommend that, in certain cases, considerable sums should be expended without charge to the counties, in order to replace existing defective work, or to render efficient that which, without a further outlay, would not be available for the purposes of the establishments.

My Lords are disposed to concur in the view of the matter taken by the Commissioners of Inquiry; the recommendations they have submitted appear to be founded upon a personal knowledge acquired by careful inspection and inquiry, and the grounds upon which they base their recommendations are precisely those contemplated in the section of the Act above quoted.

Write accordingly to the Commissioners of Public Works, Ireland, transmitting to them a copy of this Report, and authorise them to abate the following amounts from the gross sums to be recovered by grand jury presentments from the counties liable to repayment of advances from the Consolidated Fund; viz.

ASYLUM.	SUM TO BE REMITTED.
Sligo - - - - -	3,000
Killarney - - - - -	1,455
Cork - - - - -	6,013
Mullingar - - - - -	1,715

State further, that my Lords propose to carry out the recommendations of the Commissioners of Inquiry, as to the additional works to be done without charge to the counties, in the following manner, and they desire that the Commissioners of Public Works will govern themselves accordingly; viz.

A copy of this Report to be communicated to each Board of Governors by the Commissioners of Public Works, and the governors requested to employ an architect to prepare plans and estimates of the works supposed to be comprehended in the recommendations of the Commissioners of Inquiry. These plans and estimates to be forwarded by the governors to the Commissioners of Public Works, and by them transmitted to this Board. My Lords will then submit the whole of the papers to the gentlemen who have been employed in this inquiry, for their report as to whether the works so included are bonâ fide the works contemplated in their present report. The decision of these gentlemen will guide my Lords in any directions they may issue in the matter, and if my Lords shall sanction the said works or any part of them, the same shall be carried out by the Local Board of Governors, subject only to the certificates of the officer appointed by the Board of Works to inspect from time to time the progress of the works ; and without these certificates no payment whatever will be made.

No subsequent responsibility to attach to the Board of Works in respect of any portion of the works carried out in this way.

My Lords will be prepared to submit to Parliament in the estimates of the Board of Works for "Public Buildings, Ireland," the necessary provision for this charge, detailed accounts of which must be laid before the House of Commons from time to time.

By this arrangement my Lords trust that every grievance will be removed, and that as the buildings will then be in good substantial repair and working order, the governors will, for their own sakes and for the credit of humanity, take care that no subsequent deterioration of the establishments shall be permitted.

Write to the Chief Secretary for Ireland, transmitting to him a copy of the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, and of this minute, and request him to move his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant to cause the same to be officially communicated to the inspectors of lunatic asylums.

Transmit a copy of this minute to Mr. Donaldson and Mr. Wilkes for their information ; and at the same time convey to them the thanks of my Lords for the admirable manner in which they have carried out the inquiry, and for the able and interesting report which they have made.

RETURN of all ELECTION AUDITORS appointed under the Bribery Prevention Act (1854), for England, Scotland, and Ireland respectively, their Names, Date of Appointment, what other Places or Offices held by each at the time of their Appointment or subsequently, whether Electors or not in the particular County, Riding, District, Town, Borough, Burgh or Burghs for which they are appointed to Act.

COUNTY OF ANTRIM.

No auditors, as required under the Bribery Prevention Act (1854), were appointed during my shrievalty of the county of Antrim, for said county, or for the borough of Lisburn, which is also situated therein.

26 July 1855.

James E. Leslie,
Late Sheriff.

COUNTY OF ARMAGH.

THE high sheriff will make an appointment next month of the election auditors for the county and borough of Armagh; no such officers having been created in this county or borough last year, owing to my not being aware of the passing of the Act which enforces it.

27 July 1855.

M. C. Close.

BOROUGH OF ARMAGH.

NOT being aware of the "Act" having been passed until after the month of August, no election auditor was appointed, but the high sheriff will make an appointment both for the county and borough next week.

25 July 1855.

Wm. Hardy, Under Sheriff.

BOROUGH OF BELFAST.

I HAVE made inquiry from the town clerk, who has just resigned office, and I find that no election has taken place in Belfast since the passing of the Act, and no election auditor has been yet appointed.

27 July 1855.

J. K. Jackson, Town Clerk.

COUNTY OF CARLOW.

HENRY CAREY, Esq., of Carlow, is the election auditor for the county and borough of Carlow, having been elected last September, 1854. Henry Carey held no place or office at the time of his appointment, with the exception of being agent to Henry Bruen, Esq., Oak Park, Carlow. He is an elector both of the borough and county of Carlow.

26 July 1855.

William Duckett.

BOROUGH OF CARRICKFERGUS.

Sir,

6 February 1856.

IN answer to your letter of the 2d instant, referring to a return of all election auditors appointed under the Bribery Prevention Act (1854), &c., and which was addressed to my son, William Kirk, I deeply regret to say he died in May last, which will account for his not having furnished the return required.

I am, &c.

T. Kirk.

COUNTY OF CAVAN.

DURING my year of office in Cavan there was no auditor appointed on the 28th of February last; the present high sheriff, Mr. Rotherham, appointed Mr. Patrick Caffrey, of Cavan, who is an elector of the county, but does not vote at the elections; he is also deputy clerk of the peace for Cavan.

2 August 1855.

John H. Adams,
Late High Sheriff.

COUNTY OF CLARE.

No election auditor was appointed by Mr. Westby during his year of office.

24 July 1855.

DURING my year of office there was no election in the county of Donegal.

22 July 1855.

W. Sinclair.

COUNTY OF DOWN.

I AM not aware of any having been appointed.

4 February 1856.

J. T. Reilly.

COUNTY OF THE TOWN OF DROGHEDA.

THE high sheriff is the returning officer for Drogheda; of whom, however, I have made the necessary inquiry, and have been informed by him that as yet there has been no appointment under the Act.

24 July 1855.

James Mathews.

COUNTY OF DUBLIN.

DURING my year of office as sheriff of the county of Dublin no appointment of election auditor was made.

23 July 1855.

Hans H. Woods.

COUNTY OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN.

I DID not appoint an election auditor pursuant to the Bribery Prevention Act, 1854, not being aware of the passing of the Act until after I went out of office. No copy of the Act or notice thereof was sent to my office.

26 July 1855.

William Long,
Late High Sheriff.

COUNTY OF FERMANAGH, AND BOROUGH OF ENNISKILLEN.

Sir,

28 July 1855.

IN reply to your circular of the 21st instant, addressed to "The Honourable Henry Arthur Cole, late High Sheriff, county Fermanagh," I beg to state on behalf of Mr. Cole that he did not, during the time he acted as sheriff, appoint any election auditor. It may be in your recollection that Mr. Cole only served a portion of his year of office, having been elected member for the county in place of the late Sir A. B. Brooke. The Honourable Cavendish Butler, who was appointed sheriff on the retirement of Mr. Cole, did appoint an election auditor, and has since made the required return.

Colonel Larcom,
&c. &c. &c.

Robert Keys.

MR. GEORGE BLACK of this town was appointed and acted as auditor at the election of the present Member for the county.

9 February 1856.

H. Cavendish Butler.

COUNTY OF GALWAY.

As there was no election, or any immediate prospect of an election for the county of Galway during my year of office, I did not appoint any auditor or auditors for the purpose of acting under the Act to which you refer.

26 July 1855.

Richard A. H. Kirwan,
Late High Sheriff.

BOROUGH OF GALWAY.

THERE was no appointment made by me of election auditors for the borough of Galway in the year 1854.

27 February 1856.

E. E. Maunsell.

COUNTY OF KERRY.

I AM directed by Mr. William Hickie to state that during his year of office (1854-55) there were no election auditors appointed under the Bribery Prevention Act, 1854.

Major George Gavin, high sheriff of this city, 1854, appointed his brother, Captain Michael Gavin, a retired officer from the army, borough auditor in August 1854. Captain Gavin has no occupation, is an elector of the borough, J. P., and land proprietor; no other auditor appointed since.

23 July 1855.

Henry Watson, J. P.,
Late Mayor of Limerick.

COUNTY OF LONDONDERRY.

THE mayor of Londonderry is returning officer for the city of Derry, and not the sheriff; and with respect to the county of Londonderry and borough of Coleraine, no election auditor was appointed in the year 1854. The Corrupt Practices Prevention Act, 1854, did not receive the Royal Assent until the 10th of August last, and the 15th section, which directs the appointment of auditors, states that they shall be appointed in August in each year. Neither Mr. Ogilby nor myself, as his under-sheriff, was aware of the new duty imposed on him until long after the end of August, when I took the best advice I could obtain on the subject, which coincided with my own reading of the Act, that no appointment could be made except in the month of August, and that therefore the office must remain vacant until the new sheriff should fill it up in August next.

Sir,

5 September 1855.

IN reply to your letter of July 21st, requesting to be furnished with a return of election auditors appointed under the Bribery Prevention Act (1854), so far as relates to the county of Longford;

I have the honour to enclose the reply of the gentleman who officiated for me as sub-sheriff in that county, which will at once supply the necessary information, and explain the cause of so long delaying the necessary reply to your communication, which I considered he had given in consequence of my transmitting your letter to him.

I deem it necessary to add, that there was not any election for Members of Parliament during the year I had the honour of holding the shrievalty of the county of Longford, viz. 1854-1855.

Sheriff for 1854.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.

No auditors have been appointed under the Act of 1854, either for the Queen's County or borough of Portarlington.

24 July 1855.

Allen J. Walsh,
Late High Sheriff.

COUNTY OF SLIGO.

THERE were not any election auditors appointed for the county of Sligo since the passing of the above Act.

11 February 1856.

G. Armstrong, Sheriff.

BOROUGH OF SLIGO.

No election auditor has been appointed under the Bribery Prevention Act for the borough of Sligo. If such an officer be required, the corporation shall at once proceed to elect him, should they be directed so to do by the Government. I shall be most happy to attend to any suggestion you may be pleased to give.

23 July 1855.

Edmund Rochfort, Town Clerk.

COUNTY OF TIPPERARY.

MR. MICHAEL DEANE, of Clonmel, in said county, was appointed election auditor for the said county, as also for the borough of Cashel, by George Massy Dawson, esquire, high sheriff of said county, on the 16th of August 1854. Said Michael Deane is clerk to the clerk of the peace of the county, and appears upon the Parliamentary voters' book of this year a registered voter for the borough of Clonmel.

28 July 1855.

Samuel M. Gasen, Sub-Sheriff.

COUNTY OF WATERFORD.

I APPOINTED Mr. James Delahunty for last year; he is also coroner of the county, and, I believe, receiver of droits of Admiralty. Mr. Wyse, the present high sheriff, has appointed Mr. Pierse N. Barron, as auditor for the county and borough of Dungarvan for this year.

23 July 1855.

Pat. Mahon Power.

ment, or subsequently - - - - }
Whether elector or not for the borough - Not an elector.

Francis Hopkins, Sheriff.

COUNTY OF WEXFORD.

As the Bribery Act only passed on the 10th August 1854, and was not printed and circulated in Ireland for upwards of a month afterwards, I could not make the appointment "in the month of August," as thereby required; and as I went out of office on the 24th January 1855, and no election having taken place either for the county of Wexford or borough of New Ross in the interim, I did not appoint an election auditor under the Act while I was sheriff.

11 February 1856.

S. A. Richards,
Sheriff for the Year 1854.

BOROUGH OF WEXFORD.

No such appointment has been made for this borough. Had my attention been directed to the provisions of the Act, I should have felt it my duty, during my year of office, as mayor, to have carried the intention of the Legislature, as regards such appointment, into effect.

24 July 1855.

John Greene, J. P.,
Late Mayor.

COUNTY OF WICKLOW.

No such officer having been appointed for the county Wicklow, I have no return to make.

16 October 1855.

John Brennan,
Late High Sheriff.

1.—CHARGE by the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.

Office of Education,
2 February 1855.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I BEG to call your attention to the Lancasterian National School, Frederick-street, Belfast. I find upon examination of some of the Catholic children who attend it, that it is compulsory on them to attend to Scripture reading, singing of Protestant hymns, explanation of Scripture given by a Protestant mistress every morning before the hours appointed for secular instruction. Should Catholic children or their parents or guardians object to these religious exercises, their remonstrances are unavailing ; and if a child refuse to be present at them, I am informed, and I believe, that such child will be denied secular instruction and other benefits of the institution. One child who, being under 12 years of age, and reared a Catholic, was prevailed upon by some person to go to church, and, being claimed by her maternal aunt and paternal uncle as well as other near relations, she has been so tampered with as to refuse going with them, and is retained by the school committee.

I refer the Board to one of the regulations of this school, as contained in the Report thereon for the year 1854, p. 33, which is in practice compulsory on all the pupils, and thus at variance with the principles of the National system.

I respectfully request that the Commissioners will cause a strict, minute and searching inquiry to be instituted, as soon as possible, into all the workings of this school, in order to prevent a repetition of the abuses complained of.

The Commissioners of Education.

I have, &c.

2.—COPY of Board's Order of 2d February 1855, directing an Investigation into Matters referred to in Letter 929 $\frac{1}{2}$ from Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.

" READ letter 929 $\frac{1}{2}$ from Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, stating that, upon examining some of the Roman-catholic children attending the Lancasterian Industrial School, Belfast, he finds that it is compulsory on them to take part in the Scripture reading, singing of Protestant hymns, and explanation of Scripture by a Protestant mistress ; and that should any child object to be present at these exercises, he has been informed and believes, that such child would be denied secular instruction, and the other advantages of the institution.

" Ordered, that the Head and District Inspectors be directed to institute a strict inquiry into the allegations contained in this letter, and report the result to the Board with as little delay as possible."

3.—INSTRUCTIONS to Head Inspector Keenan to Investigate.

Sir,

Education Office, 9 February 1855.

THE Commissioners of National Education have had before them a communication, of the 2d instant, from the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, in which he makes this statement regarding the Lancasterian National School, Frederick-street, Belfast.

"I find, upon examination of some of the Catholic children who attend it, that it is compulsory on them to attend to Scripture reading, singing of Protestant hymns, explanation of Scripture given by a Protestant mistress every morning before the hours appointed for secular instruction. Should Catholic children or their parents or guardians object to these religious exercises, their remonstrances are unavailing; and if a child refuse to be present at them, I am informed and I believe, that such child will be denied secular instruction and other benefits of the institution. We are to direct that you and Mr. Patterson, district inspectors, will inquire fully into this matter at your earliest convenience, and report the result for the information of the Board.

We enclose you a copy of the Report of the Committee for 1853-54, and are to refer you to one of the regulations in p. 33, marked in ink, which Dr. Denvir states is in practice compulsory on all the pupils, and thus at variance with the principles of the National system.

Patrick J. Keenan, Esq.,
Head Inspector,
4, Cabra-Terrace.

We are, &c.

*Confidential.*5.—REPORT of Messrs. Keenan and Patterson on the Frederick-street Industrial National School, Belfast.

REPORT.

Gentlemen,

Belfast, 21 May 1855.

In obedience to your instructions of the 3d of February, directing us to inquire fully into certain charges brought against the Lancasterian Industrial National School, Frederick-street, Belfast (Roll No. 5132), by the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, and to report the results to the Board, we beg to state, that we entered upon the investigation of those charges on the 26th of April, and terminated it on the 7th of May; and we take leave to submit the following as our report. Appended will be found the minutes of evidence taken during the inquiry, to which we request the especial attention of the Board.

The important duties which detained one of us (Mr. Keenan, head inspector), in conference with his colleagues in Dublin, from January to April, prevented our engaging in this inquiry sooner; and we thus prominently refer to the cause of the delay, as, under ordinary circumstances, the nature of the complaint, the position of the complainant, and the influential character of the management of the school, would have demanded the earliest possible attention.

Cause of delay in holding investigation.

Upon the 18th April, it was intimated to the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, and to Miss Ireland, the correspondent of the school with the Board, that the inquiry would be held on the 26th of the same month, at 11 o'clock, A. M., in the Lancasterian National School, and both parties assented to the arrangement.

Date of commencing the inquiry.

Upon the 26th of April we accordingly proceeded to the school, and upon entering it found that a considerable number of ladies and gentlemen had assembled to be present at the investigation, and that a number of reporters for the public press were also present.

We had no objection whatever to the presence of everybody interested in the schools, or to those of the public at large who chose to come; but we did entertain very strong and decided objections to the presence of reporters for the press, for the following reasons:

Exclusion of reporters for the press.

1. That, as the inquiry might continue for some time, the publication of the evidence could only be ex parte, from day to day.

2. That we were ignorant, and could not of course inquire, whether the whole press of Belfast, or only a section of it, was represented by the gentlemen present.

3. That the publication of the evidence, pending the inquiry, would necessarily increase that excitement which we observed had already possessed the public mind in relation to the case, and which could not possibly favour, but would inevitably impede the calm and deliberative nature of the inquiry upon which we were about to enter.

4. That, as the witnesses could not be examined upon oath, the inquiry could not be regarded as being of that general character of public procedure to which the press and the public are usually invited and admitted.

5. That as the evidence, after we should have transmitted it to the Board, would become a public document, it would be attainable as such to those who desired it.

6. That it would, in our opinion, be highly improper to permit the evidence to be published, criticised, and commented upon, and, perhaps, to have party spirit and local prejudices invoked to support one side or the other, one view or another, before it reached the Board, who are to receive and finally adjudicate upon it.

7. That we had no precedent to authorise us in admitting the press to such an investigation, but that, on the contrary, we had a precedent in the conduct of the head inspector, who held the inquiry at the Hon. Miss Plunkett's school last year, and who, doubtless for reasons analogous to our own, entirely excluded reporters from the investigation; and we were aware that the Commissioners expressed no disapprobation of the course then pursued.

We therefore felt it our duty to announce to the gentlemen of the press, that, in their capacity as reporters, they could not be permitted to remain; and, in reply to a question proposed to us by a clergyman present, we stated that we had received no instructions whatever from the Board on the matter, and were, by the necessity of the case, of course acting upon our own responsibility.

The reporters then very courteously withdrew.

There was a slight interruption on the fourth day of the inquiry, caused by a gentlemen who entered the room in the middle of the day, and insisted on his right to be present to report for the public press. He was supported in his effort to remain by the Rev. W. M'Ilwaine. We, of course, objected to his presence, and received the kindest and most cordial co-operation from the gentlemen who were actually engaged in the investigation on both sides. After some minutes the reporter retired.

At the commencement of the proceedings we were handed a note, signed by Miss Charlotte Smith, one of the secretaries, in which Mr. W. Bottomley was requested by the ladies of the committee to represent them in the inquiry, and we at once assented to the arrangement. The Rev. J. H. Orr claimed permission to appear at the investigation for the teachers of the school, and to this proposal we also assented. The Rev. J. Scott Porter, during the occasional absence of Mr. Bottomley, took an active part in conducting the case for the ladies of the committee.

The right Rev. Dr. Denvir appeared personally to bring forward his charge, and watch the course of the investigation.

The inquiry was held on the following days, namely, the 26th and 27th of April, the 2d, 3d, 4th, and 7th of May. A large number of ladies, gentlemen, and clergymen attended, and appeared to take a great interest in the proceedings; and the Right Rev. Dr. Knox, the Bishop of Down, was present during five of those days.

The arrangement which we followed for the course of the inquiry was first, to hear the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir make a statement of his charges and case; then to hear the witnesses referred to in his statement to support these charges; then to hear Mr. Bottomley for the ladies of the committee, and the Rev. Mr. Orr for the teachers, and finally to hear the witnesses produced by Mr. Bottomley for the defence. In the direct examination, we permitted the witnesses to be examined orally, as much and as often as was desired by the person representing that side of the case which the witness's evidence was produced to sustain; but, as conducive to order and precision, we arranged that the cross-examination of the witnesses should be conducted in writing, and through us; and, in the minutes of evidence appended to this Report, you will find those questions numbered and referred, in the usual way in such cases, to the different persons who asked them.

The following is a copy of that portion of your letter to Mr. Keenan, head inspector, which bears upon the nature of the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's complaint:—

“The Commissioners of National Education have had before them a communication of the 2d instant, from the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, in which he makes this statement regarding the Lancasterian National School, Frederick-street, Belfast:

‘I find upon examination of some of the Catholic children who attend it, that it is compulsory on them to attend to Scripture reading, singing of Protestant hymns, explanation of Scripture given by a Protestant mistress every morning before the hours appointed for secular instruction. Should Catholic children, or their parents or guardians, object to these religious exercises, their remonstrances are unavailing, and if a child refuse to be present at them, I am informed, and I believe, that such child will be denied secular instruction and other benefits of the institution. One child who, being under 12 years of age, and reared a Catholic, was prevailed upon by some person to go to church, and being claimed by her maternal aunt and paternal uncle, as well as other near relatives, she has been so tampered with, as to refuse going with them, and is retained by the school committee.’

“We enclose you a copy of the Report of the Committee for 1853–54, and are to refer you to one of the regulations in page 33, marked in ink, which Dr. Denvir states, is in practice compulsory on all the pupils, and thus at variance with the principles of the National system.”

Mode of conducting the inquiry.

Before proceeding further, we think that we should place before the Board an account of the discipline of the school in respect to religious instruction; a clear understanding of which is necessary in order to comprehend a great portion of the evidence. When the school was originally established by the benevolent ladies under whose management it continues to be conducted, it was determined that there should be religious instruction every morning, for half an hour, before breakfast. The Testament and the Scripture Extracts of the Board were to be used on alternate mornings; and the Protestants were to have the authorised version and the Catholics the Douay version. For the manner in which these books were and are used, see Mrs. Putman's evidence, page 40, and Miss Orr's evidence, page 41. Catholics and Protestants sit indiscriminately on the benches, and read verse about, aloud, from their respective Testaments, in the chapter of the morning. The great idea of the committee has been to give a religious instruction of a purely non-sectarian character; and the teachers have been accordingly instructed to make no interpretation of Scriptural passages favourable to one doctrine or another, or, in short, to enter into any doctrinal explanation at all. The evidence of the teachers shows that this has not only been the principle, but the practice of the school. This religious instruction, however, although non-sectarian in its character, is yet—inasmuch as “the reading of the Scriptures, “either in the Protestant authorised or Douay version, comes within the rule as “to religious instruction”—such as the Board, by its rules, gives the parent or guardian power to object to. It is, therefore, to be understood, that the religious instruction which is spoken of and referred to, throughout the whole of the evidence, is of this class—non-sectarian—but such as, by the rules of the Board, may be lawfully objected to by a parent or guardian.

Account of religious instruction given in the school.

It will be perceived, throughout the course of the evidence, that the authorities of the school, over and over again, affirm that the religious instruction is non-sectarian, and strictly in accordance with the Board's rule. The intention of the committee in this respect is to show that the Testament is taught without having for its object the inculcation of any peculiar doctrine, in the same spirit of fair play, during the hours for religious instruction; as, for instance, the Scripture Extracts, or any of the books of the Board, are, and must be, taught during the ordinary hours for general instruction. It is, of course, a misapprehension to suppose that the religious instruction, as religious instruction, is in accordance with the Board's rule, as the Commissioners take no cognizance whatever of the mode of communicating religious instruction, their jurisdiction over it ceasing when the formalities as to time and notification have been observed, and when due regard to parental right and authority is evinced, by not compelling any child to receive a religious instruction to which its parent or guardian objects.

In placing the evidence before the Commissioners we beg to state, that we give it (almost in every instance) in the same words and form in which we read it aloud for the witnesses at the conclusion of their examination; and as a careful perusal of what was said on both sides will, of course, be made by the Board, and as a rehearsal here of each case would be simply to rehearse the whole evidence again, we deem it to be unnecessary to do more than classify the general nature of the charges, and refer the Commissioners to the pages in the Appendix, where evidence to sustain or rebut them is to be found.

Evidence of the witnesses is essentially verbatim.

From the right Rev. Dr. Denvir's statement of his charges, and the evidence produced to sustain them, the following may be regarded as the general heads under which those charges can be classed:—

Unnecessary to do more than classify the general nature of the charges.

General heads of charges.

1. That some of the rules of the school committee were opposed in spirit to those of the National Board.
2. That parents or guardians objected to the religious instruction of the school, and that those objections were unheeded.
3. That when the objection of the parent or guardian was attended to, the child, on account of its absence from religious instruction, was deprived of some of the advantages of the institution, namely, the breakfast every morning, and the clothes.
4. That if a parent or guardian desire to have an alteration made in the registration of the religion of the child, it cannot be done by the rules of the school; and that the child must continue in the religion in which it was at first entered, or be removed altogether from the school.

I.
II.
III.
IV.

V.

5. That a child was prevailed upon by some person to go to church, and was so tampered with as to refuse going with her nearest relatives, when claimed by them, and is retained by the school committee.

Charge I.

To support the first charge, "That some of the rules of the committee were "opposed in spirit to those of the National Board," we have had in evidence the rules of the school, which since the date of the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's complaint, have undergone considerable and important change.

Rules of school
Charge I.

The rules of the school (see Seventh Report, pages 30 and 33), which bear on the point are these:—

"Her attendance must be regular; punctuality to eight o'clock in the morning being particularly insisted on."

"The routine of school avocations is as follows:—The children assemble at eight in the morning. Those children appointed to do the work of the house are to come an hour earlier; half an hour is given for washing, changing the clothes, combing the hair; at half-past eight a hymn is sung, and a Scripture lesson given; breakfast at nine, play-ground till ten; from ten till two in the school, dinner and play from two to three; school resumed at three, and continued till dusk in winter, and six in summer."

Origin and history of rule of February
12th, 1855.

The origin and history of the new rule, which alters the bearing of the above rules, may be learned from the following minutes of the committee of the school:—

"11th December 1854.—Mrs. Todd laid before the committee a most extraordinary message she had received from Dr. Denvir, through Mrs. Gilliland, one of the mothers of the children, viz., that he requested the reading of the Scriptures should be discontinued in school, and also the singing of the hymn. The ladies present instructed Mrs. Todd that she was, in no instance, to attend to messages of the kind.

"4th January 1855.—Miss M'Kinstrey was examined relative to the insubordination of a little girl in school during the morning reading. On questioning the child, she said, the priest, Mr. Conway, had desired her to act as she had done. Miss M'Kinstrey also stated that Mrs. M'Manus, the mother of another girl, had come to her to object to the joint reading, but that she did it not from her own judgment, but because the priest had called with her five times, to tell her that she must forbid the child listening to the reading. This woman said plainly, that she was herself no way dissatisfied, but came, because urged to do so. It came out also, in the course of conversation, that the Roman-catholic children in school had, on two successive Sundays, been detained in chapel till after the proper dinner hour; and on being questioned, they gave as a reason, that they had been detained to be interrogated concerning the school, whether meat was given them on Lent days, when they were sent on errands, &c.; finally, orders were given that none of them should go on any errand to either of the ladies secretaries to the school committee.

"6th January 1855.—The question of interference by the priest was met by the additional resolutions, read and agreed to, although not regularly moved and seconded:—

"Resolved 1st.—That we cannot change the plan of reading before breakfast, being the same formerly sanctioned by the committee, including Catholic members, and which we are certain has been carried out in a truly non-sectarian spirit.

"Resolved 2d.—That as the objection to the joint reading has been traced to the Roman-catholic priest, the parent averring that she herself did not object, we hereby declare that we will receive no dictation from such a source.

"Resolved 3d.—That the unwarrantable interference of the priests, in desiring the pupils in school to disobey their teachers, must be at once put a stop to, as subversive of all subordination in the school.

"Resolved 4th.—That should any more messages be brought, the teacher be desired to report the same to the weekly visitors, with whom it may rest to reprimand, “reprimand, or otherwise punish the bearer of such message, and to bring the circumstance before the Saturday’s committee.

“Resolved 5th.—That any girl persevering to bring such messages, to be punished by expulsion.

“Resolved 6th.—That every pupil be made aware of these rules at entering the school.

“12th February.—It was found that one of the girls continued to come to school after breakfast, and that objections to the joint reading having been renewed, and professing to come from some of the parents, it was resolved, that as no radical change could be made in our early morning arrangements, without an entire sacrifice of the time of the Protestant pupils, we cannot admit, during this time, any children whose idleness would disturb the reading; but still, willing to do for the community all we pledge ourselves to them, and the National Board, we shall in future allow objectors to attend for secular instruction from ten o’clock, A.M., to six, P.M., every day. Meanwhile, in doing this, we again solemnly protest, that we have never interfered with the religion of any child, or swerved from our non-sectarian principles.”

Rule of February 12th.

By this rule of February 12th, introduced since the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir made his charges, but according to the testimony of Miss Ireland (page 31), before the committee of the school had learned that there was an investigation ordered by the Board, it is evident that the child of a parent or guardian who objects to the religious instruction, may come to school after the religious instruction is over.

The evidence which bears upon the second general charge: “That parents or guardians objected to the religious instruction of the school, and that their objections were unheeded,” is found in the case of Mary Sullivan, as deposed to by John Hayes, her uncle (page 15); and in connexion with it the testimony of John Twigg (page 16), of Miss M’Laughlin (page 22), and of Mrs. Todd (pages 45, 46), are highly important.

Charge II.

Case of Mary Sullivan.

The case of Mary M’Carroll also refers to the second general charge, for the evidence of whose mother, Rose M’Carroll, see page 21; and the rebutting evidence of the matron, Mrs. Todd, see page 46.

Case of Mary M’Carroll.

For the evidence which bears upon the third charge, see the case of Mary Gilliland. Along with the testimony of the mother of the child, Mrs. Gilliland (page 17), the evidence of Mrs. Bruce (pages 39, 40), and of Mrs. Todd (pages 45, 46), should be taken into consideration.

Charge III.

Case of Mary Gilliland.

The case of Catherine M’Kenna also bears upon the third charge; for the evidence of which case we beg to refer to the testimony of the mother, Margaret M’Kenna (page 19), and the examination of the teacher of the school, Miss Orr (page 43).

Case of Catherine M’Kenna.

The case which bears upon the fourth charge, “That if a parent or guardian desire to have an alteration made in the registration of the religion of the child, it cannot be done by the rules of the school; and that the child must continue in the religion in which it was at first entered, or be removed altogether from the school,” is that of Sosby, and to it we beg the special attention of the Board.

Charge IV.

Case of Sarah J. Sosby.

The history of the rule of the school, and its application to the child of the witness Sosby, can be best learned from the following minutes of the committee:—

History of the rule which excluded Sosby.

“September 1851.—Two little girls, Jane Watson and M. J. Manhinny, who were among those reproved for giddiness, had a further charge brought against them in a fault connected with this; their giddiness in the Sunday school had led to their being several times reproved, and persevering in boldness, they had three weeks previously been sent out of the school. On the following Sunday, they had accompanied another child to the Unitarian Meeting-house; this they had done a second time, when a lady of the committee, meeting them in the porch, inquired if this was their own place of worship, and finding it was not, desired them to go where their parents had entered them for. The following Sunday they went to chapel, and the monthly meeting following the day after, the children were brought down, reproved for “ thus going from place to place, and desired to return to the Presbyterian Meeting-house on Sunday, they having been entered as Presbyterians.

“ October 13, 1851.—The two little girls, J. Watson and M. J. Manhinnery having persevered to go to chapel. contrary to their entry as Presbyterians, the subject was again brought before committee, when it appeared that the children had declared their mothers now Catholics, although Presbyterians at the time they were entered in school ; that, consequently, they now wished to take them to chapel ; to inquire further of the mothers they were sent for, but the little girls returned to say that they could find neither of them, as both were from home, working. As the committee was then about rising, the affair was referred to a sub-committee on Saturday ; with this sub-committee a discretionary power was left of allowing the children to remain till the whole could be referred to another monthly meeting.

“ October 18, 1851.—The mothers of J. Watson and M. J. Manhinnery did not come to the committee, as summoned to do ; the children were again sent for them, and returned with a similar answer to that brought on Monday, on which the committee decided that all must be left to the committee of management, and meantime the children must remain out, as their mothers had not thought worth while to appear. After this two older girls we sent to look for the women, and, after the committee had separated, they returned with the information that one of them had seen Watson’s mother, who told them she was in service and could not come ; but if any of the ladies would come to her, at her master’s, she would talk to them. She added, however, that she did not know what sort of school it was, as the children learned nothing in it.

“ October 25, 1851.—The mothers of J. Watson and M. J. Manhinnery not appearing to meet the committee, although both had been at the school in the course of the morning, the following resolutions were passed in substance, Miss McCracken alone supporting the opinion that the resolutions of last Saturday should be rescinded, and the children taken unconditionally :—

“ ‘ 1st. That the children were dismissed, not from their change of religion, but for contempt of the committee, both on their own part and that of their parents.

“ ‘ 2d. That this contempt was shown by the mothers in not coming to explain to the committee, and that their coming to-day, at an hour which they knew was not that of meeting, cannot be received as sufficient apology.

“ ‘ 3d. That, after supporting and educating their children for such a length of time, the committee feel that any women possessed of common feelings of gratitude would have made a point of doing all in their power to give the necessary explanations.

“ ‘ 4th. That the excuse of being a servant, sent by Jane Watson’s mother, is not considered sufficient, inasmuch as servants, with us, are not slaves ; and they think that any mistress, properly acquainted with the circumstances, would see the necessity of the case.

“ ‘ 5th. That they understand that, so far from considering anything due to the committee, this woman speaks of the school in terms of contempt, wondering what the children learn in it.

“ ‘ 6th. That this conduct on the part of the mothers is joined with, and in some degree explains, the very indecent display on the part of the girls, who, when told they were to go home, evinced the most shameful and extravagant rejoicing, to the great scandal of the school and the injury of the other pupils.

“ ‘ 7th. That if the mother of M. J. Manhinnery told the truth in regard to her little girl, the conduct of the latter was particularly blameable, since, after all the committee said to her about bringing her mother, the latter declares she never heard a word on the subject till the child was dismissed.

“ ‘ 8th. That on account of all these circumstances, and to prevent misunderstanding in the committee, the secretaries are instructed to bring the subject before the full committee in November, before which, also, the mothers are “ ‘ expected

“ expected to appear, with such explanations and apologies as their past conduct “ requires.

“ 9th. That in case this is done, so as to show the disrespect was not inten“ tional, and that there is a real desire on the part of the little girls to return,
“ and to act more steadily in future than they have been recently doing, this “ sub-committee will recommend to the general committee to re-admit the “ children as Catholics.

“ 10th. That this committee will further recommend the enactment of a bye-“ law to prevent any such difficulty as the present in future; that this prospec“ tive bye-law shall enact, that children entered in the school shall be obliged, “ during the time of remaining pupils, to conform to the creed by which their “ parents have entered them.

“ 11th. That the strict impartiality of the management in school, and their “ determination to be entirely non-sectarian, renders such a rule only con“ formable with our other regulations; but no law having been previously “ made, the present instance of change, as it is by the desire of the parents, “ may be, in the estimation of this sub-committee, overlooked.

“ 7th November 1851.—The two little girls, Watson and Manhinnery, with “ the mothers of both, were brought before the committee, and, after severe “ reproof for former boldness and giddiness, and reprehension to the mothers “ for former disrespect in not coming to the committee when sent for, they were “ taken again into school on trial; Miss Orr being requested to report their “ conduct next monthly meeting.

“ 8th November 1851.—The bye-law alluded to in note 10th, of Saturday, “ 25th October, was then proposed as a means of preventing scenes such as the “ present being brought before committee.

“ 10th November 1851.—To give importance to this bye-law we here repeat “ it: that any child entered in the school shall in future be obliged, during the “ time of remaining a pupil, to conform to the creed by which her parents have “ entered her.

“ 11th December 1854.—Rosanna Sosby came to committee to say that she “ wished her child, whom she had lately got admitted to the school, and then “ entered as a Protestant, to be now entered on the books as a Roman-catholic.
“ Although she had always been a Roman-catholic, yet, her husband having “ been a Protestant, she wished her child then to be the same; but she had “ received several messages from the priest, and she was compelled to come to “ the committee.

“ Resolved, That the committee cannot in any instance break through the “ regular rule, viz., ‘ that children entered in school shall be obliged, during the “ time of remaining pupils, to conform to the creed by which their parents or “ guardians have entered them, or to leave the school.’ They have, therefore, “ decided, that the child should leave the school, as they will not break through “ the rule on one hand, and, on the other, have no wish to compel the child to “ act contrary to her mother’s wishes.”

For the evidence of Mrs. Sosby herself, we beg to direct you to page 18; and, as important to be taken into connexion with it, we would call special attention to the testimony of Mrs. Bruce (pages 39, 40), and also to that of Mrs. Todd (page 45).

The fifth head under which we have classified the charges refers to the case of the child (M. A. Marmion), who, it was asserted by the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, in his letter to the Commissioners, “ was prevailed upon by some person “ to go to church; and, being claimed by her maternal aunt and paternal uncle,
“ as well as other near relatives, she has been so tampered with as to refuse going
“ with them, and is retained by the school committee.” Charge V.

This case the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir refused to enter into (see page 22), as it had already gone to the courts of law; but Mr. Bottomley, on the part of the ladies of the committee, demanded an opportunity of placing on record a statement in relation to the case. To this we could see no objection, particularly as 88. Refusal of Right Rev. Dr. Denvir to enter into this case. Mr. Bottomley’s demand that a the statement of the case be received acceded to.

Account of the management of the school to be had in the evidence of Miss Ireland, Mrs. Bruce, and the teachers.

Protests against the admission of certain evidence.

Reasons for receiving the evidence.

the ladies of the committee appeared to regard the charge as an aspersion upon the character of two of their members. We accordingly did receive Miss Ireland's statement in relation to the case, and have appended it to the minutes of evidence (page 47).

An account of the working of the school, its general management, the principles on which it is conducted, and the results of the education imparted, will be found in the evidence of Miss Ireland, the correspondent of the school with the Board; of Mrs. Bruce, an important member of the ladies' committee; of the teachers of the school, Miss Orr and Mrs. Todd, and in the reports of the school which we forward with the minutes of evidence.

Mr. Bottomley protests (pages 19 and 24) against the admission of the evidence of M'Kenna and M'Carroll, because it relates to a time subsequent to the date of the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's complaint; but, as we had entered upon inquiry which necessarily involved the whole character of the school, and as these witnesses were produced to show that a vital principle of the Board's rules was violated, we expressed then, what we here repeat, that even had we received no written instructions from the Board relative to the matter, we should have felt it to be our bounden duty to institute an immediate and scrupulous inquiry into the truth or falsehood of the women's statements. As we understand our duty, it is to make immediate inquiry, when it is possible, into any infraction of the Board's rule which we hear of or observe in the national schools under our superintendence. How, then, could we reject the testimony of a person who was brought before us to show that, under the very roof of the house in which we sat, there had been a violation of the first, the fundamental principle of the whole system of national education. As well might we have refused to receive the very important minute of the ladies' committee of the 12th February (see page 9), which so materially alters the rules of the school, and serves to assist the Commissioners in their decision on this case, simply because it was enacted ten days after the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir made his complaint to the Board, and three days after we had received instructions to hold this investigation. In our judgment we could not have refused to receive the evidence of M'Kenna and M'Carroll, and we accordingly did receive it.

Rev. Mr. Orr's protest against receiving certain evidence.

Reason for receiving this evidence.

At page 15 will be found the Rev. Mr. Orr's protest to the examination of John Hayes, "respecting conversations reported to him by Mary Sullivan, his niece, "when he was not present at those conversations, and requiring that Mary Sullivan herself be produced." We ruled against this objection, for the obvious reason that we had previously learned from the witness Hayes (page 15.), that the child whom Mr. Orr demanded to be produced was at the time in Glasgow with her aunt; and we believed it to be within the jurisdiction of inquirers into the management of the school to receive the information which Hayes asserts had been communicated to him by his niece.

There is one other point in relation to the proceedings to which we think it necessary to advert.

Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's request that a witness should be visited at her residence.

Reason for not complying.

On the fourth day of inquiry the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir intimated a wish that we should proceed to the residence of a person (the grandmother of Mary Sullivan, as we understood), who is bed-ridden, to receive from her some further testimony which he thought it desirable to present. We felt ourselves constrained to refuse this application by the nature of the arrangements which we had made for the conduct of the inquiry, and particularly as it would have been extremely inconvenient to re-open the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's case.

Discursive nature of evidence; and why received.

The nature of the case rendered it necessary to inquire into the whole management and working of the school, not only because the ladies of the committee desired it, as announced by Mr. Bottomley in his statement, page 30, a course to which they appeared fairly entitled, as the charges were a reflection on the general character of the school, but also because the proving or disproving of the charges led to a retrospect of the school for years back, and to the practices that prevailed at the very time of the inquiry. We allude to this to account for the somewhat discursive kind of evidence which we received, and also to explain why we forward the statements of the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, Mr. Bottomley, and the Rev. Mr. Orr, along with the testimony of the witnesses.

In concluding this report we beg to state, that we were offered every facility by the ladies connected with the school, and the gentlemen engaged on both sides of the investigation, to obtain an accurate knowledge of the whole of the facts of the case for the information of the Board. Conclusion.

FIRST DAY, Thursday, 26 April, 1855.

Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's Statement.

It came within my cognizance that some Catholic children attending this school were going through a process of instruction of a religious kind, not in consonance with the teachings of the Catholic Church. Having ascertained the names of some of these children, I interrogated them on the subject, and I found it reported by them that it was compulsory on them to be present at the reading of Scriptures and the singing of hymns, at a certain hour before 10 o'clock in the morning; and that the meaning of some Scriptural passages was explained to them by a Protestant mistress. I considered it then to be my duty to inform the nearest relatives of those children—they being Catholics—that it was their right to object to any religious instruction being imparted to their children, unless by persons appointed or approved by them. Some of these parents did, I understand, object to have religious instruction given to their children here. I will mention one—a man named Hayes, uncle of a girl named Sullivan, who came to this establishment and signified his desire that his niece, Sullivan, should not receive religious instruction here, nor be present at the singing of hymns. Notwithstanding his remonstrance, made in the presence of a man (named Twigg, I believe) who was his companion, the child was called up again, on the following day, or immediately after, to be present at those religious exercises as formerly; and I think, on a subsequent day the child refused to be present at them, and she was chastised (slapped). She said that she had stated, as her reason for not attending this class, that she was told by her uncle not to attend it: and that she further gave Dr. Denvir as an authority, whose opinion it was that she should not attend after her uncle had objected. She stated (to Dr. Denvir) that, on being chastised, she made a noise, cried, and left the place where she had been sitting. She further stated that she had been put out on the lobby, and that finally, she was told she must comply with this rule, or quit the school. If my impressions be not erroneous, the ladies' committee had been examining this case at the time. I consider this case to be a violation of the rules of the National Board, one of which says:

"The patrons of the several schools have the right of appointing such religious instruction as they may think proper to be given therein; provided that each school be open to children of all communions; that due regard be had to parental right and authority; that, accordingly, no child be compelled to receive, or to be present at, any religious instruction to which his parents or guardians object; and that the time for giving it be so fixed that no child shall be thereby, in effect, excluded, directly or indirectly, from the other advantages which the school affords. Subject to this, religious instruction may be given, either during the fixed school hours or otherwise."

I contend for it, that one of the rules of this establishment is quite incompatible with that rule. I refer to one of the rules of this school contained in the "Seventh Report of the Committee for 1853-54, of the Belfast Ladies' Industrial National School for Girls, conducted in the Lancasterian School-house, Frederick-street." The rule to which I refer is found at page 33, fifth line. (See Appendix A).

"The routine of school avocations is as follows:—The children assemble at eight in the morning; those children appointed to do the work of the house are to come an hour earlier; half an hour is given for washing, changing the clothes, combing the hair; at half-past eight a hymn is sung and a Scripture lesson given; breakfast at nine; play-ground till ten; from ten till two in school; dinner and play from two to three; school resumed at three, and continued till dusk in winter, and six in summer."

Now, if I am correctly informed, this rule is rigidly enforced, in defiance of the Board's rule read by me; notwithstanding that parents and guardians of the Catholic children objected to their children being present at the religious exercises.

I have been informed by a parent (Mrs. Gilliland) that she objected here against the religious instruction being given to her child, and that she was told, that if she did not wish that her child should be present at the religious instruction, she might keep her child at home until she received her breakfast at home, and then to come to school. You will remark that this occurred subsequently to the time that I commenced to make inquiries as to the system of teaching here. The child, however, told its parent that it had received different instructions here—namely, that it must stay at home unless it came here in the mornings from half-past eight o'clock to nine o'clock, to attend with the rest.

There is a Mrs. McKenna, whose statement is similar to Gilliland's.

There is another case—that of a Mrs. Sosby, who has or had a child here in this establishment. The father of this child, she states, was a Protestant. When she left her child here, she was asked of what religion was the child's father, and she answered the question very fairly, that the child's father, who was dead, had been a Protestant, the child herself and the mother being Catholics. The mother seems to have been afraid, on account of what she said, that the child would be here entered as a Protestant, and educated as such. She returned here, and inquired whether her child was entered as a Protestant or Catholic, and requested that she might be entered as a Catholic, and treated as one. She informs me that the reply given by the committee was, that the religious denomination of the child could not be changed; that, as she entered as a Protestant, she should remain the same. The teacher (Mrs. Todd) that evening sent the child home, with orders not to return.

Mrs. McArdle has more recently objected, within some days past, to the reception, by her child, of the religious exercises in the morning, and the religious instructions; and notwithstanding her objections her child has been compelled to attend: the rule of the school demanded that she should be here in the morning whilst religious instruction was being given.

In the case of very poor people like these, whose children get their breakfast here, and are dieted here, they feel it a great hardship that their children should be deprived of the same benefits which others receive, unless they submit to be present at the reading and explanation of the Scriptures and the singing of hymns; and I consider this to be a very powerful, although it may be construed as an indirect means of compelling the children to attend at the aforesaid exercises; and being such, I further consider it to be in direct contravention of Rule 3, section 2, of the National Board, and its interpretation as given under the same rule.

There is another case referred to in my statement to the Commissioners, namely, that of a child who would not be given up, who was so tampered with as not to consent to go with her relatives by whom she was claimed, the investigation of which I will not at present urge, because it is one which is to come before the courts of law in Dublin.

[The Right Rev. Dr. Denvir then expressed his repudiation of proselytism by any parties, and said that he would have denounced the school from the altar, but that he considered it his his duty, as a Commissioner of Education, and the school being a national school, to institute such a rigorous investigation as would result in eliciting the truth of the allegations made by the parents or guardians. He then concluded, as follows :]

Statement of Right
Rev. Dr. Denvir.

26 April 1855.

There is one fact which I consider it important to mention, that on a certain evening, the date of which I forget, I was waited on by two of the ladies of the committee of this school, to inform me that a committee of the ladies was held upon that day, from which committee they had just come; and that the determination of the committee was, that no alteration would be made in this rule to which objection had been taken by the parents and guardians. These ladies were Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. M'Laughlin. I think it was then I said that I was sorry for this affair; because I have been giving my mite as a subscriber to this school for 20 years. I think it necessary to allude to this, that you may refer to the minute book of the meeting.

John Hayes, being examined, deposes :

A niece of his, Mary Sullivan, was at the school here; she was living with witness; she was an orphan; witness was her guardian; she is not now at the school; she is at present with a sister of witness in Glasgow; the child was 12 years of age; does not recollect when she was admitted; she was brought to the school by her grandmother; the child was a Roman-catholic, as were also her father and mother; she was registered as a Catholic here by direction of her grandmother; the child might have been here for four months; the grandmother is an aged woman—aged eighty-five years, and confined to her bed; the grandmother stated the child was a Catholic, and that she wished her to be educated as one. Witness heard that the child was receiving religious instruction here, to attend to the Bible and Testament classes, as near as could be, for half an hour each morning; heard that the mistress of the school explained to the children what they were reading; heard also of their singing hymns, and heard the child speak of commandments which were not those of her church. Hearing this, witness on the 2d January, this year, came down to the school; he sent from the hall for Mrs. Todd, the mistress of the school, and asked her did she know Mary Sullivan; Mrs. Todd told him she did; he asked her how Mary Sullivan behaved in the school, and was told very well; but that she was sometimes late in the mornings. Witness then told the mistress that he wanted the child to be brought up in the Catholic religion, as both father and mother were Catholics; she told him whatever religion the child was entered for on the books when she first came to the school she should remain. He then asked the mistress if there was not a Bible class, and was told there was a Testament class. There was a man along with witness, named John Twigg; the mistress, in the presence of this man, said there was a Bible class, and that there was half an hour for the reading of the Bible and Testament every morning before breakfast; but that the children of the different persuasions were sent to their own places of worship upon the Sundays. Witness told the mistress that he wished her not to meddle with the child's religious instruction at all; she replied, that there was but the one rule of the place, and that those who did not comply with that rule could not be here. Witness then left; he told the child on Tuesday night (the 2d) that she was not to sit in the class when the Bible was reading, but to rise and go away. The child told the mistress next day (Wednesday) that she was not allowed to sit in the Bible class.

Evidence
of John Hayes.

[The Rev. Mr. Orr here interposes, and hands in a document, of which the following is a copy :—]

"The Rev. J. H. Orr, on behalf of the mistress, Mrs. Todd, enters his protest against evidence being given by John Hayes respecting conversations reported to him by Mary Sullivan, his niece, when he was not present at those conversations; and requires that Mary Sullivan herself shall be produced."

Examination continued.

When the child came home on Wednesday night, she told witness that she had told the mistress, as directed by witness, and, with other children who had done the same, was put out upon the stairs. He told the child on Wednesday night that she was to do the same on Thursday morning. On Thursday morning she did the same, and a few other children with her were put out on the stairs. The mistress and some big girl that worked in the kitchen beat the child because she would not sit in the Bible class. The child was kept there (on the stairs) until the committee met; she was brought down in presence of the ladies and charged with disturbing the school, and encouraging others to do the same, and was sent home by the committee. The child never came back to the school. On the 5th or 6th of January she was sent home, and on the Tuesday or Wednesday following witness sent her to his sister in Glasgow.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bottomley in writing.

1. Was her grandmother her guardian when the girl came to the school first?—Witness was guardian or protector to both grandmother and child. The grandmother walked with great difficulty when the girl first came to the school.

2. Why did the grandmother bring her to the school instead of you?—Because witness had a big family to work for; is a flax-dresser in a mill.

3. Why

Evidence
of John Hayes.

26 April 1855.

3. Why did the grandmother not come to the school to speak about the religious instruction?—Because she was at the time confined to her bed; she was sometimes well, sometimes ill.

4. Why did she not send a written order by you, ordering the child not to be instructed in the morning class?—Because he never dreamt there was such a trade (practice) carrying on. Witness was a pupil in the school-house as a boy, when there was no religious instruction given in the school, and he accordingly thought there was no such practice as giving religious instruction observed in the school.

5. Are you aware that religious instruction is given in national schools, the Bible read, and the catechisms of various churches taught?—Witness is now aware of it.

6. When did you become aware of it?—About the latter end of December. The first he heard of it was from the little girl herself before he came in January to the school.

(Question 5 is repeated).—Are you aware that religious instruction is given in national schools, the Bible read, and the catechisms of various churches taught?—Witness is aware of it no further than this, that in his time when at school, religious instruction was given on Saturdays in Donegall-street, to the Roman-catholics, and in Academy-street, to the Protestants; and that he heard of the practice only when the child told him of it in December. Was only at the Donegall-street national school, and knew no more of national schools than from what he recollects of it. Thought that as no religious instruction was given when he was a pupil in this school, that the same practice should prevail still; knew that some change had taken place in the regulations of the school, such as the giving of diet; but thought, notwithstanding, that no alteration had taken place in the rules as regards religious instruction.

7. Were you aware that the rules of the school are read to every parent or guardian before any child is admitted?—He was not. He was not aware that there were any printed rules, and cannot say that he ever saw any printed rules until now.

The rule of the school relating to the routine arrangements (page 33, line 5 of Seventh Report of the school) was here read, and the witness was asked if he had known of this rule, whether he would have permitted his niece to come to the school.—In reply he stated, that if he had known of the rule he would not have allowed her to come.

8. Do you consider it a good means of maintaining the discipline of any school to instruct the child to obstruct the teacher in the discharge of her duty?—In some points I think she would be wrong, and in other points right. When wrong, I mean so long as the teacher was not interfering with the child's religious instruction; and when right, when the teacher was giving religious instruction to the child which was objected to by her guardian.

9. By Rev. Mr. Orr.] Did the matron, Mrs. Todd, when you spoke to her, tell you that the Roman-catholic children read the Douay Testament in the morning class?—She did not.

10. Did she (Mrs. Todd) tell you that your niece must leave the school altogether, i. e., leave it during the entire day, if she did not come for religious instruction?—No.

[The Rev. Mr. Orr here hands in a document, of which the following is a copy:—]

“Mr. Orr intimates that he will not cross-examine the witness on behalf of the teachers of the school, upon the evidence he has given for Mary Sullivan, which bears against the teachers, as this has been already protested against.”

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud in the presence of the witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

John Twigg, being examined, deposes :

Evidence
of John Twigg:

He accompanied John Hayes to this school on the 2d or 3d of January. On arriving here a girl was sent for the mistress, and the mistress came. Witness and John Hayes inquired how the little girl (Mary Sullivan) was getting on, and were told she was doing very well. The mistress expressed herself pretty well satisfied with her behaviour, &c. They asked the mistress if she gave the child religious instruction, and were answered that she did, and that it was the rule of the place. Mr. Hayes said the child's parents had been Catholics, and that he wished the child to get no religious instruction in this school, and the mistress said, that there was but the one rule here, and that those who did not wish to comply with this rule could not be here. Witness considers that the religious instruction to which Hayes objected was the reading of the Bible and the Testament. They had asked the mistress what was the religious instruction given, and she answered that she had a Bible class, and a Testament class; they answered that the child could not read those books; then the mistress answered that as she could not read, she should sit in the class and hear them read. The mistress also said that the children of the school sang hymns. Witness is no relative of Mr. Hayes, but works in the same mill with him. Witness is a Roman-catholic.

Cross-examination.

11. Mr. Bottomley.] Did Mrs. Todd say that the Catholic children read from the Douay version?—No, she did not.

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs. Margaret Gilliland, being examined, deposes :

Has a child at this school, who will, she supposes, be 12 years old in July ; the child is a Catholic ; witness entered her here as a Catholic ; the father, who is five years dead, was a Protestant ; witness's child was received here as a Catholic ; it was two years in January last from the date of her admission. Witness intimated her wishes to the teacher regarding her child's receiving or not receiving religious instruction here. It was with Mrs. Todd she conversed on the occasion of intimating her wishes. Witness says that she came to the school and told Mrs. Todd not to give her child religious instruction of any sort. Mrs. Todd told her she was giving religious instruction just as Miss Orr had been giving it, and that she would not alter it until she would talk to the ladies of the committee on the Saturday following—that day being Wednesday. Mrs. Todd sent for witness on the following Monday morning, and told her she had spoken to the ladies concerning what witness had been speaking about, and said the ladies had directed her to say, that any children who would not come to the religious instruction should not come until 10 o'clock, but should get their breakfast at home, and come to school clean. Understood by that, that if her child did not come to the reading of the Bible, she should get no breakfast. Witness kept her accordingly at home until 10 o'clock. Some time after, Mrs. Todd told her (the child) that if she did not come at the regular hour (eight o'clock) she should stay at home altogether.

Evidence
of Mrs. M. Gilliland.
26 April 1855.

[Rev. Mr. Orr objects to witness detailing in evidence what her child told her.]

Since then was speaking to one of the ladies (Mrs. Bruce) on the subject ; Mrs. Bruce stated, the teacher was teaching witness's child only what she (Mrs. Bruce) thought was necessary ; and that when this school was visited by Catholic ladies, they all agreed to the religious instructions that were given, and that the rules could not be changed for a child or two. Witness's child attends in the morning at present, as Miss Orr asked her to attend the kitchen for a fortnight. She attends the religious instruction now, for as she comes at eight o'clock witness allows her to continue on. Notwithstanding any objections made by witness to the religious instruction, this religious instruction is still given to her child ; never withdrew these objections which she had made, nor never came back since. The child gets her breakfast now ; but when she did not attend the Bible class she did not get her breakfast.

Cross-examination.

12. Mr. Bottomley.] Were not the rules read to you relative to religious instruction when you entered the child ?—[The rule relating to religious instruction is read for the Witness].—Witness, in answer, thinks not ; all that she remembers in regard to that is, that the child would have to attend at eight o'clock in the morning. Remembers the morning she first brought her child, and recollects nothing about reading a rule.

13. How long was the child at the school before you made any objection to the religious teaching of the school ?—It was not until this winter that she made any objection, so that it was about two years.

14. Were you aware that religious instruction, such as referred to in the rule read to you, was given in the school during this time ?—Witness heard no word of it, nor no remark about it ; heard of the rule about religious instruction first this winter.

15. Did you never, during those two years, inquire of the child what was taught to her ?—She did not, for she did not think there was anything strange taught to her ; she was told before her child came first, there were no Catholic children taken into the school, but she afterwards heard it was a liberal school, and that the children got leave to go to their places of worship.

16. How did you first learn, and from whom, that religious teaching was the practice of the school ?—From the clergy inspecting the children in the chapel school.

[This was of a Sunday, at Sunday-school.]

17. Did you not state to Mrs. Bruce * that you did not object to the religious instruction, but that the clergy did ?—Yes ; if it was not for the clergy, and Mrs. Bruce's telling her that it was visited by the Catholic ladies ; for the clergy had a better right to know than she, who does not know how to read or write.† She came to Mrs. Bruce with the intention of giving her warning that she would withdraw her child altogether ; the child came to witness and asked her not to give warning that day, because Miss Orr had told her she would be in the kitchen for a fortnight, and would not be asked to attend the Bible class. Witness cannot say whether Mrs. Bruce asked her if she objected to the religious instruction herself, or if it was the clergy that objected.

18. Did you tell Mrs. Todd that the priest, Mr. Conway, had requested you to come about the religious instruction ?—She did, and that his Lordship the Bishop did the same.

19. After the child came at 10 o'clock for sometime, did she then, by your permission, come at eight o'clock ?—Yes ; she gave her liberty to come at eight o'clock. It was after Mrs. Bruce spoke to witness she gave her leave to come ; she has come ever since at eight o'clock ;

* Mrs. Bruce is Treasurer to the Committee.

† Nothing more intelligible than this could be got from the witness in answer to this question.

o'clock; it is about two months since; thinks her child at present receives the religious instruction; has an objection at present to her receiving the instruction.

[Mr. Bottomley objects to the last question.]

20. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Did she (witness) ever withdraw her objection, made against the religious instruction?—No.

21. Mr. Bottomley.] If you object to the religious instruction, why do you allow your child to come to receive it?—Witness will take her child out of it now, that is all she can do; she allowed her to attend for the last two months, because she was anxious her child should get as much education as possible, and she intended soon taking her away.

[The foregoing evidence was read in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

SECOND DAY, Friday, 27 April 1855.

Rose Anne Sosby, being examined, deposes :

Evidence
of Rose A. Sosby.

27 April 1855.

WITNESS placed a child in this school in the beginning of last winter; handed her over to the committee of ladies, who were sitting here. The ladies asked about the religion of her husband, who will be dead six years next June, and witness answered that he was a Protestant; no question, to her recollection, was asked of her in relation to her own religion, or that of her child; witness left her child here then; the child will be nine years old on the 25th of next June. Witness returned at a subsequent period to see about the religious instruction of her child; she came here in the morning (of a Monday), to make inquiries with the child; she came to the teacher, Mrs. Todd. Witness told Mrs. Todd that she wanted the child's religion to be changed, for she understood she was entered as a Protestant. Witness thinks the registration was made through her own neglect, on account of mentioning about the father's religion. Witness's child was baptized in the Catholic Church, and was, up to the time of placing her in the school, reared a Catholic; stated a moment ago, that when she entered her child here she neglected to have the registration of her child's religion made. Witness understood that the first two Sundays the child was here, she was sent to the church school (St. Ann's.) The child told her that she had been at the church school for these two Sundays, and witness never sent her here again on Sundays. It was on the Monday, eight days following this, that witness came to the school to speak to the mistress to alter the registration; she then came to the mistress to get her properly registered as a Catholic. She told Mrs. Todd her business, and Mrs. Todd told witness she could do nothing in the case; it was a monthly meeting day of the committee, and Mrs. Todd told her to come back that day at one o'clock. Witness accordingly came, saw a great number of ladies in the committee-room, told the ladies that she wanted her child's religion to be altered in the books, that she wished her to be entered as a Catholic. Witness first knew that her child was entered on the books as a Protestant by her child having been sent to the church school on Sunday. Witness told the committee the object of her visit to them, and was told, in answer to her application to have the entry of her child's religion changed, that they would make no alteration with regard to her religion; by that she understood that the religion of her child would not be changed; the ladies told her it would not: she further understood from the ladies' answer, that if the child remained in the school she would be educated as a Protestant, and if she did not remain what she was, she would be put out of the school; witness meant by the words "what she was," that she should remain as a Protestant, or be put out of the school; did not consent to allow her child to remain as a Protestant in the school. To the second part of the ladies' answer, namely, that the child should be put out of the school, witness answered "very well;" meant by that answer "very well," that she would abide by the consequences of her child being turned out of the school. Witness understood no further from the ladies than that according to the rules of the school, the child should remain as she was, or be sent home; that they would make no alteration. The child was told by Mrs. Todd that evening coming home, not to come back. Witness never sent the child back.

Cross-examination.

22. Mr. Bottomley.] To whom did you speak when you first brought the child to school?—On Saturday a lady visited her, and on the Monday following she brought the child to the committee of ladies.

23. Was not the rule (relative to religious instruction) read in your hearing at the time you brought the child first to this school?—Yes.

24. Were you not told, when you first brought your child to school, that whatever religion she was entered as belonging to she must so remain?—Witness does not recollect; and if it was spoken about, she must not have been paying attention.

25. Was it not at your own request that your child was entered as a Protestant?—Not at her request.

26. Did you not say, at the time you brought the child to school, that you had promised the father of the child to bring her up as a Protestant?—No, never; that was never mentioned.

27. Did

27. Did you not, at that time, know that the child was entered as a Protestant on the registry?—Not at that time; but witness leaves no fault on the ladies, as she herself neglected speaking on the subject in the right manner.

28. Were you not told distinctly that she was entered as a Protestant?—No, not to her recollection. When she came that day, she did not know that there would be any question asked about the religion of her child; knew that at schools religion was generally taught, and that, accordingly, religion would be taught here; knew that children of different persuasions were coming here; was aware that in some time her child would receive religious instruction; it was her poverty that induced her to send her here, and she was not thinking much of religion then; the child was not far advanced.

Question 28 is repeated.—The witness, in reply, says no; if it was put, she paid no attention to it; and she never intended that her child should be reared up a Protestant. The rules as to attendance she remembers having attended to; but she remembers nothing about religion, except as regards the religion of the father.

29. You stated that you mentioned that her father was a Protestant; why did you mention this to the ladies?—She was asked what religion, and she said her father was a Protestant; is not sure that she was not asked what religion she herself is.

30. Were you not asked what religion you wished your child entered?—She is not sure the question was asked; and if she was asked, and recollected, she would not have entered her as a Protestant, and come back in a few weeks to have it changed.

[An admission ticket is here shown to witness, and she states that she never saw one before.]

31. Did not the child get an admission ticket on which was noted the religion she was entered?—No; never saw a thing of the kind with her either at home or anywhere else.

32. Did you not know before she was sent to a church school that she was entered as a Protestant?—No.

33. Who told you to apply to have her religion changed on the registry?—The Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.

34. When the ladies said they could make no alteration in the registry, did they not also say, that it was one of the rules of the school that any child entered in the school shall be obliged to conform to the creed in which her parents have entered her?—Yes.

35. Did the child tell you why she was dismissed?—The child gave no reason; told her only that she was not to come back again.

36. Did the child tell you that it was because she told a lie that she was dismissed?—No; she told nothing of the kind.

[N. B.—Mr. Bottomley mentions that the last question was asked by mistake.]

37. Were you not told by the ladies that they could not alter the registry, but they had no wish to compel the child to act contrary to her mother's wishes; and, therefore, she had better leave the school?—Was told that the books could not be changed. The ladies told her the child must remain as she was, or go away. One of the ladies, whose name she does not know, told her that she might apply to Dr. Denvir for the child's support.

[The foregoing evidence was read in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs. Margaret M'Kenna, being examined, deposes:

Witness is a widow; has a child at this school, who is ten years old; witness is a Catholic; her child was baptized a Catholic; her child's name is Catherine, and she was reared a Catholic; the child has been better than two years at the school; she gets diet and clothes here; the child attended morning school until this morning. When witness brought her here, she told Miss Orr the religion of her child; told Miss Orr that her child was a Catholic in religion, and that she wished her to get nothing else; and Miss Orr told her she would get nothing else. When she brought the child here first, the ladies read for her that if the child were sick, she (witness) should come and tell, or send word, and that she should cut the child's hair. This is all she was told, and that the child was to be here at eight o'clock in the morning. The ladies read out of a book for her, and that is all she remembers they read for her. The ladies did not tell her that at half-past eight o'clock there would be a hymn sung and a Scripture lesson given; she is sure of this. Witness did not come back to the school to speak about the religion of her child until of late—Wednesday morning (the day before yesterday). The child told witness that any of the Catholics who did not choose to come to the Scripture lesson were not to come until ten o'clock. On Wednesday morning she came to Miss Orr, and told her the child was sick, and asked the reason why she was not to come until ten o'clock. Miss Orr said they were getting a deal of bother from the priests, and that they would not stand it.

[Mr. Bottomley here protests against this person being examined at all, as her evidence relates to a time subsequent to the writing of the charges by Dr. Denvir.]

Witness told Miss Orr that when her child was getting instructions that were not her own (Catholic), she would keep her at home until ten o'clock, and witness did keep her at home. Up to this time the child got her breakfast every morning; she does not get her breakfast now, as she does not come until ten o'clock. Miss Orr told witness that any child who did not come to the morning instructions might come at ten o'clock, and that she should have her breakfast at home and come clean. As the child has to stay at home until ten o'clock, she must get her breakfast at home; Miss Orr told witness so; does not know what the reason is for depriving her child of her breakfast, unless it be that she would not allow her to attend the Scripture lessons in the morning.

Cross-examination.

38. Mr. Bottomley.] Were you not aware, when you brought the child to this school, that this is not a Catholic school, but purely non-sectarian?—Knew that it was not a Catholic school, but a purely non-sectarian one, in which children of all denominations met, and were not interfered with.

39. How could you expect, then, that your child should be educated here in the Catholic religion?—She thought that, as Catholics visited and paid into the school, that there would be no interference with her child's religion.

40. Do you know now that the religion of the children is interfered with here, and how do you know?—She knows nothing more than that they read the Scriptures in the morning to the children.

[To the second part of the question witness answers, "Because the Scriptures are read to them in the mornings."]

Witness regards the reading of the Scriptures as an interference with the religion of the child, when it's not our own. Witness means, by "what's not our own," the Catholic Scriptures. Does not know how to read or write.

41. Is the Douay version of the Scriptures read in the school by the Catholic children?—Witness does not know what other children do, but her child does not, as she is not fit to read it.

42. Are you sure that the Catholic children do not read the Catholic Scriptures?—Witness does not know what they do.

Question 40 is here repeated.—If Catholic children read the Protestant Scriptures, witness would regard that as an interference; if they were read for them, she would regard it as an interference. If Catholic children read their own Bible, it would be right; if Catholic children heard their own Bible read, witness thinks it would be right. Witness's child does not know how to read the Scriptures; she hears the Protestant Scriptures read.

43. Suppose, then, that Catholic children in this school only read or heard the Catholic Scriptures, would you consider that there is interference in this school with their religion?—Witness would regard it as no interference.

44. Was not the rule (relative to religious instruction) read in your hearing at the time you entered the child?—Is quite sure that she never heard the rule as to religious instruction read when she first came to the school with her child.

45. During the whole two years the child was at the school, did you ever make any objection to the religious instruction till Wednesday last?—No; witness never did, because she did not know she was getting any.

46. Who told you to come here and speak about the religious instruction?—Witness came of her own accord. The child having told her that she was not to come till ten o'clock, she came to inquire the reason.

47. Did you come to object to the religious instruction being given to the child?—Yes; and to tell she was not well.

48. When did you see Dr. Denvir in reference to this matter?—She saw him yesterday, but did not speak to him.

49. At what hour did your child go to the school yesterday morning?—Witness: Eight o'clock.

50. Is it your impression that, if the child remains at home till ten o'clock, she will receive here secular instruction, clothing, and dinner?—Witness does not know what she will get, until she sees.

51. Did Miss Orr say to you that the ladies did not wish the child to remain absent till ten o'clock, but any child whose parent objected might do so?—Miss Orr said that any parents that objected might keep their children at home until ten o'clock, and that they should get their breakfast (at home).

52. Rev. Mr. Orr.] Did Miss Orr say anything about breakfast?—She said for them to stay at home until ten o'clock, to give them their breakfast at home, and to come clean.

53. Did Miss Orr not ask you if you had any thing else to tell her?—Witness does not know.

54. Did you not say to Miss Orr on passing through the hall, that you supposed she need not expect Catherine here till ten o'clock next day?—Witness supposed that as there were Scripture lessons going on, that she (Miss Orr) would not let her come.

55. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Do you believe the reading of the Scriptures to the children to be religious instruction?—Certainly; witness believes that it is.

56. Do you believe that the meaning of the passages of Scripture read to the children is given by the mistress of the class?—Witness's child never told her.

57. Do you believe that a Protestant or Presbyterian mistress is likely to explain the Catholic Scriptures in the same sense as a Catholic teacher would?—Witness believes that they should do it.

58. Do you believe that a member of any religion is the proper person to teach religion to a child of another communion?—Witness believes that in the teaching line (secular instruction), instruction), they could do no harm; she thinks that a Prebyterian is not the proper person to teach religion to her child.

59. Mr. Bottomley.] Was it not Dr. Denvir who told you to go to the school and speak about the religious instruction?—No.

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs. Rose M'Carroll, being examined, deposed :

Witness is married; her husband has been absent from her these seven years; has a child at this school named Mary M'Carroll, twelve years of age, who will be two years here the beginning of next month. Witness brought her child to the ladies of the committee, and the ladies admitted her. Witness is a Catholic; her child was baptized in the Catholic Church; reared by witness as a Catholic, and placed here as such; witness gave her in as a Catholic, and expected her to be reared as a Catholic. There was one lady that read for her the rules and regulations of the school when her child was being admitted for the first time. Is not sure that the rule requiring the child to be present at half-past eight o'clock for the Scripture lesson and hymn was read; she does not remember. Witness heard children say that they read the Bible for them in the school; that they got their own Bibles by times; heard her own child say that the Protestant Bible was read for all the children at half-past eight o'clock every morning. Witness came on Monday last to inquire after the religious instruction which was given to her child; saw Mrs. Todd; told her she was sent to tell her not to give Mary M'Ardle any more religious instruction; was sent by Rev. Mr. M'Auley. Witness was told by the Rev. Mr. M'Auley that it was her duty to see after the religious instruction which her child was getting. Mrs. Todd said (to witness) that some time before this, there had been Catholic ladies here, and they said nothing against their way of religious instruction; and she supposed that witness would have to take her out of it (take her child out of the school); but in reply to witness's question, "would she be sent out of it?" Mrs. Todd answered, "she supposed she would not." Mrs. Todd assigned no reason why witness should take her out of it. Mrs. Todd did not say that she might come at ten o'clock, after getting her breakfast; the child has since come to school every day. Witness told Mrs. Todd at the time, that she was a poor woman, and that it did not fit her to keep her at home. The child comes at eight o'clock in the morning; she is still present at the Scripture class. Witness is certain that on Monday she told Mrs. Todd not to give her child any more religious instruction; it was for that she came; did not since tell Mrs. Todd that she had changed her mind about what she told her on Monday, for she was not here again until yesterday. Religious instruction has been given to her child since last Monday, without her own (witness's) consent.

Evidence of
Mrs. R. M'Carroll.

Cross-examination.

60. Mr. Bottomley.] Is it not with your consent and permission that your child comes here at eight o'clock in the morning?—Yes, it is.

61. Do you not know that she receives religious instruction at half-past eight o'clock?—Yes; she listens to it.

62. Are you aware that a notice is put up in the school at the time of religious instruction, as a notice that all whose parents object to such instruction may withdraw?—Did not know of any being up.

63. You said Mrs. Todd said she supposed you must take her away; did you understand by that the child was to be taken away altogether, or only from the religious exercise class?—She supposed it would be to leave the school entirely.

64. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Do you believe that if your child did not attend the religious instruction, she would be kept in the school, or that she would be deprived of her breakfast?—Witness cannot say.

[The foregoing evidence was read in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs. Thompson, being examined, deposed :

Witness is a member of the school committee; recollects calling, accompanied by another lady, on the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, about three months since. The visit arose out of being a member of the collecting committee. Witness asked Dr. Denvir for his annual subscription, and was told that as he was dissatisfied with some of the practices in the school, he should withhold his subscription until he should inquire into them, and be satisfied.

On a subsequent occasion witness, accompanied by Miss M'Loughlin, visited Dr. Denvir, and told him that as the rules of the school were drawn up with great care, by a committee composed of persons of the Established Church, Presbyterian Church, Dissenting congregations, members of the Society of Friends, and Roman-catholics, and as these rules were seven years in force, and published annually in the Reports of the Institution, and moreover had never been objected to previously, the ladies of the committee did not feel warranted in making any alteration whatever in them.

Witness's second visit to the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir was at the request of the committee.

Witness does not recollect having been present on any day, when an objection was made by Mary Sullivan, to be present at the religious instruction.

[The foregoing evidence was read in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Evidence of
Mrs. R. Thompson.

Miss M'Laughlin, being examined, deposed:

Evidence of
Miss M'Laughlin.
27 April 1855.

Witness is a member of the school committee since the commencement of the school. Witness was present at the committee on one occasion, when Mary Sullivan was brought into the room to be corrected for disturbing the school in the morning. Recollects the mistress (Miss M'Kinstry) stating to the committee that Mary Sullivan's parent or guardian had, two days previously, objected to her reading the Scriptures; and that the child, on this morning, had refused to read them, had objected in a bold manner, and induced others to join her. Mary Sullivan was sent for to be reprimanded for disturbing the school, and was desired to go home and return on Saturday with her guardian to be reprimanded, or dismissed the school (witness is not sure which). Witness already stated that the disturbance was caused by the child's objecting to read the Scriptures. It is quite clear in the recollection of witness, that the schoolmistress, Miss M'Kinstry, called the attention of the committee to the rule of the Board, empowering parents and guardians to object to religious instruction of which they do not approve. Witness thinks that the committee determined that they would make no change in their rules. It was on the occasion of several objections having been made, that the committee determined on making no change in their rules.

Cross-examination.

65. Mr. Bottomley.] You said the mistress stated to you, that Mary Sullivan was making a disturbance in the school, and induced others to be bold; as a member of a school-committee, do you not think it a gross breach of school discipline for a child to be disobedient to her teacher, and to induce others to be unruly?—It would be, only that her objection to the religious instruction was not attended to.

66. Had the child any right, according to the rules of the school or the National Board, to object to any kind of instruction?—Through her parents; of herself, she (witness) does not know, as she is not acquainted with the rules.

67. Dr. Denvir.] Do you believe a child to be acting improperly who would firmly refuse to receive religious instruction, when directed by her parent or guardian not to receive it, after such parent or guardian had formally objected?—Witness could not think the child would be acting improperly.

68. Do you think the committee or mistress had a right to correct a child for refusing to attend religious instruction, which her guardian ordered her not to be present at?—No; witness does not think they had. The correction was for the disturbance, and nothing else.

[The above evidence was read aloud for witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mr. Bottomley then calls on Dr. Denvir to enter into the case of the child, who he alleged had been tampered with.

Dr. Denvir refuses to enter into this case for the reasons given in his statement of yesterday. In addition, Dr. Denvir states that the witnesses in the case were absent at Tullymore, county Down.

Mr. Bottomley states that the Ladies' Committee are prepared to rebut the case.

Mr. Bottomley requests that the inquiry be adjourned to Wednesday next.]

THIRD DAY, Wednesday, 2 May 1855.

Mr. Bottomley makes the following statement:

Statement
of Mr. Bottomley.
2 May 1855.

On behalf of the committee of the Belfast Ladies' Industrial School for girls, it now becomes my duty to submit to you, and through you to the Board of National Education, the following reply to the charges which were brought against this school by the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, on the 2d February last, and to the evidence which he has produced before you to substantiate those charges.

The charges against the management of the school naturally divide themselves under three heads, and I give them in the language of Dr. Denvir himself.

"1st. I find upon examination of some of the Catholic children who attend it, that it is compulsory on them to attend to Scripture reading, singing of Protestant hymns, explanation of Scripture by a Protestant mistress, every morning before the hours appointed for secular instruction.

"2d. Should Catholic children or their parents or guardians object to these religious exercises, their remonstrances are unavailing; and if a child refuse to be present at them, I am informed, and I believe, that such child will be denied secular instruction, and other benefits of the institution.

"3d. One child who, being under 12 years of age, and reared a Catholic, was prevailed upon by some person to go to church, and being claimed by her paternal uncle and maternal aunt, as well as other near relatives, has been so tampered with as to refuse going with them, and is retained by the school committee."

It might have been expected that a Commissioner of National Education, in bringing an accusation against any school placed under the Board would have preferred charges more precise and definite, and would have stated distinctly that a rule or certain rules of the Board had been violated, and the exact nature of that violation. Instead of taking this course, which would have brought the question to a tangible issue, he has advanced charges of a vague and ambiguous nature.

The first charge, even were it proved, involves no breach of the rules of the Board, since it is perfectly allowable for the committee to give the religious instruction which they have established in the school, to all children, whether Catholics or Protestants, whose parents or guardians have consented to that religious instruction; and I shall demonstrate, by the clearest evidence, that the parents or guardians of the children attending this school, have been consenting parties to the religious teaching given in the school.

What the nature of that religious teaching is I shall also exhibit; and it will then be seen that it was established by the earnest co-operation of ladies of various religious denominations, including Roman-catholics, and that it in no respect deserves the insinuation of sectarian character, which Dr. Denvir has cast upon it. In reference to the matter I call your particular attention to the fact, that throughout the whole of the evidence produced by Dr. Denvir, not a single witness has given one particle of direct and reliable evidence as to the character of the religious teaching of the school, as to what the hymns are which are sung, or the explanations of Scripture which are given.

The school is open to the inspection of all, so that any who please may see and hear what kind of education is given; and yet Dr. Denvir himself, though a Commissioner of National Education, contented himself with the merest hearsay evidence, instead of entering the school, and satisfying himself by his own knowledge that his suspicions were groundless.

The third charge Dr. Denvir declined to enter upon, alleging that it was about to be brought before the Court of Chancery, and that the witnesses are now in the county Down. The ladies of the committee, however, will not consent to have charges brought against them which cannot be substantiated, and they will insist on a full and complete investigation of the whole case before the inspectors, as bearing in the strongest manner on the question of the management of this school. To this matter I shall call your attention at a subsequent period.

The second head of Dr. Denvir's charge, namely, that in the case of the parent or guardian objecting to the religious exercises of the school, the child is denied secular instruction and other benefits of the institution, would be certainly a violation of the rules of the National Board if it were a fact, as he was informed and believed, and to substantiate this charge the witnesses were examined before you.

The first witness examined was John Hayes, who calls himself guardian of his niece, Mary Sullivan.

The child was not placed in the school by him, but by her grandmother, who it will be proved must have consented to the religious instruction, and the committee can recognise no other person as the guardian of the child while she is alive. His evidence is full of contradictions and misrepresentations of the plainest facts, in consequence of his not coming to the school and seeing what were the instructions given. This he says he was informed by the child, that the Commandments were not those belonging to her Church; that he was told by Mrs. Todd that the Bible and Testament were read, both of which statements are contradicted by the fact that the Scripture Extracts and the Testament alone are read. He made the objection to the religious teaching, but, even were he allowed to be the guardian, instead of ordering the child to withdraw during the time of the religious instruction, he gave her directions which she obeyed, to remain and object; and the consequence was, that "she refused to read, made a noise, and induced others to join in the disturbance," (see Miss McLaughlin's evidence, page 22). Now were it not that the questions put to this witness and to Miss McLaughlin on the same subject by Dr. Denvir, convey the impression that he considers such conduct justifiable on the part of the child who made the disturbance, and the person who incited her to do so, I should consider it a waste of time to prove that such conduct is subversive of all discipline, and, as might be supposed, contrary to the rule of the Board on this subject. It must be evident, on a moment's reflection, that a child attending the school of which Dr. Denvir is the patron, whose parent objected to the religious teaching of the school, but who, instead of coming at the hour of secular instruction, insisted on remaining during the hour of religious instruction, objecting to the teaching, making a noise, and inciting others to rebellion, would be able to throw the school into utter confusion, and prevent those whose parents wished them to be instructed in religion, from receiving the benefits of that instruction, a thing which could not be tolerated for a moment.

On this point the directions of the Board are explicit. See in vol. I. of the Reports, pp. 147, 148, the letter in relation to the Temple Meeting-house school, in which the following occurs:—

"The rule that the hours from two till three of each day, except Saturday, shall be employed in reading and instruction in the Holy Scriptures is quite compatible with the regulations of the Commissioners, provided that such children only as are directed by their parents to attend be then allowed to continue in the school, and that all others do retire.

"The Commissioners desire me to observe, that it is of the essence of their rules that religious instruction should be given only at the time specially appointed for that purpose, and that the children whose parents do not direct them to be present at it should previously retire."

Statement
of Mr. Bottomley.

2 May 1855.

The child, Mary Sullivan, was, in consequence of this behaviour, and her statement that she was determined to persevere in such conduct (Hayes, in fact, had told her to do the same the next morning), dismissed from the school.

The second witness was John Twigg, who was merely present at the conversation of John Hayes with Mrs. Todd, and whose evidence adds nothing to that of Hayes.

The third witness was Margaret Gilliland, who, after having had a child at school for two years, came and told Mrs. Todd (according to her statement) that her child was not to have religious instruction, though afterwards, when she spoke to Mrs. Bruce on the subject, she stated that she herself did not object, but the clergy did. What then was the decision of the committee? The witness tells you that Mrs. Todd sent for witness on the following morning, and told her she had consulted the Ladies' Committee, who said that any persons who did not wish to send their children to the morning class could keep them at home till ten o'clock. This is the hour when secular instruction commences; and by this arrangement no child whose parent objects to the religious instruction of the school is denied secular instruction, or industrial training, or any other benefit of the institution for which the Board contributes funds.

The committee, in this case, as in the last, adhere strictly, both in letter and spirit, to the rules of the Board.

The child has come ever since (and this objection was made some months ago) at eight o'clock, and the witness allows her to receive the religious instruction which, in reply to Dr. Denvir, she says she objects to, and this in spite of the warnings of Miss Orr, the teacher; and she was present on Monday last, the 30th April, when I visited the school, during the time of religious instruction. At the examination of this witness I asked her why she allowed her child to come and receive the religious instruction if she objected to it? Her reply was, "I will take her out of it." She has not yet done so.

With regard to the cases of M'Kenna and M'Carroll I need make no remark, except to express my astonishment, which I am sure will be shared by the Board of National Education, when they learn that these women were sent by the Rev. Mr. M'Auley to make objections to the religious instruction given in this school, the former on Wednesday last, the 25th of April, the day before this investigation commenced, and the latter on the 23d of April; and that this evidence was produced by Dr. Denvir, and received by the inspectors as proof of the truth of charges made on the 2d of February, previous. I protested, and I do again, on behalf of the Ladies' Committee, protest against such a procedure, as being contrary to the principles of common sense and the fair rules of evidence; and I stated then, and I again repeat, that the Ladies' Committee meet every Saturday, and they had not the opportunity of making any decision on these cases whatsoever, the objections being made on the 23d and 25th of April, and the committee not meeting till the 28th of April, and these witnesses were produced on the 27th of April.

This evidence, it must be apparent, is utterly worthless, even were it admitted, since it merely establishes the fact of objections being tendered on which no decision has been made, or were possible to be made by the committee.

This concludes the whole of the evidence (with the exception of one witness, to whose testimony I shall presently call your attention) brought by Dr. Denvir to prove the grave charges brought by him against the management of this school; for Mrs. Thompson, whom Dr. Denvir called, only gave an account of a conversation with Dr. Denvir, in which she stated the decision of the committee in reference to making any change in the rules of the school; and to this determination they still adhere; and Miss M'Laughlin, who was called in reference to Mary Sullivan, added nothing to the information you already have on that subject.

The only remaining witness produced by Dr. Denvir is Rose Anne Sosby. For what purpose, adverse to the school, she was brought forward I cannot imagine; for had the committee desired to bring before the inspectors the most conclusive evidence of the non-sectarian character of this establishment, of the earnest desire of the committee to do equal justice to all sects and parties, and of the safeguards established by them to prevent, so far as lies in their power, all tampering with the religious faith of the pupils, and their firm determination, in the words of Lord Stanley's letter, "to superintend a system of education from which should be banished even the suspicion of proselytism, and which, admitting children of all religious persuasions, should not interfere with the peculiar tenets of any," they could not have brought forward a stronger case in their own favour.

The facts of the case are these:—The woman brought her child to the school. She herself is a Roman-catholic; but the husband, the father of the child, who has been dead some years, was a Protestant. The woman states that she does not recollect accurately the conversation between her and the committee, and her evidence of what took place before the committee I shall prove is incorrect. She denies that she asked the committee to enter her child as a Protestant, on the ground that the child's father was a Protestant, and that she wished the child to be the same; but this I shall prove was the case, not only from the testimony of one of the members of the committee present at the time, but also from the minutes of the committee themselves. The child, it is allowed on all hands, was entered an Episcopalian, and as such sent on Sundays to attend St. Anne's Church. The woman returned to the committee shortly after, and stated that she wished the religion of the child changed on the registry. The committee refused this application, and preferred that the child should leave the school rather than break through the rule which had been framed for the express purpose of preventing the change of the religion religion of any child while remaining under the care of the Committee of the Ladies' Industrial National School.

Statement
of Mr. Bottomley.

2 May 1855.

The following is the minute, dated 11th December 1854, relating to Sosby:—

“Rose Anne Sosby came to committee to say that she wished her child, who had been lately admitted into the school, and then entered as a Protestant, to be entered on the books as a Roman-catholic. Although herself a Roman-catholic, yet her husband having been a Protestant, she wished her child then to be the same; but she had received several messages from the priest, and she was compelled to come to the committee.

“Resolved, That the committee cannot, in any instance, break through the rule—Committee Minute Book, page 78, 10th November 1851. They have, therefore, decided that the child should leave the school, as they will not break through the rule on one hand, and have no wish on the other to compel the child to act contrary to her mother's wishes.—11th December 1854.”

The following is the minute of 10th November 1851, referred to in the above minute:—

“That any child entered in the school, shall in future be obliged, during the time of remaining a pupil, to conform to the creed by which her parents have entered her.”

The passage in the opening statement of Dr. Denvir upon this matter, containing the narrative of what occurred before the committee, is as follows:—

“She informs me, that the reply given was, that the religious denomination of the child would not be changed, that having entered as a Protestant, she must remain such.”

This reply was made by the committee, who said the child must remain a Protestant or leave the school.

All this is the exact truth. Dr. Denvir does not say what inference, unfavourable to the school, he wishes to have drawn from it; and what inference, except that of unqualified approbation could be deduced from it, I am at a loss to discover. It is easy to see how a contrary course, the permission of the change of the religion of a child as registered on the books of the school, and the consequent change of the place of worship which the child is to attend on Sundays, would be the means by which proselytism, to the most unbounded extent, could be carried on.

I have now done with the evidence produced in support of Dr. Denvir's charges. Incorrect and inconsistent as are many of the statements of the witnesses, arising from the peculiar position in which these poor women were placed; called upon to object, at the dictation of others, to a system of instruction of which they were completely ignorant, but of whose happy effects on the minds, and habits, and morals of their children, whom they were themselves unable to provide either with the necessities of life or moral training, they had the fullest experience; to these statements the ladies offer no correction, except that which may come out incidentally in the course of the evidence they will produce. Taking the evidence as it now stands, I assert, without fear of contradiction, that it does not establish against the committee of this school one single violation, even in the minutest particular, of any of the rules of the National Board; and did the case terminate here, the decision of the Commissioners of National Education must be, that the charges have in no respect been proved, and ought never to have been brought against this school.

The committee of the ladies of the Industrial National School for Girls feel that they owe a much higher duty to the subscribers to this charity, whose stewards they are; to the National Board of Education, from whose funds they receive grants; and to themselves, than that of merely repelling the charges brought against them. They desire the fullest and most searching examination into the whole history, principles, and management of this school, and its connexion with the Board of National Education, and to these subjects I now invite your attention.

This school was commenced in the year 1847—a year which will be long remembered in the annals of Ireland as the famine year. It was the first ragged school established in Ireland. The mode of its introduction into this town is detailed in the First Report of the Committee, from which I make the following extract:—

“Being early made aware that none of the attempts to assist the adult poor could be of permanent utility, and anxious to lead the awakened sympathies of our fellow-citizens to some project which might look beyond the immediate sufferings of the labouring classes, we gladly listened to the proposal of a ragged or industrial school, similar to those in Dundee and Aberdeen. This suggestion was all the more favourably received, from proposals of annual subscriptions which accompanied it, from many individuals deeply impressed with the utility of such an institution.

“Accordingly, on the 17th March, in the eventful year 1847, the first Belfast School of Industry was opened in the House of Correction, the pupils being removed thence to Frederick-street on the 1st August following.

“The sober judgment of the committee recommended a small beginning and a gradual increase, where the habits of the earlier pupils were improved, but starving creatures were daily pleading for admittance, others were dying in their homes from absolute want; we possessed the means of giving them food and shelter, and we felt that a timid policy would have been little less than criminal.

“Thus, on the 1st of May the school numbered 80 children; and, in the early part of July, the industrial occupation of women having ceased, several of the most destitute of

Statement

"those who had been receiving employment were allowed to send a child, in some instances two children, to be supported in the school. By this means the names on the roll reached 116, though the prevalence of disease brought the actual attendance under 100."

The difficulties which had to be contended with are illustrated by the following extract from the First Report, page 8—

"Of those admitted at the opening of the school, many should be considered as learners of only a few months' continuance, since the prevalence of disease among a large portion has occasioned extreme irregularity of attendance, the effects of which, especially among the beggar girls, was most pernicious. Idle and giddy, with low moral perceptions, and possessing an undesirable precocity in those faculties which early training had developed; no class of children have stronger claims to compassion, none are more difficult to discipline into regular habits."

"Yet in regard to these, the effects of the severe winter of 1847 were, at first, favourable. Taken off the streets, at a time when even begging could not always procure food, many of them exhibited considerable steadiness, and went on in a satisfactory course of improvement, till visited by some contagious disease. The consequent absence from school, and a lengthened stay in the hospital, was always most injurious; for by the former, the effects of previous instruction were lost; by the latter, every habit of earlier idleness was confirmed by the companionship of giddy associates."

With regard to the class of society from which these children were and are taken, the Report (First) speaks thus:

"The following classes of children shall be eligible; 1st. Orphans bereaved of parents, but provided with shelter for the night, at the house of some friend. 2d. Children of destitute widows. 3d. Neglected children. 4th. Special cases of poverty from sickness or other causes. Destitution to form the primary claim on all occasions, and strict inquiry to be made previous to admitting every child. The following classes of children shall be excluded; 1st. Those already attending a day school. 2d. Those whose parents can earn a regular income, and who are, therefore, able to give them education. 3d. Those who have a claim for maintenance on any other society."

The class, then, which is chosen by this charity is the most destitute, the most abandoned, the most hopeless of society. The greater the misery and the vice of the parents, the greater are the claims of the unhappy children on the benevolence of the committee. It is to such that their mission is more especially directed, to seek, and, if possible, to save those who otherwise are in the most imminent danger of being lost. It is the parents struggling in hopeless poverty, just about to enter the union workhouse with their families, to whom these ladies offer the bodily sustenance, the training in habits of industry and of order, the instruction in reading, and above all, the religious instruction which they so much require. Hence, religious instruction is an essential element in such a school, and to this point I beg your most serious consideration. All rights and duties are reciprocal. It is the incontestible right of parents and guardians of children to give to their children the bodily sustenance, the education, and the religious training, which they consider best for their temporal and their eternal interests. It is equally their duty to provide those for their children; but in cases of extreme poverty, or where parents are pursuing vicious courses, these duties cannot be performed. This school opens its arms to receive such children as cannot otherwise be cared for. The parents or the guardians, in bringing these children to this school, are carefully made acquainted with the exact course of training—literary, industrial, moral, and religious—pursued in the school. No compulsion is used; the parents or guardians consent to the system of this school; they come voluntarily; and I shall prove by the highest evidence possible to be adduced, that every effort is used by the committee to make the parents understand the exact nature of the training, including the religious instruction to which the child will be subjected.

How, then, can it be asserted, with even the semblance of truth, that this school compels children to receive instruction to which the parents or guardians object? The parents or guardians are consenting parties to the system of religious instruction pursued in this school. I repeat, once more, that I will prove that in every case the parent or guardian of each child in the school has consented to the religious instruction given in this school.

Now, the rules of the Board of National Education are clear upon this point, that the patrons of national schools (in the present case, the committee are the patrons) may afford to the children the religious instruction which their parents or guardians approve of.

See section 2, par. 2 and 3 of the Rules, as published in the Twentieth Report:—"Opportunities are to be afforded to the children of each school for receiving such religious instruction as their parents or guardians approve of."

"The patrons of the several schools have the right of appointing such religious instruction as they may think proper to be given therein, provided that each school be open to children of all communions; that due regard be had to parental right and authority; that, accordingly, no child be compelled to receive, or to be present at any religious instruction to which his parents or guardians object; and that the time for giving it be so fixed, that no child shall be thereby, in effect, excluded, directly or indirectly, from the other advantages which the school affords. Subject to this, religious instruction may be given either during the fixed school-hours, or otherwise."

Now,

Statement
of Mr. Bottomley.
2 May 1855.

Now, undoubtedly, it is possible that parents may change their minds, whether through the influence of others, or by their own reflection, matters not, and may object to teaching which they had formerly approved of. Some of the parents of children in the school have recently objected; none, I believe, before the beginning of the present year. In that case, what is the conduct of the committee? I will give you the rule of the school, taken from the minute-book.

February 12, 1855.—“Objection to the joint reading having been removed, and professing now to come from the parents, it was resolved, that as no radical change could be made in our early morning arrangements, without an entire sacrifice of the time of the Protestant pupils, we cannot admit during this time any children whose idleness would disturb the reading; but still, willing to do for the community all we pledge ourselves to them and the National Board, we shall in future allow objectors to attend for secular instruction from 10 o'clock, A. M., till six, P. M., every day. Meanwhile, in doing this, we again solemnly protest, that we have never interfered with the religion of any children, or swerved from our non-sectarian principles.”

This resolution, it requires no argument to prove, is in exact accordance with the rule of the National Board.

Secular instruction and industrial training are here entirely separated from the religious exercises in conformity with the rules of the Board, and it will be proved that the regulation of the Board in respect to the time-table and the card with “religious instruction” in large letters, are strictly complied with. Not only is this the case, but the Board of National Education have been kept accurately informed of this very time-table, which is exactly the same in all essential particulars now as it was at the commencement of the school. Here are some extracts from the reports of the Commissioners, and the reports of the Inspector, Mr. Blakely, in reference to this school:

Vol. ii., p. 67 (Fourteenth Report).—“The efforts of several philanthropic associations have of late been directed to the industrial training of children under their care. Various interesting reports have appeared in the ‘Minutes of the Committee of Council on Education,’ and in other publications on ‘Schools of Industry,’ established within the last few years in England and Scotland.

“Those cheering accounts of the beneficial influence of schools of industry have induced a few benevolent individuals in Belfast and Ballymena to open establishments of a similar nature in those towns.

“We have received applications to place those schools in connexion with our Board. We have accordingly done so, and are happy to state that the industrial departments of these institutions are in a flourishing condition. We have recently directed our inspectors who reside in the Belfast and Ballymena districts, to visit and report upon the results of the experiment now in progress in those parts of the north of Ireland to promote schools of industry. From their reports we give some interesting extracts in the Appendix. How far such schools will permanently succeed is a question not yet decided. Their influence in preventing crime, and their value in reclaiming the young from immoral habits, seem to be generally admitted. The subject is one of the greatest importance to the welfare of the rising generation, and shall receive our best attention. Wherever it is practicable to ingraft a school of industry upon the system of literary education adopted in our national schools, we shall encourage the experiment by every means in our power.”

Vol. ii., p. 156 (Fifteenth Report).—“In 1847 we had five schools of industry, which have been satisfactorily conducted during the year. To this number, four have been added in the course of 1848. The greater number of these schools is attended principally by females, who are instructed in various branches of domestic industry. We have given direction to the inspectors to pay particular attention to the management of these schools, and to make special reports, at stated periods, on their condition, and on the results which they have produced.”

Vol. ii., p. 348 (from District Inspector Blakely’s Report).—“The Belfast Industrial School has been in operation for rather more than two years, and has fully realised the expectations of those ladies by whose almost unparalleled exertions its original establishment was effected, and to whose unwearied attention its present position is to be attributed. And here I cannot do better than repeat the different classes of children who are eligible for admission:—First, orphans bereaved of parents, but provided with shelter for the night at the house of some friend; second, children of destitute widows; third, neglected children; fourth, special cases of poverty.

“That there is no distinction made on the grounds of ‘religious sect,’ will appear from the fact, that of the 108 pupils at present on the books, 47 are Roman-catholics, 34 are Episcopalians, and 27 are Presbyterians.”

Vol. iii., p. 378 (from District Inspector Blakely’s Report).—“I cannot close this report without again expressing how much indebted the inhabitants of this town are to those ladies who have spent so much time, and gone to so much expense and trouble in looking after the young creatures who have ‘no friend to help them.’ Any one who is familiar with the lanes and by-ways, too many of which abound in this town, and with the tenements where misery in all its forms is to be found, must hold in admiration those of the gentler sex who, undeterred through fear of infection, and burying every womanly weakness, seek out the suffering among their fellow-creatures, in order to lend them relief; and what

"lends the greatest charm is, to find all sects engaged in the task. It is by females the example has been set; let men 'go and do likewise.'"

Vol. iv., p. 414 (from District Inspector Blakely's Report).—"Since the commencement of this school, the combination of industrial with literary education has been strictly adhered to; and the result, at the end of four years' experience, proves most satisfactorily that the system is not only practicable, but highly advantageous.

"I would observe, that were this system carried out in every national school, it would be of vast benefit to the poorer classes.

"I should be guilty of a great dereliction of duty, did I close this report without paying a well-merited compliment to those ladies who have so zealously, and with unqualified approbation from all classes, supported this institution."

Vol. vi., p. 750 (from District Inspector Blakely's Report):

Vol. ix., p. 5 (from District Inspector Blakely's Report).—"Food and clothing are supplied to all the children from the funds of the house, the proceeds of their work being very trifling, owing to their extreme ignorance, when admitted, in any kind of work which would be remunerative.

"The combining industrial with literary instruction has been carried out in this school from its commencement; and now, after a trial of more than five years, has been found quite practicable and successful."

These reports speak for themselves.

Dr. Denvir has stated before you, "one of the rules of this establishment" is quite incompatible with the rule of the Board, sec. 2, par. 3, viz.:

"The routine of school avocations is as follows:—The children assemble at eight in the morning; those children appointed to do the work of the house are to come an hour earlier; half an hour is given for washing, changing the clothes, combing the hair; at half-past eight a hymn is sung, and a Scripture lesson given; breakfast at nine; playground till ten; from ten till two in school; dinner and play from two till three; school resumed at three, and continued till dark in winter, and six in summer."

Now let me call Dr. Denvir's attention, as a Commissioner of National Education, to the following rules of similar establishments (with the exception that these are conducted on sectarian, while this is conducted on non-sectarian principles), and let me ask him to point out why the rules of this school are to be denounced as incompatible with the rules of the National Board, while those are to escape without censure. Mark this: I do not blame these schools for so acting; on the contrary, I consider that it would be easy to show that the very nature of these establishments, which take children from their parents for the whole day, from morning till evening—the patrons of the schools making themselves thus responsible for the supply of every want, bodily, and mental, and moral, which it is in their power to bestow—necessitates such an arrangement. Even if the parents should, after placing their children here, or in the other industrial schools, charge their mind, and object to the religious instruction communicated, the patrons of the schools, while opening their schools to these children for secular instruction only, in accordance with the rule of the Board, would yet consider that the parent incurs the most serious responsibility in thus depriving his child of the only means of obtaining any religious instruction during the six days of the week, and would consider that the parent would perform his duty to his child far more effectually by removing the child from the school altogether, and placing her in a school in whose religious teaching he had confidence.

Let me now refer to the schools I have mentioned.

In vol. iv., page 422, of the Board's Reports, District Inspector Clarke reports on the St. Mary's Industrial School, Limerick, and gives the following time table of that school :

Statement
of Mr. Bottomley.

In vol. vi., page 763, the same Inspector reports on the same school (the St. Mary's Industrial National School), and states :

"The following are the regulations connected with discipline for persons admitted to the House of Mercy :

1. The inmates shall rise at six o'clock each morning, and be ready for morning prayers in ten minutes.

2. They shall arrange their beds in the neatest manner, as prescribed, and at the appointed time.

3. They shall attend at morning and night prayers.

4. They shall observe silence from night prayer till after breakfast the following morning.

5. They shall apply themselves with diligent attention to the employment appointed for them, and are never to be found, at any hour, in any part of the house but the place appointed for performing the duty they are at that time discharging.

In vol. vi., page 764, the inspector gives the following as the time table of the Mount St. Vincent Orphan National School :—

Statement
of Mr. Bottomley.

2 May 1855.

There is one important particular in the two last schools, which ought not to escape without notice, and that is, the mixing up of religious instruction with industrial training,* which would certainly appear to me verge on a violation of the principles of the Board, which forbids such a mixture.

It remains now that I should present evidence of the management of the school in every respect; the ladies of the committee will state the principles on which the committee act; and the minutes of their proceedings will be handed in. The ladies will explain the management of the school, and the nature of the instruction which is given; it will be shown that the committee is composed of ladies of various religious persuasions, including the Roman-catholic; that the system of religious teaching was arranged at the special instance of a Roman-catholic lady, now no more, but whose memory will be honoured in the school, as long as it has a being; that every particular relative to the instruction, secular and religious, given here, is carefully explained to the parent or guardian before any child is admitted, and that every parent who has a child here, has consented freely and fully to every particular; that the system of religious instruction is of a purely non-sectarian character, devised, in fact, upon the very principles which the National Board would themselves sanction, putting into practice, in fact, the whole spirit of their rule, and of the preface to their Scripture Extracts. See Reports, vol. 1, p. 104, evidence of Mr. Blake, before Select Committee of the House of Commons, 1835, from which I take the following:—

"4239. Have not the several members of the Board shown the utmost anxiety for the diffusion of the Bible?—Certainly; if the Committee will have the goodness to refer to the preface to the first number of Scripture Extracts, they will find the views and feelings of the Board fully set out there. I beg to call the attention of the Committee to the following passages:—

"These selections are offered, not as a substitute for the sacred volume itself, but as an introduction to it; and they have been compiled in the hope of their leading to a more general and more profitable perusal of the Word of God."

"Again,—

"The Commissioners of Education earnestly and unanimously recommend these lessons to be used in all schools receiving aid from them. They would rather trust to a simple recommendation, than adopt any rule for their use, even bordering upon compulsion, persuaded that if the book be not received willingly, no compulsion will secure a cordial and beneficial use of it; and confident that an appeal to the good sense, and good feeling of the teachers and conductors of schools, by a Board that honestly desires to promote their well-being, and to be on the most friendly and affectionate terms with them, will be of more avail than the most rigid enactments. The Commissioners offer these extracts from Scripture to the careful attention of teachers and children, not only as truth, but as truth recorded under the influence of inspiration, and truth with which it is of the utmost importance for them to be well acquainted. And to the religious instruction of the children they cheerfully leave, in communicating that instruction, the use of the sacred volume itself, as containing those doctrines and precepts, a knowledge of which must lie at the foundation of all true religion. The law of the Lord is unspotted, converting souls: the testimony of the Lord is faithful, giving wisdom to little ones."

"4240. Have you found from the Catholic clergy any opposition to the diffusion of the Bible?—The Roman-catholic members of the Board were willing that the Scriptures, Protestant and Roman-catholic, should be supplied by the Board to the different schools; the Protestant authorised version for the Protestant children, and the Roman-catholic authorised version for the Roman-catholic children, but to be used only at the periods of religious instruction. The Protestant Ecclesiastical Commissioners did not think that they could, with propriety, be parties to circulating the Roman-catholic version of the Scriptures, and therefore it is, that the Scriptures are not at all supplied by the Board. Dr. Murray, the Roman-catholic Archbishop, was perfectly willing that they should be applied in the way I have mentioned."

The evidence will show that every care is taken to prevent proselytism, so far as it can be prevented, and that the case referred to by Dr. Denvir, is one of the strongest testimonies that could be adduced that such is the case, and that no "tampering" whatsoever has, or could have taken place in the school, nor any elsewhere, which the committee or the teachers could prevent. Proselytism indeed! Let me ask for what? To a system of non-sectarian education? The very notion bears its refutation stamped upon it. As the child is entered, in regard to religion, such must that child remain; and the very care of the ladies of the committee in sending these poor Roman-catholic children to the chapel, and the Sunday-school, has alone enabled Dr. Denvir to bring his charges (such as they are) against this committee. How and where, let me ask, would Dr. Denvir find these poor children, except for the care of this committee, and the liberality of the subscribers to this charity? They would be seen, perhaps, lurking about in wretchedness and rags, in the lanes and alleys of our town, drinking in vice with the very air they breathe, uncared for for by any; learning to beg or to steal; standing before the police magistrate to answer for some petty theft; or in prison to learn the more cunningly to commit it again. It is the liberality, the thorough non-sectarianism of this committee, which gives the opportunity for the concocting of charges, from which the benevolence of their motives, the wisdom of their arrangements, and the success of their endeavours, it might be supposed, would have saved them; but this very success has drawn into the school children of all religious denominations, and this has provoked the attack. Dr. Denvir's opinions are against combined religious instruction. See Report of Evidence before the Select Committee of the House of Lords, 1854, from which the following is taken:—

“8781. Lord Ardrossan.] Have you any objection to the Scripture Extracts as a book to be used in the hours of combined religious instruction?—I have.

“8782. Will you state what the objection is?—My reason is, I do not consider it to be a book from which religion is to be learnt; I do not consider it is a book from which the doctrines of faith exclusively are to be gathered. Speaking only as an individual, I do not see the use of wasting time with it; religious instruction ought to be given separately, as religious instruction.

“8783. Approving of the system as you do, you think still it would be an improvement in that system if the reading of the Scripture Extracts were done away with?—I do not say I would do away with them; they are not done away with by the Board; they remain and are tolerated; they are left to the option of the patrons; some Catholic patrons use them, and some do not.

“8784. Lord Beaumont.] Your private opinion is, that it is rather a loss of time to use them?—My private opinion is that secular instruction should be completely separated from religious instruction. During the time devoted to secular instruction, that alone should be given, and during the time set apart for religious instruction, such only should be given by approved parties.

“8785. Lord Ardrossan.] Do you think that element of the system, which is called combined religious instruction, ought to be done away with?—I do.”

Who those “approved parties” are will be seen by a reference to answers to previous questions, viz.: Questions 8694, 8695, and 8696.

These opinions are opposed to the principles of the Board of Education, and the question now is, shall this school, carrying out in every respect the principles of the Board, adhering strictly and honourably to the rules of the Board in spirit and in letter, shall this school be deprived of the grant from the Board, in obedience to the private opinion, however conscientiously entertained of an individual member of the Board.

[The Rev. J. H. Orr concurs in the general statement made by Mr. Bottomley, and relies for the defence of the teachers in whose behalf he appears, on the evidence they themselves will give during the inquiry.]

Miss Ireland, being examined, deposes:

Witness is Corresponding Secretary to the Ladies' Committee; made application in August 1847, on the part of the committee of ladies, that the Commissioners might make a grant towards this school; the schoolroom was handed up to the Ladies' Committee by a committee who had previously had a large school here; the former committee was composed of gentlemen, and their school had entirely ceased; cannot recollect the exact arrangements of the school at the time of its establishment, having been then only secretary pro tem; recollects clearly that the time for religious instruction has never varied from the first.

Witness states that the same routine continues to prevail. There might be some alteration in the general and secular business of the day, but none at all in respect to religious instruction. The rules, as published in the Seventh Report, continue to prevail, and have always prevailed; these rules are read to, and subscribed by, the parents or guardians of all children received into the industrial school. When Mrs. Bruce is present, she is the person who always reads the rules; when Mrs. Bruce is absent, some other lady of the committee reads the rules. As far as witness knows, there is nothing done with more anxious care than the reading of those rules, and the explanation of their meaning to the parents. Not having been present on all occasions when children were admitted, cannot, of herself, say that they have been always read; but knows it to be the custom of the school that they should be read, and that they are read. The meaning of subscribing to the rules by the parents is, that they are assented to. Witness does not mean that they are subscribed to in writing; there is no rule of the school requiring that they should be subscribed to in writing. Witness does not recollect an instance where a child was admitted who was not accompanied by its parent or guardian; but such a course would not be contrary to the principles of the committee. If witness met a child in the streets, destitute and deserted, witness would have her admitted; in such a case the registration of the religion would be made on the child's own statement; but if the child had a residence, the ladies would visit, inquire if there were any relatives, and if there were, ascertain the religion from them. The relatives would be then desired to come on the next committee day, to state the child's religion before the committee. Every parent or guardian has to come before the committee for this purpose, unless there be some sufficient reason for their not coming—as illness. Excepting illness, witness is not aware of any cause of absence by the parent or guardian that would be deemed sufficient. Saturday is the day for the sitting of the committee. The rule is, that the committee shall sit every week. Monday is the day for the admission of the children, except in cases of special destitution, when they may be admitted on other days. The course for the admission of pupils is, that an application is made to the committee on a Saturday; during the following week some ladies of the committee visit the case, and report to the committee on the Saturday following, on which day the parent or guardian and child are to be present. If the report be favourable, the child is admitted on the following Monday. The literary education in the school is the same as in any ordinary national school. The house-work is deemed a part of the industrial education of the institution; the domestic duties of the house are joined in by the pupils, under the superintendence of the servants of the place. The ladies of the visiting committee inquire if the children introduce into their own homes those practices in the way of household work which they observe here.

[The first of the school regulations—"Her attendance must be regular; punctuality to eight o'clock in the morning being particularly insisted on"—is here read for witness.]

This rule, witness states, is carefully observed. It will be understood that punctuality at eight o'clock will refer to those children who are to come at that hour; but as other children have now permission to come at ten o'clock, punctuality at ten o'clock will be required of them. Until the month of December last witness never heard of an objection to coming at eight o'clock; the first objection made was in the case of Gilliland. The particulars of this case will, in the opinion of witness, come out better in other evidence, as she was not attending at the time. The resolution of the 12th February has made an alteration in this rule. The rule of the 12th February gives permission to the children of parents or guardians who object to the religious instructions of half-past eight o'clock to come at ten o'clock. Up to the beginning of last week the committee have had but one objection made by a parent or guardian to the religious instruction being imparted to a child. Witness was present at the meeting of the committee of the 12th of February.

"It was found that one of the girls continued to come to school after breakfast; and that objection to the joint reading having been renewed, and professing to come from some of the parents, it was resolved, that as no radical change could be made in our early arrangements, without an entire sacrifice of the time of the Protestant pupils, we cannot admit, during this time, any children whose idleness would disturb the reading; but still, willing to do for the committee all we pledge ourselves to them and the National Board, we shall in future allow objectors to attend for secular instruction from ten o'clock A.M., to six P.M., every day. Meanwhile, in doing this, we again solemnly protest that we have never interfered with the religion of any child, or swerved from our non-sectarian principles."

Witness states that the case referred to in the above minute is that of Gilliland. In explanation of the expression, "professing to come from some of the parents," witness states that the expression is rather loose, as objection had been made by only one parent.

"Miss M'Kinstrey was examined relative to the insubordination of a little girl in school during the morning reading. On questioning the child, she said the priest, Mr. Conway, had desired her to act as she had done. Miss M'Kinstrey also stated, that Mrs. M'Manus, the mother of another girl, had come to her to object to the joint reading, but that she did not form her own judgment, but because the priest had called with her five times to tell that she must forbid the child listening to the reading. This woman said plainly that she was herself no way dissatisfied, but came, because urged to do so. It came out also, in the course of conversation, that the Roman-catholic children in school had, on two successive Sundays, been detained in chapel till after the proper dinner hour, and on being questioned, they gave as a reason, that they had been detained to be interrogated concerning the school. Whether meat was given them on Lent days—where they were sent on errands, &c.; finally, orders were given that none of them should go on any errands to either of the ladies, secretaries to the school committee."

Witness heard Miss M'Kinstrey state the facts which led to this minute; the minute is in witness's handwriting.

[The minute of the 6th January 1855, is here read, and is as follows:—]

"The question of interference by the priest was met by the following additional resolutions, read and agreed to, although not regularly moved and seconded:—

"Resolved, 1st.—That we cannot change the plan of reading before breakfast being the same formerly sanctioned by the committee, including Catholic members, and which we are certain has been carried out in a truly non-sectarian spirit."

"Resolved 2d.—That as the objection to the joint reading has been traced to the Roman-catholic priest, the parent averring that she herself did not object, we hereby declare that we will receive no dictation from such a source.

"Resolved,

" Resolved 3d.—That the unwarrantable interference of the priests in desiring the pupils in school to disobey the teachers, must be at once put a stop to, as subversive of all subordination in the school.

" Resolved 4th.—That should any more messages be brought, the teacher be desired to report the same to the weekly visitors, with whom it may rest to reprimand, or otherwise punish the bearer of such message, and to bring the circumstance before the Saturday's Committee.

" Resolved 5th.—That any girl persevering to bring such messages be punished by expulsion.

" Resolved 6th.—That every pupil be made aware of these rules at entering the school."

Witness explains that the phrase which occurs in the preceding minute, "read and agreed to, although not regularly moved and seconded," means that the resolutions were passed unanimously (with the exception of Miss M'Laughlin). Witness was present at the committee of the 6th January, and the minute of that day's deliberation is in her handwriting. Except the ordinary weekly meetings, of which witness cannot speak, as she was not present at them, there was no extraordinary meeting of the committee between January 6th and February 12th. If anything occurred between January 6th and February 12th, minutes of it are not recorded in the minute book.

[The minute of the 12th February 1855, is again read (see this minute at page 32).]

Witness states that this minute was passed unanimously, and that since the date of its passing (12th February 1855) the first regulation of the school is changed. Witness has not heard of any objections having been made since, except what occurred last week, and of these there is as yet no record, as the committee has not since met. The rule of 12th of February has been communicated to the teachers. This change involves no alteration in the discipline of the school after ten o'clock; a child coming at ten o'clock will be deprived of none of the advantages which the school affords after that hour; it will receive a dinner, and a supper to bring home. There will be a difficulty in relation to the clothing, as the children are washed and dressed during the half hour from eight to half-past eight o'clock; to give the clothing at any other hour would involve a change in the regulations of the place, and witness, in this respect, cannot speak for the committee. The wash-room being closed at half-past eight o'clock, and each child being actually washed in the school premises every day, it is indispensable that punctuality to eight o'clock should be observed. Witness states that the remaining rules and regulations of the school (see Appendix, page 30, of Seventh Report of the School) continue in force. There has been no change made in the rules with reference to the terms of admission of pupils (see Appendix, p. 31, of Seventh Report of School). No change has taken place in the rules as to mode of application (see Appendix, page 31, of Seventh Report of School).

[The Application Register is here produced.]

Witness states that the applications for admission are entered on Saturdays, by any lady of committee present. The religion of the child is not inquired into in all cases on the day of first application; but it is particularly inquired after on the Saturday following. Sometimes children are admitted when there are fewer than five members of the committee present; witness understands that a committee of three is now sufficient for the purpose of admitting children. Except in the case of Rule 6, in which there has been made the alteration just alluded to, the remainder of the rules in relation to the mode of application and admission of pupils are observed. Witness is acquainted with the details of the working of the school, the books used in it, &c. The rules as to the "mode of conducting the school" (see Appendix, p. 32, of Seventh Report of School) are strictly attended to and observed. During the half hour devoted to religious instruction, the New Testament and the Scripture Extracts of the Board are used. The Roman-catholic children use the Douay version, and the Protestant children the authorised version. Witness believes that is the principle of the school, that the Catholic children shall read the Douay version only. The routine of school avocations (see Appendix, p. 33, of Seventh Report of School) continues the same, except in regard to those children who are permitted to come at 10 o'clock. The hymns sung in the school are taken from the books of the National Board, and from those only. On Sundays the children get breakfast, and a double quantity of dinner—a portion of the latter to be brought home. The late Mrs. M'Laughlin was very attentive in visiting the school during the half hour devoted to religious instruction. Mrs. M'Laughlin was a Roman-catholic. Some ladies who live near the school come occasionally to the religious instruction; but, as the hour is so early, the committee have made no rule requiring their visitors to come regularly. Witness recollects no report from any lady of the committee, who had visited during religious instruction, to the committee itself, as expressive of approbation or disapprobation of what she might have observed. The twelve rules relating to the "duties of appointed visitors" (see Appendix, p. 33, of Seventh Report of School) are generally observed, and continue in force. The "duties of the work and clothing committee" (see Appendix, p. 34, of Seventh Report of School) also continue in force. Witness has examined the rules of the National Board, and as far as has come to her knowledge, there has been a conscientious effort made by the ladies of the committee to observe those rules. Is not aware that any deviation from those rules has been made by the committee; thinks there has been the utmost effort made by the committee to attend not only to the letter, but to the spirit of the National System. The committee is composed of ladies of six religious denominations:

Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Roman-catholics, Unitarians, Methodists, and Friends. The rules of the institution were most maturely weighed in relation to the religious instruction, and regard was paid to the opinions of the persons composing the committee, before they were finally decided upon. The most destitute class of the community are the immediate objects of the care and labour of the ladies of the committee. If the destitution is real, the committee never inquire into the moral character of the parents—the greater the destitution, the greater would be the claim on their exertions. The ladies have always thought that religion and morality were the most important things to be taught in the school. Witness would scarcely conceive it to be teaching at all, if the business of the school were not based upon religion. The committee has always found the time between eight o'clock, A. M., and five or six in the evening, amply sufficient for religious, as well as secular and industrial training. The children of the school belong to different professions of religion. It has been a most anxious object of the committee to devise such a system of religious teaching as should be confined to the simple elementary truths in which all Christians agree. Miss Cuzneau (now Mrs. Putman) was teacher in the school when the present arrangements for giving religious instruction were made; these arrangements were made by the original committee of the school, as constituted in the manner in which witness has already described it, and were approved of by all. During witness's connexion with the school, she has never heard a charge preferred against the teachers or committee for unfairness in religious matters. The children are sent by order of the committee to the different places of worship on Sundays, and to the Sunday-schools. So far as lies in the power of the committee, proselytism is not possible in the school. One case of proselytism has occurred—two children, who were Presbyterians, were induced to go to the chapel, and became Catholics. This occurred in the year 1851.

[The minutes of the case above referred to were here read, and are as follow:—]

" September 1851.—Two little girls, Jane Watson and M. J. Manhinnery, who were " among those reprov'd for giddiness, had a further charge brought against them in a fault " connected with this. Their giddiness in the Sunday-school had led to their being several " times reprov'd; and persevering in their boldness, they had, three weeks previously, been " sent out of the school. On the following Sunday they had accompanied another child to " a Unitarian meeting-house; this they had done a second time, when a lady of the com- " mittee meeting them in the porch, inquired if this was their own place of worship, and " finding it was not, desired them to go where their parents had entered them for. The " following Sunday they went to chapel, and the monthly meeting following the day after, " the children were brought down, reprov'd for going thus from place to place, and desired " to return to the Presbyterian meeting-house on Sunday, they having been entered as " Presbyterians.

" October 13th, 1851.—The two little girls, J. Watson and M. J. Manhinnery, having " persevered to go to chapel, contrary to their entry as Presbyterians, the subject was again " brought before committee, when it appeared that the children had declared their mothers " were Catholics, although Presbyterians at the time they were entered in school; that, con- " sequently, they now wished to take them to chapel. To inquire further of the mothers they " were sent for; but the little girls returned to say that they could find neither of them, as " they were from home working. As the committee was then about rising, the affair was " referred to a sub-committee on Saturday; with this sub-committee a discretionary power " was left of allowing the children to remain till the whole could be referred to another " monthly meeting.

" October 18th, 1851.—The mothers of J. Watson and M. J. Manhinnery did not come " to the committee as summoned to do; the children were again sent for them, and returned " with a similar answer to that brought on Monday, on which the committee decided that " all must be left to the committee of management; and meantime, the children must, for " the present, remain out, as their mothers had not thought worth while to appear. After " this, two older girls were sent to look for the women; and after the committee had sepa- " rated, they returned with the information that one of them had seen Watson's mother, " who told them she was in a service and could not come; but if any of the ladies would " come to her at her master's, she would talk to them. She added, however, that she did " not know what sort of school it was, as the children learned nothing in it.

" October 25th, 1851.—The mothers of J. Watson and M. J. Manhinnery not appearing " to meet the committee, although both had been at the school in the course of the morning, " the following resolutions were passed in substance—Miss M'Cracken alone supporting the " opinion that the resolutions of last Saturday should be rescinded, and the children taken " unconditionally:—

" 1st. That the children were dismissed, not from their change of religion, but for con- " tempt of the committee, both on their own part and that of their parents.

" 2d. That this contempt was shown by the mothers in not coming to explain to the " committee; and that their coming to-day at an hour which they knew was not that of " meeting, cannot be received as sufficient apology.

" 3d. That after supporting and educating their children for such a length of time, the " committee feel that any women possessed of common feelings of gratitude, would have " made a point of doing all in their power to give the necessary explanations.

" 4th. That

" 4th. That the excuse of being a servant, sent by Jane Watson's mother, is not considered sufficient, inasmuch as servants with us are not slaves; and they think that any mistress properly acquainted with the circumstances, would see the necessity of the case.

" 5th. That they understand, that so far from considering anything due to the committee, this woman speaks of the school in terms of contempt, wondering what the children learn in it.

" 6th. That this conduct on the part of the mothers is joined with, and in some degree explains the very indecent display on the part of the girls, who, when told they were to go home, evinced the most shameful and extravagant rejoicing, to the great scandal of the school, and the injury of the other pupils.

" 7th. That if the mother of M. J. Manhinnery told the truth in regard to her little girl, the conduct of the latter was particularly blameable, since, after all the committee said to her about bringing her mother, the latter declares she never heard a word on the subject till the child was dismissed.

" 8th. That on account of all these circumstances, and to prevent misunderstanding in the committee, the secretaries are instructed to bring the subject before the full committee in November; before which also the mothers are expected to appear, with such explanations and apologies as their past conduct requires.

" 9th. That in case this is done, so as to show the disrespect was not intentional, and that there is a real desire on the part of the little girls to return, and to act more steadily in future than they have been recently doing, this sub-committee will recommend to the general committee to re-admit the children as Catholics.

" 10th. That the committee will further recommend the enactment of a bye-law to prevent any such difficulty as the present in future; that the prospective bye-law shall enact, that children entered in the school shall be obliged, during the time of remaining pupils, to conform to the creed by which their parents have entered them.

" 11th. That the strict impartiality of the management of the school, and their determination to be entirely non-sectarian, render such a rule only conformable with our other regulations; but no law having previously been made, the present instance of change, as it is by the desire of the parents, may be (in the estimation of this sub-committee) overlooked.

" 7th November 1851.—The two little girls, Watson and Manhinnery, with the mothers of both, were brought before the committee, and after severe reproof for former boldness and giddiness, and reprehension to the mothers for former disrespect in not coming to the committee when sent for, they were taken again into school on trial; Miss Orr being requested to report their conduct next monthly meeting.

" 8th November 1851.—The bye-law alluded to in note 10th, of Saturday, 25th October, was then proposed as a means of preventing scenes such as the present being brought before committee.

" 10th November 1851.—To give importance to this bye-law, we here repeat it. That any child entered in the school shall, in future, be obliged, during the time of remaining a pupil, to conform to the creed by which her parents have entered her."

On hearing the above minutes read, witness states, in explanation of her allusion to proselytism, that the case only shows that a change in religion had taken place. With the latter explanation, as far as has come to the knowledge of witness, no proselytism has ever occurred in the school. Except the case of Sosby, witness is not aware that any application has been made to change the religion of a child once admitted to the school; witness was not present when the case of Sosby came before the committee. As a member of committee, witness has been present at committee meetings when parents were applying for their children's admission; can say, that it was the invariable rule of the committee to ask the parents or guardians the religion in which they wished their children to be entered. The system of instruction, secular and religious, witness thinks is fully explained to the parents and guardians on the admission of their children. In case of apparent want of intelligence, or carelessness on the part of the parents, very great care is taken to explain the regulations as well as possible. The consent of the parents to the religious instruction to be given their children is required, and in all cases obtained, previously to the admission of the children. Witness believes it to be totally impossible for a parent to leave the committee room without understanding the regulations of the school, and particularly without knowing the religion in which her child is entered on the books of the school. It is the opinion of witness, that when a parent assents to a religious instruction for her child, it is compatible with the rules of the National Board for the patron to give that religious instruction; and having obtained the consent of all the parents of the children coming to this school, it is the opinion of witness that the committee are justified in giving those children the religious instruction of the school. Witness considers it important that the children attending the school should be taught habits of order and cleanliness. The arrangements of the morning, before breakfast, with respect to washing and clothing, were made expressly for the purpose of enforcing regularity and cleanliness. Want of punctuality in attendance at eight o'clock in the morning would impair the efficiency of the school. It is the practice of the school that a child who is not washed at the proper time in the morning ing (from eight to half-past eight o'clock), can not be washed or clothed during the remainder of the day. The servant who attends the wash-room has other duties to perform during the day. As a general rule, the committee could not trust the children in the wash-room by themselves, for fear the clothing which is there might be stolen, and they therefore require that a servant shall be always present; besides, those who come late are the more likely to be disorderly in their habits. The wearing of their own dress during the day distinguishes those who are disorderly from those who, wearing the clothing of the school, are orderly. Irrespective of the interference with the general regulations of the school, it is the opinion of witness that children coming at a late hour will be a source of disorder in the school. It has never been understood that the breakfast should be regarded as a bribe to children to receive the religious instruction of the school. Witness cannot answer whether a child not coming at eight o'clock will be refused her breakfast. Witness knows nothing of the circumstance referred to by Mrs. Gilliland about her child having to breakfast at home and come clean. Mrs. Todd, witness states, is the person who will likely explain it. Witness knows that it would most seriously impair the efficiency of the school, if a regulation were made which would enable a child who had not attended at eight o'clock or half-past eight o'clock to receive her breakfast at nine o'clock. This is the general impression of the committee. Is quite sure that such a regulation would be a premium on idleness and dirty habits. Children who would come at eight o'clock would feel themselves aggrieved, seeing the rule enforced in their case, and relaxed in the case of those admitted to the breakfast at nine o'clock. If the children whose parents object should be admitted at eight o'clock to the washing and clothing, witness does not know how they would be disposed of during the half-hour of religious instruction. The children, from the time they come here, at eight o'clock, A.M., until they leave, at five or six o'clock in the evening, are not permitted to leave the premises. If Catholic children were permitted to play about the play-ground during the half-hour devoted to religious instruction, it would, in the opinion of witness, make a perfect farce of the religious instruction of the Protestants; and with regard to the Roman-catholic children themselves such a regulation would have a direct tendency to establish in their minds principles of infidelity. It would, in fact, teach those children that playing in the yard was of more importance to them than the learning of religion. Should the committee be compelled to establish such a regulation, it would, in the opinion of witness, neutralize much of the good the school has been doing.

FOURTH DAY, Thursday, 3 May 1855.

Miss Ireland, being further examined, deposes :

3 May 1855.

In reference to an answer which witness gave yesterday, relative to the cleaning of the house, in which she said, "The house-work is deemed a part of the industrial education of the institution," witness did not mean to convey that it is a portion of that industrial education for which the Board of Education gives a grant to this school; what the committee understand is, that the Board grant a portion of the salary of Mrs. Todd, the matron, whose duties are, to teach the sewing, knitting, and any other sort of needle-work taught in the school. The domestic duties are under the superintendence of the servants of the house. From eight to half-past eight o'clock the children wash and are clothed; from half-past eight to nine o'clock religious instruction is given; from nine to half-past nine o'clock, breakfast; from half-past nine to ten o'clock, play. Mrs. Todd lives in the institution; Miss Orr also lives in the institution. Mrs. Todd's duties, from half-past eight to half-past nine o'clock, are in the general superintendence of the house, &c. Miss Orr conducts the religious instruction. The mistress, Anne Burnett, does not come till ten o'clock; she has been employed merely for the day-school. The first record of Mrs. Gilliland's objection is 11th December 1854; witness was not present at the committee of that date.

[The minute in reference to Gilliland is as follows]:—

"Mrs. Todd laid before the committee a most extraordinary message she had received from Dr. Denvir through Mrs. Gilliland, one of the mothers of the children, viz., that he requested the reading of the Scriptures should be discontinued in school, and also the singing of the hymn. The ladies present instructed Mrs. Todd that she was, in no instance, to attend to messages of this kind."

The next record of any objection is contained in the minute of January 4th, 1855, relating to Mrs. M'Manus. The next reference to the question in the minutes is contained in the minute of January 6th, in which the committee determine not to alter their arrangements; and the next reference is in the minute of February 12th, which alters the rule as to punctuality to eight o'clock being required of all children who attend the school.

69. Mr. Bottomley.] You stated that previous to the passing of the resolution of the 12th February (permitting these children whose parents object to the religious teaching to come at ten o'clock) no objection from any parent or guardian had come to your knowledge, except the one case (Gilliland's). Now, having regard to the importance of the rule embodying the routine of school discipline, the care with which that rule had been formed, the fact that it had remained unchanged during so many years, and the satisfactory factory manner in which it had been found to work, and the necessity of considering the exact effect which would probably arise from such a change, do you consider that any unreasonable time had been allowed to elapse, after Gilliland's objection, before the rule was modified by that resolution?—Witness certainly does not think there had.

70. Who proposed that resolution in the committee?—Witness does not recollect whether she was the person who proposed it; but she came down specially to the committee to endeavour to have it passed.

71. When that resolution was proposed and passed, had you received, as secretary to the ladies' industrial school, the intimation from Mr. Patterson that Dr. Denvir had made charges against the school, and that an investigation had been ordered?—Witness had not.

Cross-examination.

72. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Please explain the mode of religious instruction, and who conducts it at present?—The religious instruction is the same as is specified in the published report; witness does not know from actual observation what the mode is, as she has not been able to attend to it for a long time. Miss Orr at present conducts the religious instruction; she has been in office for five years, with the exception of the months of November, December, and January, and the time she spent in the model school at the beginning of her engagement.

73. Did Mrs. Todd ever give religious instruction in the absence of the ordinary teacher?—Yes; during the months of November and December last. In January the religious instruction was given by Miss M'Kinstrey.

74. Is the Bible read and explained by Mrs. Todd and the other teachers?—The plan of instruction is, that the Scripture Extracts are read one morning and the Testament the other. Witness thinks that the whole Bible is not read. The teachers have been instructed to do everything in a purely non-sectarian spirit, according to the rule of the Board, and the committee's own pledge to the parents of the pupils.

75. Are the children of all denominations present at the Scripture Lessons?—They are.

76. Are prayer-meetings held in the lace-rooms, and, if so, do Catholic children ever on any occasion attend them?—The room in which this inquiry is held, and which does not belong to the Board, is let for various purposes. It is in this room that the prayer-meetings take place, if any; witness knows nothing about the presence of Catholic children. When these rooms were, in 1847, handed over to the ladies' committee, two things were expressly stipulated, that the infant school should continue on and be held in the same room, and that the Sunday-school, which is held in this room, should not be interfered with.

77. Are all the Catholic children, without exception, sent to their house of worship and to chapel school on Sundays. If not, who are retained at home?—Is not aware of any exception whatever.

78. Out of what documents or reports are the rules of the school read to the parents?—Witness is not able to say. It is Mrs. Bruce's duty to do this, and witness never heard her speak on the subject that she did not refer to the religious instruction.

79. Please tell the inspectors when the rule about religious instruction was introduced into the annual report?—In the year 1848; it appears as a paragraph (page 10) in the first report of the institution.

80. How long has its publication been discontinued?—It was not inserted in any of the annual reports from the first to the seventh; it appears for the first time as a distinct rule in the seventh; but the rule was always acted on. Upon examining the reports, witness finds that the rule appears in the form of a note in the second and third reports. The rule does not appear in the fourth, fifth, or sixth. A desire to economise led the committee to abbreviate their reports after the third as much as possible.

81. How long before or after parents objected to the religious instruction was this rule reproduced in the seventh report. When did it become a substantive rule?—No parent had ever objected at the time at which it was reproduced in the seventh report. It has always been regarded and acted upon as a substantive rule; it was amongst the original arrangements.

82. State why it has not appeared in the sixth and other preceding reports, seeing that it is a rule of vital importance?—The printing of the third report was so expensive, it was determined to abbreviate the next as much as possible, and the rule did not accordingly appear. Witness herself was of opinion at the time that the rule should have appeared. The printing, advertising, postage, and stationery in the accounts published in the fourth report, came to 19*l.* 12*s.* The printing in the accounts of the fifth report comes to 4*l.* 16*s.* In the accounts of the sixth report, printing comes to 4*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, and stationery 3*s.* 12*s.* 8*d.* In the accounts of the seventh, report printing comes to 4*l.* 4*s.*

83. Did not the seventh report contain more printing than the sixth. Whence the economy; sixth, 31 pages; seventh, 24 pages?—It does. Many new members joined, and for their information the rules were published in the seventh report.

84. Was the rule published in the reports as a substantive rule when Gilliland and Sosby placed their children in the school; state the years?—Sosby was admitted September 1854, and the rule was then published in the seventh report. Gilliland was admitted January 1853, previously to the publication of the seventh report.

85. How many objections were made against the religious instruction besides those of Gilliland?—Has heard of no objection from a parent, except in the case of Gilliland, and those brought forward last week (M'Kenna and M'Carroll).

86. State who objected, as Miss M'Laughlin has stated that there were others?—Witness knows that Mrs. M'Manus came and said that one of the priests had come to her five times and told her to object to the reading. Mrs. M'Manus came and said she herself did not object. An orphan child, Biddy Pendis, brought an unsigned note, which she said a priest (Mr. Conway) had written for her, to say that her guardian did not allow her to attend the religious instruction. On referring to the minutes witness finds that she is confounding this person with another; witness states that some one else will likely give evidence in the case of Pendis.

87. Did a person named Stothars object against the religious instruction given to a child of which he was the guardian?—Has no recollection of having heard the name, or of any circumstance connected with it.

88. Is there a child of that name on the roll?—(The roll is produced). There is. She was admitted April 19, 1853, and is still on the roll of the school. She has been absent this week.

89. Is there any record of an objection made by Stothars, whether he made such or not?—Never heard.

90. Have you mentioned the names of all the persons who objected to this rule; if not, state them all particularly?—Is not aware of any more than she has already stated.

91. In the case of the children Watson and Manhinnery, said to be re-entered as Catholics, state why they were taken in as such, if entered first as Presbyterians?—They were readmitted as Catholics, because there was no law against it; but it was felt to have been an infringement of the principles on which they set out as being a non-proselytising committee.

92. Are you aware where these children are at present, and that they are not now Catholics, or attending Catholic worship?—Witness knows where one of the children is (Jane Watson), and that she is not now a Catholic. The other behaved so very badly she was turned out of the school for stealing; knows nothing of her now.

93. Is Jane Watson in the service of any lady of your committee; and if so, by whom sent to this lady?—She is in the service of Mrs. Smith, who is not a member of the committee, but who is mother of a lady who is a member of the committee.

94. Does Miss Smith, a member of the committee, live with Mrs. Smith; and did Miss Smith hire the girl?—She does live with Mrs. Smith. Witness knows nothing, of her own personal knowledge, in relation to the hiring of the girl, and was not present at the time.

95. Might not the hour for religious instruction be so arranged as to be placed between ten and four o'clock, without diminishing the amount of religious and secular instruction imparted?—Though half an hour is the same length any part of the day, witness thinks it could not. The children, when they come in at eight o'clock, are washed and clothed, and then being placed in the gallery for religious instruction, are, in the opinion of witness, in a better position to receive impressions that there is a God above them, than at any other period of the day. Religious instruction, witness thinks, can be more effectively given at the opening of a school than at any intermediate time during the day.

96. If the parents or guardians should object to the instruction given in the elements of religion, and if the teacher should persist in giving such, would the rules of the National Board be observed, or would they be violated?—The rules of the Board would, in such a case, be violated.

97. Have you ever known any instance of a child becoming an infidel, on account of being allowed to play while children of another denomination were under religious instruction?—No; if children were allowed to play, whilst others were kept in school to read, those in the school would consider it a punishment, and those at play would be likely to regard the reading as worthless, and of little importance.

98. Does not the rule regarding religious instruction prevent some children from partaking of some of the benefits of the institution, viz., breakfast and clothing?—It would; one child is so affected at present; no benefit provided for by the National Board is denied any child.

99. Are other children similarly circumstanced to be also similarly deprived of the same benefits?—There is an experiment at present being tried, whether the recent change will work well, i. e., the change about the hour of admission at ten o'clock, by those children whose parents or guardians object.

100. Mr. Bottomley.] Suppose a child came late in the morning, would she not also be deprived of some of the benefits of the institution?—She would, of course; she would be admitted, but would be obliged to wear her own clothes. Those who come late, keep their own under clothes on, and simply wear an overall, which is a mark of disgrace.

101. The Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Is it not to be considered a punishment for a child to be obliged to wear its own clothing during the school hours?—The mark of disgrace is a particular overall.

[In explanation of the witness's answer to Question 98, she states that Gilliland's child is the one to which she alluded, but adds, that Gilliland is at present in attendance in the morning.]

102. When the child Gilliland did not come until ten o'clock, having declined to be present at the religious instruction, was she not deprived of breakfast and clothing during such days?—Of course she got no breakfast, nor clothes, when she came at ten o'clock.

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud for witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs.

Mrs. Bruce, being examined, deposes :

Has been a member of the ladies' committee, from the first; is general treasurer to the committee; is a member of the work and clothing committee. A pupil is not entitled to the advantages of clothing, unless it be an extreme case of destitution, and for decency's sake, until she is one month in the school. From that time forth she receives the usual clothing given; no matter what her religious denomination, no difference is made. Parents are told that a steady attendance of the child in school for two years, will entitle their children to an entire suit of clothes for their own private use, when leaving the school finally. At first it was to retain a suit of clothes which had been in use, but now, the rule is, that the parent gives a month's notice of her intention to remove the child; during this last month, in the needlework hours, the child is herself obliged to make up the clothes which she is to take from the school with her: chemise, frock, flannel petticoat, one, and often two pinafores. Upon the last Saturday that the child is in school, she is directed, by order of the committee to the teacher, to take down those articles for the inspection of the committee. When they have been examined by the committee, and it is seen how they fit, the child is then kindly advised as to her future conduct. Very often, if she has been a child that has given great satisfaction, she is presented with a Bible, with her own name written in it; a Douay Bible to a Catholic, and a copy of the authorised version to a Protestant. Ex-pupils are invited to attend an annual soiree which is held; and on these occasions, an account of themselves is invited by the committee. Children that are particularly attentive during the time that they are at school, sometimes get a pair of shoes for their private use. The rule of the school is, that the door shall remain open till half-past eight o'clock. Those who come in time wash and clothe themselves, or are washed and clothed. The clothing is the property of the school. All children who come in time, irrespective of their creed, receive this clothing. The committee has had great difficulty to establish such rules as would conduce to regularity and cleanliness. The under-clothing is kept by the children, from Sunday to Sunday, both at home and in school. The Sunday outer garment is different from that of the week day. Children who come late get the blue overall, which, during the day, distinguishes them from the others, who wear a white or chequered one. A cap is placed, as a punishment, on those who are late. No rule has yet been made with reference to clothing those who may come under the new rule of admission at ten o'clock, principally on account of the illness of some of the most important members of the committee. This is, no doubt, a point that will come under the notice of the committee. As it is permitted that children shall come at ten o'clock, the committee will do everything in their power to give such children every possible advantage. The general committees meet monthly. It has been the uniform practice of the committee to extend strict impartiality to children of all religious denominations, and that all should receive equal benefits; and this, witness has not the least hesitation in saying, has been acted upon. Witness, with the greatest exactness, has endeavoured to make the parents of the children, who are applicants for admission, understand the rules of the school, particularly those relating to religious instruction. When witness was present in committee, this duty devolved upon her; and witness states, that her attendance has been more regular than that of any other member of the committee. Witness reads the rules almost always from the second or third report. The committee recommend good girls out as servants. Applicants for servants make their own selection, and apply to the teachers, matron, or ladies of committee, for character and suitability. In the absence of witness, any lady present performs the duty of reading the rules. When the rules are read, the parent or guardian is asked if she understands and agrees to what has been explained. Witness knows that many of the parents are so anxious about the admission of their children, that they do not attend to what is told them on the occasion; and acquits some of the witnesses examined to support Dr. Denvir's charges of intentional falsehood, on this account. If a parent or guardian is unavoidably absent on the occasion of the admission of the child, some member of the committee goes to the house of the parent, and explains the rules there. Witness often finds it difficult to obtain the attention of the parents; often finds they are not listening at all. It is quite possible that a parent, without meaning to tell a falsehood, might, after the lapse of some time, come here and say she did not hear the rules, although, at the time, she had heard and assented to them. It is certainly impossible for a mother to leave this room without knowing what religion has been entered for her child, she, herself, having to give the religion which she wishes her child to be entered.

[The Application Book is produced.]

Witness is quite sure that Mrs. Sosby, on the 26th August, gave in the name of her child as a member of the Established Church. The religion was recorded on the spot, before the woman left the room. Remembers the day Sosby came to apply for admission, after having been visited; there was a conversation then about the religion of Sosby's child. Applicant stated, when asked what religion her child was to be brought up, that she herself was a Roman-catholic, that her husband had been a Protestant, and that she had promised him the child should be brought up in his faith. Several ladies of committee then asked her what religion the child was to be entered in, observing, "that it was to be her (Sosby's) decision, not their's. If the child was entered as a Catholic, she should remain so; if entered as a Protestant, she should remain so as long as she continued in the school." Sosby seemed so very uncertain as to what she would do, that witness went so far as to say, "I don't think, myself, you'll be allowed to bring her up a Protestant." She still said,

"I promised my husband," and had the child entered as a Protestant; and she was so entered. Witness thinks it to be only joking to ask her if this woman left the room without knowing what religion her child had been entered in. Miss M'Cracken, one of the members of committee, said to witness at the time, "I would have taken you for a good Catholic, if I had not known the contrary," from the efforts witness made to induce Sosby to know her own mind. Mrs. Sosby came back in three months, and said she wanted her child's religion to be altered in the registry, and to be written down as a Catholic. She was reminded that she had been told on the former occasion, that if she would be entered as a Protestant she should remain so whilst she continued in the school. In reference to Mrs. Sosby's evidence in answer to Question 26 (see page 18), witness states that her answer is untrue. In reference to Mrs. Gilliland's answer to Question 17 (see page 17), witness states, she was here for a Saturday's committee; she had reached the gate, accompanied by another lady; waiting for the gate to be opened, witness turned round and saw a woman standing on the steps; she did not know who the woman was at first, and supposing she was come to apply for the admission of a child, witness stopped to say the hour was passed, the committee had dispersed. Witness thought from the countenance of the woman that that was not her object, and asked what she came for; the woman said she had been sent for by the ladies; witness remarked, she had not heard of it, and inquired what it was about; the woman said she was coming to speak about her little girl, who had been attending latterly at 10 o'clock; when she made that remark witness knew who she was, and observed, "Oh, then you are Gilliland, I suppose; I am sorry to hear you are objecting to the mode of instruction given to your child here." Witness meant religious instruction. Gilliland then distinctly and clearly stated, "Ma'am, I do not object; I am very thankful and grateful to the ladies for all they have done, but my clergy object." Witness said, "Well, what is it, do you know, that they object to, because our rules have been made for persons of all denominations, and are just the same now as when the school was first established; but," said witness, "what are you coming about to-day?" referring to what she had said about coming to speak of her little girl. Gilliland said, "When I was coming to-day, I was coming to give notice to the committee to take her away altogether." "Do you want that notice given in?" said witness, "for you are too late to-day, but I'll give it in for you." Gilliland then said she had changed her mind since she came here that morning; for she had seen Mrs. Todd and the child herself, and she had heard from Mrs. Todd and the child, that the latter would be in the kitchen for the next fortnight, and that, as the kitchen girls do not attend to the morning reading (religious instruction), the child would come and get her breakfast for that fortnight, as formerly. Gilliland complained of the hardship of giving her child the breakfast. Witness asked the child's age, and on being told, said she was too young for service, or to be taken into a mill. "But surely," said witness to Mrs. Gilliland, "surely you are not so destitute, Mrs. Gilliland, as not to be able to give her her breakfast, and then let her come here and get her dinner and bread at night, and the other advantages of the school." Witness also said, that the piece of bread might serve her for her breakfast. Gilliland, in reply, said, "She supposed she might give the child her breakfast; but at any rate she was minded (i.e., she intended) to let her come at eight o'clock, as formerly, after the fortnight would be over." Witness, on hearing this observation, said, "Beware what you are doing, Mrs. Gilliland; I neither advise nor recommend you to do so, but caution you against it; for if your clergy made you object before, you may be sure they will make you do it again."

FIFTH DAY, Friday, 4th May 1855.

[At the desire of Mr. Bottomley, it was intimated by the head inspector, that Mrs. Bruce, the last witness, is in a delicate state of health; in consideration of which, the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir foregoes entering in a cross-examination.]

[The evidence of Mrs. Bruce (the last witness) was then read aloud for her, and she acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs. Putman, being examined, deposes :

Evidence
of Mrs. Putman.

4 May 1855.

WITNESS'S former name was Cuzneau; is a Presbyterian; was the first teacher appointed to this school; was appointed 1st February 1848; at that time the hour for religious instruction was from half-past eight to nine o'clock; the children came at eight o'clock to be washed; assembled in the school at half-past eight o'clock; half-past eight to nine o'clock religious instruction; nine o'clock breakfast; half-past nine o'clock play; ten o'clock re-assembled in the school-room for literary instruction—literary and industrial instruction were carried on together; dinner at two o'clock; play from half-past two to three o'clock; re-assembled at three o'clock, and remained in for literary business until six o'clock; at six o'clock the bread was distributed by the matron amongst the children, after they had changed their clothes; the children then dispersed for the evening. In winter, the dismissal took place at dusk. The only religious instruction of the day was from half-past eight o'clock to nine o'clock; witness left the institution 4th November 1848. Whilst witness was here there was no alteration in the arrangements for religious instruction. At the hour appointed for religious instruction, the children all assembled in the gallery. Before witness came came here, the children had read the Testament and Scripture Extracts alternately (i. e., the Testament on one morning and the Scripture Extracts the next), in classes round the floor; but when witness came, the ladies permitted her to have the children altogether in the gallery. The object of this arrangement was, that those who could not read might listen to what was going on. The religious exercises commenced by witness reading out a hymn from the "Sacred Poetry" of the Board, and from some others which witness had learned in the Model Schools, Dublin, and which were sung there—as, for instance, "Hosanna." Witness, whilst here, neither taught, nor repeated, nor sung any hymns, except those contained in the Board's books, and those she had learned and heard sung in the Model Schools, Dublin. Witness then read a chapter from the New Testament; commenced with the first chapter of the Gospels, and read consecutively on. When witness came here, the Douay version was not used in school, and for a while it was the authorised version only that was read. When the Douay version was introduced in the school, it was alternately read with the authorised version on Testament days. Those who could read had Testaments in their hands, and those who could not read sat altogether listening; those who could read, then read verse about; the whole chapter was read through by the children in this manner; the Map of the Holy Land was always suspended on a frame before the class; any place named in the chapter was then pointed out on the map by the girls who were able to do so; verse by verse was not explained; general questions only were asked; doctrinal questions were entirely avoided. The time being limited, witness could not enter as fully into the explanation or examination of the chapter as she would when teaching any other lesson of the day; between the reading to and by the pupils the half-hour was nearly expended. The teaching was of a strictly non-sectarian character; witness took pains not to infringe the rules of the National Board, which she knew well from having been two-and-a-half years at the Model Schools. Although a Presbyterian, did not give to the religious instruction any Presbyterian or Protestant tendency; the Douay version was introduced at the instance of the late Mrs. M'Laughlin, who took a warm interest in the affairs of the school, particularly in the morning during the time of religious instruction. She came nearly every morning of her week of visiting. Mrs. M'Laughlin was a Roman-catholic; and, to the knowledge of witness, highly approved of the religious instruction given in the school. Cannot say whether the mode of giving religious instruction was arranged by Mrs. M'Laughlin; it was from the committee witness received her instructions; but Mrs. M'Laughlin was frequently present and approved of the mode of giving religious instruction; she frequently heard the explanation given and the hymn sung; she heard the Protestant Scriptures read in the way witness has described them to have been used.

Cross-examination.

103. The Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Has the Gospel of St. John been read in your class?
—Witness is sure it has.

104. Was, for example, the 6th chapter read?—Is sure it was; every part of the New Testament except Revelations was read. Witness thought Revelations too difficult to be explained to the children.

105. Was any explanation of the 6th chapter, or any other chapter given to all the children who, according to your testimony, were present?—Witness does not know (recollect) the 6th chapter; general questions only were asked on all the chapters; never entered upon doctrine at all; kept strictly in accordance with the rules of the Board.

[The above question was objected to by Mr. Bottomley.]

106. When explanations of Scriptural passages, from both versions, were given, did children of all denominations attend on the gallery?—Yes; of all denominations.

[Witness here describes, as a specimen of her method of teaching, that if, suppose, the class were reading of a miracle, she would ask what was the miracle; some child would give an account of it; witness would then ask who performed it; the children would say, God; then, who is God, &c., &c.]

107. Mr. Bottomley.] Did you ever, in explaining any passage in the New Testament, or the Scripture Extracts, bring forward or refer to any points on which controversy among Christians exists?—Never. In teaching the Scripture Extracts witness pursued the same plan as is adopted in the Model School, Dublin.

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Miss Orr, being examined, deposes:

Witness's name is Anne Orr; is a Presbyterian; was appointed a national teacher about the year 1848, to Ballyhalbert National School; was trained, spring 1850; is first division of second class; was appointed principal teacher of this school 1st December 1849. There was always an assistant here since witness came to the school; witness was absent only whilst in training, during ordinary vacations, and for the months of November, December and January last; during those three months just named, received no salary from the Board. Mrs. Todd took witness's place during November and December, and Miss M'Kinstrey during the month of January.

"	1854, was 80.
"	1855, was 81.

The only alteration in the time table in reference to religious instruction, that has been made since witness came here, is that from 10 to 11 on Saturdays is devoted to it. Saturday is the only day in which religious instruction is given from 10 to 11; the latter change took place at the time the Board's circular relating to Rule 8 reached the school (about August 1853), to give the children an opportunity of learning the hymns. The arrangements as to secular instruction have been altered from time to time. The gallery in which the religious instruction is given, is in the school-room. On Saturdays the school is formed into three classes, which are taught by witness and two monitresses; this is the only time the monitresses take part in giving the religious instruction. On Saturdays the general instruction commences at 11 o'clock. The children are assembling, washing, and clothing, from eight o'clock to half-past eight o'clock in the wash-room, where they are under the superintendence of a servant. Witness is occasionally present whilst the children are washing, &c., but it is not a part of her duty. It is, however, a part of Mrs. Todd's duty to visit occasionally at this time. At half-past eight o'clock the bell rings and the children assemble in the school. Witness is the only teacher who is present during the religious instruction. Anne Burnett, the monitress, is permitted to remain at home until 10 o'clock. It is in the gallery the children all assemble. On Testament mornings (every alternate morning) the Douay version is given to the Catholics, and the authorised version to the Protestants. Protestants and Catholics sit indiscriminately in the gallery. In the portions of the Testament which are read, witness confines herself to the Gospels and Acts of the Apostles; and the chapters from the first consecutively on. Witness then announces the chapter for the morning; the Catholics open that chapter in their Douay Bibles, and the Protestants the same chapter in their authorised version; the numbering of the chapters in the two versions corresponds. It is only the children of the second, third, and fourth classes that are provided with Testaments; they sit on the top benches of the gallery, and read verse about aloud, so that the children who have not Testaments may hear. Witness does not herself read the chapter for the children. As the chapter is being read, witness examines them on the narrative of the chapter—not necessarily verse by verse—does not introduce any doctrinal point; passes over any verse which witness knows is used to support doctrines peculiar to some church; when the chapter is so finished, the children close their books, and the books are collected. If there be time, there is then a hymn sung; the hymns are taken from the Board's books; witness never taught any other. A few minutes before the children rise from the gallery, there is a complete silence to give those an opportunity of reciting a mental prayer who choose; and then the children retire to breakfast. The teaching during this half hour is of a strictly non-sectarian character. Witness's teaching has no Presbyterian tendency. Witness thinks that a stranger to her could not discover what religion she is, from hearing her give a Testament lesson; believes it to be quite possible for a Protestant to read to and interrogate Roman-catholic children as she does, so as not to interfere in the least with their religion; if Catholic teachers imitated witness, believes it possible that they could give a Testament lesson to Protestant children, without interfering with their religious principles. The Commandments taught the children are those published by the Board. The Scripture Extracts are used on alternate mornings; and the Scripture Extracts are given to the same children as on the previous morning may have had the Testament. In teaching the Scripture Extracts, witness asks the questions which are given at the end of each chapter; may say she always confines herself to those questions. The late Mrs. M'Laughlin was a constant visitor at the morning class, for about three years after witness first came to the school. When Mrs. M'Laughlin was present she always sat beside witness, and read from a Douay Testament as the class proceeded. Mrs. M'Laughlin heard witness interrogate the class, and never disapproved of any of her questions. Witness asked the questions in the usual way on such occasions; made no alteration on account of Mrs. M'Laughlin's presence. Witness does not recollect a clergyman of any denomination ever having been present during the religious instruction, and would have made no alteration in her mode of teaching had a clergyman been present. Witness, never to this day, received any complaints from parents or guardians to the religious instruction which she has given in the school; never received any objection orally or in writing from parents or guardians to this religious instruction; had she received them, she would have felt it her duty to communicate such notices to the ladies' committee. No child has ever been deprived by witness of any of the advantages of secular instruction who would not attend upon the religious instruction.

[The following extract is read by witness from the Ladies' Visiting Book:]

"Came to the school to-day at eight o'clock; found everything going on regularly; the children most attentive to the Scripture Lesson. I am sorry to find that the ladies have given orders that the Catholic children are not to attend the holiday in their church. It would keep the children from the school for half an hour only.

"15 July 1850."

In

In explanation of the above extract, witness states that the children, no matter what religious denomination they may belong to, are not allowed to go away from school during the day. When confirmation takes place the children are, however, allowed to go to their places of worship.

[The following entry from the Visitors' Book, dated June 23d, 1851, is also read by witness:]

"Found every department in the most perfect order; Miss Thompson in the wash-house superintending the children. During the last week there were from 79 to 80 children.

(signed) "C. M'Laughlin."

"Mary Gilliland is a pupil here, and has attended the morning class. When witness returned to her duties in February last, Gilliland was not attending at eight o'clock; she was not coming till ten o'clock. Shortly after witness's return (about a week) Gilliland was appointed to the kitchen. Girls who are fit for kitchen work take it for a fortnight at a time. She was appointed by witness to the kitchen; and during the time she was working in the kitchen she did not attend the religious instruction. During this fortnight, those who have duty in it, are kept entirely in the kitchen. A short time after the fortnight had elapsed witness observed Gilliland in the gallery for religious instruction, and said to her, "Why are you here? I understood you were not to come till ten o'clock." She did not at first reply. Witness asked her again by whom she was sent, and the child replied by her mother. Witness told her that they did not wish to compel her come, as her mother had made an objection, and the ladies had given her liberty to come at ten o'clock. She again replied, "Her mother bade her." The child remained that morning, and has come every morning since; she comes at present. Witness has several times spoken to her, and told her that she had liberty not to come till ten o'clock. The religious instruction tablet is invariably suspended, according to the directions of the Board, whilst religious instruction is being given, and has always been so used. The 11th December 1854 was the last day Sosby was present. Witness was then absent, and knows nothing personally of the circumstances of her removal. Recollects Mrs. M'Kenna coming to witness on Wednesday morning, the 25th April last. Mrs. M'Kenna never spoke to witness of religious instruction, nor never made an objection; she came to say her child was sick, and to ask witness if "she was not to come till ten o'clock, as the child had told her." Witness had announced to all the children in the school, by direction of the committee, that any child whose parent or guardian objected to the morning exercises was at liberty to stay away until ten o'clock. Witness, in reply to the mother's question, "Why her child was not to come till ten o'clock," told her that, although they did not wish it, yet, if she objected to the religious instruction, her child might stay away until ten o'clock. Witness, in reference to Mrs. M'Kenna's evidence (see page 19), states that there was no mention of priests between them by either party. On Wednesday, the day the mother came, the child was absent on account of illness; on Thursday she was present, and Friday morning was the first morning she did not come. She has not been here since Friday morning, for witness sees her coming in with her own clothes on every morning; she has the under-clothing of the place, but wears her own dress over them. Those who are absent by permission, wear their own clothes; no arrangements have yet been made for providing them with clothing. Witness never mentioned anything to Mrs. M'Kenna about the breakfast or coming clean (see M'Kenna's evidence, page 19); merely told her about ten o'clock. Witness wishes to say that, when Mrs. M'Kenna had spoken to her about the illness and absence of her child, witness asked her "if she had any other communication to make," and Mrs. M'Kenna replied that "she had not." Witness asked the last question of Mrs. M'Kenna, suspecting (as she knew her to be a Catholic) she might be coming to enter an objection to the religious instruction. Witness had heard talk at the time of persons coming forward to make objections, and this talk had induced her to make the observation to Mrs. M'Kenna. This investigation commenced on the 26th April, and it was on the day previous that Mrs. M'Kenna came. The sub-committee meet on Saturday; this sub-committee manages the ordinary business of the school, and, if anything important happens, it lies over for the monthly general meeting. Witness would have considered it her duty to have laid any objection to the religious instruction which had been made to her before the committee, the first that would meet; would expect to receive from this committee directions with regard to her conduct in cases of the kind alluded to; but from directions previously received, witness would allow any child whose parent or guardian made an objection to remain at home; refers, in relation to the directions previously received, to the minute of the 12th February. It would follow from this minute, that children whose parents or guardians had objected to the religious teaching would receive the benefits of the institution from ten o'clock to the close of the day. Witness has had greater difficulty in maintaining order and discipline in the school of late than she ever had before. Previously to leaving in November, she first saw symptoms of this insubordination; she found little girls, who had formerly been very obedient and attentive, become most unruly, and rude in their manners; and, on making inquiries of the children who were not insubordinate, witness learned that they were receiving instructions elsewhere not to obey her. Girls who were told to do anything, would require to be told a second and third time, before they would do it; and these girls were formerly most obedient. Witness's impression is, that the children became insubordinate in this way because they had received instructions elsewhere; she had heard that they were questioned in the chapel school by their teachers there; that they had been questioned most closely there; and the confidence of the children in her appeared to be shaken. This conduct prevails up to the present time. The principles of reward prevails here rather than that of punishment; it is not the practice of the school to resort to physical punishment; there is no direct rule against it, but witness does not like to resort to it. The committee agrees with witness in her treatment of the children in this respect. Previously to October, the system of discipline which prevails in the school was more effective, as conducive to order, than it is now. There is a diminution in the harmony which prevailed amongst the children of different denominations; considerable harmony did not always prevail; there is such a state of feeling between the children of the different denominations, that many cases of quarrel, on religious grounds, came to the notice of witness. This prevailed before, but not to the same extent.

[The Judgment Book is here produced, in which there are five degrees of character recorded by the monitorships of the children: 1, bad; 2, middling; 3, good; 4, very good; and 5, excellent*.]

Witness never advises any of her pupils to go to prayer-meetings, either here or elsewhere, unless to their own Sunday-schools, or their own places of worship.

SIXTH DAY, Monday, 7th May 1855.

Miss Orr, being further examined, deposes:

7 May 1855.

A book called the "Black Book" is produced by witness, in which are entered the names of the worst offenders, almost exclusively of those who strike or fight with other girls. The following are the entries in the book since July last, and those marked with an asterisk are Roman-catholics:

July	-	-	-	-	-	Mary Lavel.
August 24th	-	-	-	-	-	Amelia Grenly.
" 25th	-	-	-	-	-	Sarah Mercer.
October	-	-	-	-	-	Sarah J. McConnell.
February	-	-	-	-	-	Amelia Grenly.
March 10th	-	-	-	-	-	*Mary Gilliland.
" 13th	-	-	-	-	-	*M. A. Marmion.

Witness states that children of one denomination are as well-behaved as those of another, but some Roman-catholic children who were formerly well-behaved, are not so now. Gilliland and M. A. Marmion, both Roman-catholics, are girls who were formerly well-behaved, and who now appear on the black list. M. A. Marmion, in May 1854, got the premium for good conduct from Mrs. Bruce, as awarded by the children themselves. Gilliland, who is still in the school, is daughter of the witness of the same name, and the girl to whom she referred. The children are here from eight o'clock, A.M., until they leave in the evening, at six in summer, and dusk in winter. The effect of allowing children to come at eight o'clock in the morning with the rest, to be washed and clothed, but then to be permitted to retire to the play-ground, during the half-hour for religious instruction, would, in the opinion of witness, be to give her a great deal of trouble, and tend to disorder; another effect of it would be, that some children whose parents desire them to receive the religious instruction, would be tempted to scheme to join those who were idle or at play. The noise of those at play would disturb the children at religious instruction, and it would not be easy to keep them orderly. Permitting the children whose parents or guardians have objected to religious instruction to play during the half-hour, would have an injurious effect upon their moral character. If the privilege of coming at ten o'clock were extensively availed of, it would tend very much to irregularity and untidiness, as well as to create a party spirit amongst the children. At a glance, it would be seen by their dress who were coming at eight o'clock and who at ten o'clock; and by this a religious distinction would be forced on the aspect of the school, when the object is to avoid all religious distinction being pointed out. On Sunday, each party is sent to her own chapel school, or place of worship.

Cross-examination.

108. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Do all the Catholic children hear the authorised version when read, and do all the Protestants hear the Douay?—Of course, as they read verse about.

109. When the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel was read, did you explain the meaning of any part of it?—Witness may have questioned on some part of it, but is quite certain that she has not questioned on any disputed point arising out of a verse.

110. Is

* The examination of this book did not show any difference in the conduct of Catholics as compared with Protestants; the conduct of all the children, as recorded, was generally rather good than otherwise.

110. Is it not a matter of necessity, that, according to the regulations of the school, the children of objecting parents were more liable than others to wear the cap of disgrace, and the blue frock, when they were used?—It is not; the cap and blue frock are only for those who come late, whose parents have not objected.

111. Is it not a reason for parents not to object, that their children should get no breakfast, provided they are absent from religious instruction?—Witness cannot tell the reasons parents may have.

112. Is it not likely that parents may be reluctantly induced to avoid objecting against religious instruction, lest their children should be deprived of their breakfast, or be compelled to wear the cap?—Cannot answer for the parents at all; but they do not wear the cap.

113. When did the cap cease to be used for the children of objecting parents; and was it ever used for any of them?—It never was used for the children of objecting parents.

114. If an hour after ten were selected for religious instruction, could not Catholic children be guarded against violations of good order, without insisting upon their attendance at such instruction?—It would be an unwarrantable interference with the time of the school to alter the present plan.

115. Are you acquainted with the rules of the National Board?—Yes.

116. Is it not one of these rules that no child, whose parents or guardians object to any religious instruction, should be compelled to be present thereat by any patron or manager of a school?—Yes.

117. Are not some of the children of this school liable to be deprived of some of the benefits afforded by it, in case they do not attend religious instruction objected to by parents and guardians?—Of none of the benefits which the Board affords.

118. Are such deprived of the breakfast given to those who attend the religious instruction?—They cannot get the breakfast when they do not come in time; they come to the secular instruction.

119. Do all the Catholic children, without exception, attend the chapel and Sunday-school, and by whom are they conducted thither?—All who come here attend, and they are conducted by two of the elder girls. One child lodges in the establishment; there are some children (five or six, cannot well say how many,) who have lodgings provided for them outside the establishment.

120. Is it quite certain that all the Catholic children who lodge in this establishment, or in lodgings provided by the committee, are conducted to the chapel and school on Sundays?—Those who are here, are always sent to the chapel. Many of the Catholics and Protestants absent themselves on Sundays.

121. Are any means taken to insure the presence here, on Sundays, of the Catholic extern lodgers, that they may be conducted to the chapel and school?—Just the same measures as with Protestants; they do not get their clean clothes, if they do not come. To the knowledge of witness the lodgers are always here on Sabbath.

122. Is the girl who lodges in this house a Catholic, and is she sent to the Sunday-school and the chapel—her name?—She is a Catholic—her name is M. A. Marmion.

123. If parents or guardians, in order to secure breakfast for their children, should avoid objecting to religious instruction, would such children, on their arrival at ten o'clock, be obliged to wear the cap of disgrace, and the blue frock?—Of course, if the parent did not object—as it would be understood that they should have come at the early hour.

124. Are the same religious instructions given to Catholics and Protestants, indiscriminately, at ten o'clock on Saturdays?—Yes; except to the children of objectors.

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

Mrs. Todd, being examined, deposes:

Was never in the service of the National Board until she came here; appointed matron and assistant teacher in August 1851; never was examined at any of the public examinations of teachers; is not classed; has charge of the food and clothing; superintends the industrial part of the work of the school; occasionally assists in the literary business when there is want of a teacher; during the months of November and December had the principal charge of the school, assisted by two paid monitresses; this was during the absence of Miss Orr; in January was relieved from this duty by the arrival of Miss M'Kinstrey; then resumed her position as matron and assistant teacher. During the two months witness had the principal charge, she conducted the religious exercises in the morning; during January the religious classes were managed by Miss M'Kinstrey. Witness did not keep the public documents of the school during the two months she had charge; they were kept by Anne Burnett, the monitress. Mary M'Clusky was the second monitress. Knows about Mary Sullivan; it was to witness that John Hayes came. Witness made a memorandum for herself at the time the affair occurred, to which she now refers. Hayes did not tell witness his name; told her his relation to the child.

[Witness then, referring to the memorandum, relates as follows:—]

Two men came one morning, in the first week in January, before breakfast, between half-past eight o'clock and nine o'clock; said it was a play-day with them, and just called to see the school, as they heard so much about it. One of them said he was uncle to M. Sullivan, and asked what kind of a child she was. Witness told him she was just a middling child; she was troublesome sometimes, and often late; by this meant the child was late at eight o'clock, A.M. Hayes asked if the children got any religious instruction; witness told him they did—that they got half an hour every morning; that they read the New Testament one morning, and the Scripture Extracts the next; and that the Roman-catholic children got the Douay version. Hayes made no objection, nor no reply. One said to the other, “I suppose we may go now. Good morning.” Witness was present the day Hayes gave his evidence; is quite certain that he never said anything about the child being “brought up a Catholic, as both father and mother were Catholics.” He only asked about the religious instruction, and made no observation or suggestion in relation to it. He did not tell witness (as he states—see page 15) not to meddle with the child’s religion at all. As Hayes made no objection, it was not necessary for witness to have said, “that there was but the one rule of the place, and that those who did not comply with that rule could not be here.” It was with Miss M’Kinstrey the affair about the stairs and the coming down to the committee-room occurred. Witness recollects Mrs. Gilliland coming here, and conversing about the religion of her child. She came, and said the bishop had desired her to come and tell witness not to read the Scriptures to the Roman-catholic children. Witness told her that she must come and speak to the committee, as she (witness) could make no change in the rules. Mrs. Gilliland then went away (does not remember the date), and came back to the committee. Witness was not present at the committee. After the committee had given her liberty to stay away until ten o’clock, she so remained away for some time; is not sure of the time she so remained away. She then attended in the kitchen for a fortnight, and has since come to the religious instruction in the morning. Her mother gave notice to the committee, last Saturday, that she would leave in a month; they generally give a month’s notice previously to leaving the school. Witness did not tell the child (Gilliland) that “if she did not come at eight o’clock, she should stay at home altogether.” Gilliland has been here upwards of two years. The child was here this morning. Recollects Mrs. Sosby coming to school, and asking to have her child’s religion changed in the register. Witness told her she could do nothing in the case, but desired her to come to the committee. Witness was directed by the committee to tell the child (on the evening of the day the committee had decided on not changing the registration) not to come any more; gave the child her bread, and told her as directed. It was on the 11th of December the child left. Remembers Rose M’Carroll; has a memorandum of Rose M’Carroll’s visit on April 23d. Mrs. M’Carroll came to say that Priest M’Auley sent for her on Sunday, and desired her to come here and say that no religious instruction was to be given to her daughter. She said that Mr. M’Auley had told her to come last winter, but she did not come till sent for by Mr. M’Auley a second time. This is all that passed; witness took a note of it at the time; is certain that nothing passed except what witness has already told; did not say to M’Carroll, “her child should be taken out of the school;” M’Carroll said nothing to witness about “not giving her child any more religious instruction.” Biddy Pendis, a pupil of the school, brought witness a note, written in pencil and unsigned; witness has not got the note; it ran as follows:—

“The guardians of Biddy Pendis desire that no religious instruction be imparted to her “in Frederick-street School.”

The child said the note was given to her by Mr. M’Auley; witness gave the note that day to Mrs. Bruce; did not heed the prayer which the note contained; got a communication from the committee, telling her to take no notice of such notes, i.e., notes from priests; this happened about the 13th December.

Cross-examination.

125. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.] Did John Hayes never object against religious instruction being given to his niece, Sullivan?—He said nothing about it to witness; was not present at the committee when Sullivan’s case was under discussion.

126. Who was teaching the school on the 2d January?—Miss M’Kinstrey.

127. Did Hayes converse on that day with any person here but yourself, when he came with Twigg?—No; with no other person except herself.

128. Have you ever learned that Miss M’Kinstrey apprized the committee, when considering Sullivan’s case, that when a parent or guardian objected to religious instruction, the rule of the National Board required such objection to be attended to?—Knows nothing about what took place at the committee.

129. If, then, Hayes did not object to the religious instruction to you, and conversed with no other person in the house, how could Miss M’Kinstrey warn the committee of a breach of the National Board’s rule?—Cannot tell.

130. Is there a child in the school named Stothars?—Yes, Margaret Stothars.

131. Did her brother, her only relation, object to the religious instruction?—Not to witness; never heard of an objection to any body else.

132. According to the regulations of the committee, will not the child Gilliland get clothes at her departure, after the end of a month, if she attends to all rules, including that regarding religious instruction?—She was told, last Saturday, she would get the suit of clothes.

133. If she does not attend the religious instruction will she get the clothes?—Witness thinks so. Mrs. Bruce told witness she would get the clothes.

134. Did Mrs. Bruce say she would get the clothes, even were she not to attend the religious instruction?—She did not say anything about religious instruction to witness.

135. Mr.

135. Mr. Bottomley.] In reference to question No. 132, is there anything on the rules relative to clothes being given on condition of attending religious instruction?—Witness thinks not.

Evidence
of Mrs. Todd.
7 May 1855.

[The 9th and 11th rules of the school (see Seventh Report of school, page 31) are referred to by Mr. Bottomley as relating to the last four questions.]

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud for witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

[Mr. Bottomley here states, that the Rev. Mr. M'Auley admitted to him that he had sent M'Carroll to make the objection, as stated by her.]

Mrs. Mary M'Veigh, being examined, deposes :

Witness has a child at this school; has had two other children here; witness's first child came here the second week after the school opened; witness is a Roman-catholic; has been very well satisfied with the school and the education her children have got; witness never saw anything but what was correct towards her children in the school; witness's children are Catholics; has not heard of any interference with the religion of her children, neither by teachers nor ladies. Her child comes here on Sunday, and gets her breakfast and her clothes, and is then sent to chapel with the other girls of the school; she also goes to the chapel Sunday-school. Knows a girl called M. Marmion; she came to the chapel for the three or four months she was living with witness; it is past four years since she left witness; hears that she goes to chapel still; hears this from her own child. It is at witness's own desire that she comes here to give this testimony, as she is anxious to give her good opinion of the school; is grateful to the ladies for what they have done for her children. Witness heard there was a "contest" about religion amongst other children; but nothing ever occurred in relation to her own.

Evidence of
Mrs. M. M'Veigh.

Cross-examination.

136. Right Rev. Dr. Denvir.]—What was the nature of the religious interference that you heard of, but not practised in the case of your own children? Tell the inspectors all about this interference?—Heard the people about her own place say it was in the papers; heard no more of it.

137. How long ago is it since you heard the people say it was in the papers?—About a week ago.

138. State the name of any person who told you this was in the papers?—I could not. I heard a woman in a public-house say it; it was the woman of the house.

139. Did you ever hear your child saying, that Mary Anne Marmion was by any one induced to go to church?—Witness did not.

[The foregoing evidence was read aloud in the presence of witness, who acknowledged its accuracy.]

[Although the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir refuses to enter upon the case of the girl who was said to have been tampered with (see the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir's reasons for not entering on this case, pages 14 and 22), Mr. Bottomley demands that a statement of the facts of the case, written and subscribed to by Miss Ireland, should be placed on record with the other minutes of evidence.

Miss Ireland's statement is permitted to be made, and is as follows:—]

Having been specially accused of proselytism, in connexion with the child Mary Anne Marmion, referred to in Third Report, page 11, I beg to place on record some facts of this child's history, of which I have been peculiarly cognizant.

Statement
of Miss Ireland.

The following is an extract from the Third Report, page 11, (26th March 1850):—

"A singular affair, in which a child of six years old became an object of speculation to a drunken woman, in no way related to her, has awakened the attention of the committee to this subject. The facts were these: the mother of a child in school, who had lost her husband in cholera last summer, died lately in a state of extreme poverty. A woman who had shared her lodging, wished to retain the little girl, and a boy somewhat older—the sole surviving children. This did not seem strange at first, as it was thought to proceed from a hope of procuring some remuneration for lodging them. The habits of the woman put this out of the question; but the children were told that some means would be taken to provide for the little girl. Both boy and girl disappeared immediately after this proposal. Some members of committee were determined to ascertain what had become of these children; but five visits were paid, and a strict investigation threatened, before they were restored. A respectable person in the neighbourhood stated, that from that particular locality, numbers of children, after skulking about all day idle, were taken out in the evening to beg at the doors of places of public resort; and we have no doubt that those who take them for this purpose will teach them to steal also, should an opportunity offer. That such was the training meant for these children we cannot doubt; and we feel happy to add, that for the present the little girl has been rescued, and is now a healthy and happy pupil in the school, and that the boy is employed in a spinning factory."

Statement
of Miss Ireland.

7 May 1855.

In continuation of the printed account, I go on to say, that no relative appearing to offer even the shelter of a roof, the child was provided by the committee with a lodging, as well as food, clothing, and education. Thus carefully watched over, even the physical change in her appearance was most remarkable, and was noticed by the weekly visitors with much gratification.

I cannot exactly specify the time when I first heard of the woman named Bell claiming to be the girl's aunt; but the circumstance was conveyed to me, with the information that this person had dragged her forcibly from her lodging on a Sunday, and on the Wednesday following, when the news reached me, nothing more was known. Conjecturing the woman to be the same who had formerly sent the child to beg on the street, no time was lost in commencing a rigorous search for her; and in consequence, I believe, was allowed to return to the school, the supposed aunt never coming forward either to assert relationship or to account for her strange conduct. Meantime, at her return, Mary Anne declared that she was sure the woman was not her aunt, having never seen her in her mother's life-time; and in this assertion she has always persisted. Whatever title to relationship Mrs. Bell possessed, she allowed it again to lie dormant till the autumn of 1854, when I was informed that she had coaxed the child away with a promise of money, had detained her forcibly all night, and it was only by leaving her bonnet that she was able to escape next morning. Believing that my former interference had saved the child from some persecution, I now went with her to Mrs. Bell. I was by this woman addressed as if I had been the child's greatest enemy, and was witness to such an outbreak of violent temper, as convinced me that no tie of kindred could make such a woman a suitable guardian to the little girl. A few days after this, two policemen were sent by a magistrate, before whom this woman had gone to make affidavit of relationship. Among other things, she had asserted that the girl was detained in school against her inclination; this the policemen learned from herself to be untrue, and the magistrate refused to act in the matter. Another week or two passed, and then came an attorney's letter, pre-dated three months. In this the Secretary of the Industrial School was desired to give up the girl Marmion to Margaret Bell, the nearest maternal relative. Believing that no gentleman could have written this letter, if cognizant of the real circumstances, I took no notice of it.

Such was the precise state of affairs when Mary Anne Marmion was hired by Mrs. Carley, The committee were glad to secure a home for her farther from her persecutor; and as she spent a month in school after she was engaged, while making her clothes, nothing can be more untrue than that there was any secrecy about her removal.

Such is the history of the maternal relative, of whom we heard nothing further till her name appeared in Dr. Denvir's statement. The child left the school in the early part of November last; and a week before Christmas, a man whom she had never seen came armed with another attorney's letter to Mr. Carley, commanding that gentleman, under high penalties, to give up the girl to the bearer, Patrick Marmion, her paternal uncle.

Not choosing to give the child into the hands of an entire stranger, whom she had never before seen, Mr. Carley preferred sending her back to the school, where, at her own earnest request, she has since remained; and we stand threatened with a suit in Chancery and other pains and penalties for the crime of affording food and shelter to a child whose relatives, after deserting her for five years, evince their newly-awakened affection by endeavouring to punish those who, during their desertion, were the means of saving her from beggary and crime.

The charge of proselytism brought personally against myself, is simply without foundation. Let those who accuse me specify their accusations.

[The following memorandum, also signed by Miss Ireland, referring to the relationship of the claimants to the child M. A. Marmion, is handed in :—]

Margaret Bell (pretended aunt) claiming to be sister to the child's mother, did not know this mother's name. She also declared that Patrick Marmion was making a false claim. Patrick Marmion (supposed uncle) brought no proof of kindred. A note from Mr. M'Cartan, n.c.c., stated that he knew Patrick Marmion, and believed E. M., the child's father, to be his brother. The girl's brother admitted to the ladies that he had never seen this uncle till sent for by Dr. Denvir. Marmion admitted this meeting at Dr. Denvir's house; and further, that his first moving in the affair was through Mr. O'Rourke.

[The following is a copy of a paper signed by Marmion's uncle :—]

"I am satisfied that the committee of ladies I have seen to-day in the industrial school are quite willing for me to take my niece, Mary Anne Marmion, home to my own home, if she was willing to go with me, which she is not willing to do at present; and permit me to call and see her when I come to town at my leisure.

6.—APPLICATION from Mr. Bottomley for a Copy of Inspectors' Report, and Minutes of Evidence.

Sir,

Belfast, 28 May 1855.

I UNDERSTAND that the Report of Inspectors appointed by the Board of National Education to investigate the truth of certain charges made by the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir against the Ladies' Industrial National School for Girls, Frederick-street, Belfast, has been presented to the Board, together with the Evidence taken at that investigation. Having been requested by the ladies' committee of the school to conduct the case on their behalf, I beg to state that the committee are anxious to obtain a copy of the Inspectors' Report and of the evidence, and I shall be obliged by your informing me if the Board will give them a copy of these documents.

(B. O. 6.—6.—55.)

Frederick-street National School, Belfast.

Sir,

Education Office, 12 June 1855.

WE have laid before the Commissioners of National Education your letter of the 28th ultimo, requesting on behalf of the committee of the above school to be furnished with a copy of the Inspectors' Report of the investigation into the charges brought against the school by the Right Rev. Dr. Denvir, and also a copy of the evidence taken at that investigation.

We are directed to state, in reply, that it is contrary to the practice of the Commissioners to furnish copies of documents of the nature referred to, which are invariably regarded as confidential. Your request is therefore declined.

8.—COPY of LETTER to Miss Ireland, conveying Decision of Board on the Charges preferred against the Frederick-street Lancasterian Industrial National School, Belfast.

Madam,

Education Office, 5 October 1855.

WE have laid before the Commissioners of National Education the Report of Messrs. Keenan & Patterson, head and district inspectors, on the charges preferred by the Right Rev. Bishop Denvir, against the system of management of the Frederick-street National Industrial School, Belfast, together with the minutes of evidence taken at inquiry.

After a careful examination of the evidence, the Commissioners are of opinion that, in the management of the school, the committee were not influenced by any desire to convert the Roman-catholic pupils attending it to the Protestant faith, and were sincerely anxious to avoid even the suspicion of proselytism.

The Commissioners, however, are equally convinced that the fundamental rule of the institution, as interpreted by the committee themselves, and by them carried out in practice up to the 12th of February last, was totally at variance with the spirit and rules of the national system of education, and calculated to create in the minds of Roman-catholics a suspicion of undue interference with the religious opinions of the children, and to afford, therefore, just grounds of complaint.

The Commissioners understand, that according to the fundamental rule referred to, and which continued in force up to the 12th of February last, no child was permitted to attend the secular instruction commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning, who had not previously attended the religious instruction given at half-past eight o'clock.

The Commissioners, however, observe with satisfaction that the committee (some of the parents of the children having objected to the rule in question) rescinded it on the 12th of February. But with a view to the future management of the school, and to secure it a general acceptance with all denominations, the Commissioners earnestly recommend that the three following suggestions be adopted:—

1st. That it shall not only not be compulsory on the Roman-catholic children to attend any religious instruction given in the school, but that no inducement whatsoever shall be held out to them to do so, or any practice retained which may be open to the imputation of being so intended, and that should any of the children decline such attendance, they shall nevertheless be freely admitted to the ordinary instruction given in the school, and to all other secular benefits conferred by it.

In connexion with this suggestion, we are directed to call the particular attention of the committee to the following extracts from the Rules of the Commissioners, bearing upon the subject of religious instruction.

Part I., Sec. IV., Rule 2.—Religious instruction must be so arranged that each school shall be open to children of all communions; that due regard be had to parental right and authority; that, accordingly, no child be compelled to receive, or to be present at, any religious instruction of which his parents or guardians disapprove; and that the time for giving it be so fixed that no child shall be thereby, in effect, excluded, directly or indirectly, from the other advantages which the school affords.

Part I., Sec. IV., Rule 15.—Patrons, managers, and teachers are not to use any means, directly or indirectly, to induce children to attend any religious instruction contrary to the wishes of their parents or guardians. The Commissioners will regard such interference as opposed to the whole spirit of the system of national education.

2d. That the parent or guardian of any child shall not be concluded, by any prior act or registry, as deprived of the right of exercising full control over the religious instruction to be given to his or her child or ward.

3d. That the rule enforcing the necessity of the children remaining the whole of the ordinary school hours uninterruptedly in the school shall be relaxed, so as to permit children of all denominations to attend Divine service and religious instruction on any day of religious observance prescribed by the churches to which they respectively belong.

9.—LETTER from Miss Ireland, remonstrating against the Decision of the Board.

Lancasterian Industrial School,
Frederick-street, Belfast, November 1855.

Gentlemen,

HAVING placed your official letter of October 5th before the committee of the above school, I am directed to express their regret that, while exonerating them "from any desire to convert the Roman-catholic children to the Protestant faith, and expressing their belief that the committee have been sincerely anxious to avoid even the suspicion of proselytism," the Commissioners have yet deemed it necessary to accompany their decision with cautions and suggestions which indicate the reverse, namely, that our intentions towards the community are still to be continued suspicious in regard to religious interference.

Viewing this with the facts patent at the investigation, that the proof of compulsory reading entirely failed, and that the charge of proselytism was so utterly groundless, that no attempt was made to sustain it, the Committee feel deeply hurt that it has not been distinctly stated by the Board that none of the charges had been substantiated.

After a careful re-perusal of the printed rules for making application for aid to the Board of Education, the committee, with all due respect to the expressed opinion of the Commissioners, beg to say that they cannot consider their fundamental rule, as carried out in practice up to the 12th February last, at variance with the system of national education.

In the rules referred to, it is expressly stated that patrons have the right of appointing religious instruction, subject to certain restrictions, which restrictions the committee believe all resolvable into this, that deference shall be paid to the wishes of parents and guardians.

Before entering into further vindication of their past course, the committee wish to draw the attention of the Commissioners to a few points, in which the Frederick-street differs from other national schools.

1st. The long hours in the establishment, from eight o'clock, A.M., till six P.M. in summer, and four in winter.

2d. The provision made by voluntary subscription, for the entire support of the children, rendering the institution a boarding as well as a day school, and only in the latter department a national school.

The committee remark further, that the long hours were adopted for the purpose of removing from street begging and other temptations, children whose parents are not sufficiently careful of their morals; and ample time being thus given, religious instruction was considered a part of daily routine which was altogether indispensable. The variety of sects in the committee, and also among the poor for whom the school was intended, rendered this instruction a matter for serious deliberation, and in order to secure cordial co-operation, especially with Roman-catholics, the following means were adopted:

1st. In organizing the school in 1847, the Roman-catholic members of committee were particularly consulted; and at a special meeting held for the purpose, the suggestions and modifications of these ladies relative to the children of their own communion, were received and adopted.

2d. When some time after joining the National Board, a Roman-catholic member of committee proposed that the children should all read together in the Scripture Lesson, a written guide defining a certain course of instruction was submitted to the general committee, and a special copy placed in the hands of the above lady during an entire month. Being then approved of by all, it was given to the teacher for her direction.

3d. The morning Scripture Lesson, as part of the daily routine, has always been specially mentioned to each parent or guardian on receiving a pupil into school.

Besides all this, the committee courted publicity by inviting the visits of all parties, and as a natural consequence of joining the National Board, transmitted to the Commissioners the first report of the school, containing the fundamental rule now said to be at variance with the spirit and rules of the National Board.

The committee observe further, that the plan thus carefully elaborated and carried out in a spirit of cordiality among persons of all religious opinions, was pursued for seven years, without any objection being made by either parent or guardian, and as soon as such an objection seemed probable, the rule was modified as far as it was believed it could be done, without injury to the discipline of the establishment.

By the rule thus modified and now approved by the Commissioners, the committee have since been guided, continuing the Scripture reading at an hour when no teaching, secular or industrial, is in progress, and when no disturbance to the lesson can be given by those who may not wish to join in the reading.

Having thus explained some features of the industrial school, in which it differs from common day schools, the committee go on to state, in reference to the first suggestion of the Commissioners, that it never was compulsory on the Roman-catholics to attend the religious instruction, and no inducement whatsoever has been held out to them for this purpose. If the Commissioners, as the suggestion seems to intimate, require a rule exclusively for conferring privileges on the Roman-catholic pupils, the committee beg to say, that they have always considered equality, not ascendancy, the system of national education; and believing in the wisdom and justice of this equality, they have been glad to strengthen their own judgment by that of the National Board. Moreover, the suggestion gives to the children themselves the power of objecting; a new, and, as it seems to the committee, a very injudicious principle; one which, if acted upon, would entirely ruin the industrial school.

In regard to the second suggestion, the committee remark, that the wishes of parents and guardians have ever been respected, and will continue to be so in the registry, as far as relates to the Scripture reading; but it must be obvious that for the committee to sanction the change of the registry from Protestant to Catholic, or vice versa, would open a door to proselytism, and subject the committee to endless suspicions, imputations, and controversies.

The third suggestion of the Commissioners respecting days set apart for religious observances, the committee wish to concede, but not so as to interrupt the course of secular instruction. To do so would involve more difficulty than may appear to those unacquainted with the working of the school.

Some years since, and when it was believed that the rules of the National Board prohibited all such interruption, the Roman-catholic children, by private arrangement of a few zealous members of their own communion, on some occasions left school to attend chapel, without any permission from the committee.

Several girls thus indulged being found about the streets after leaving school, under pretence of going to chapel, and becoming more than usually bold and disobedient to their teachers, the committee were compelled to notice the circumstance, and to make a decided stand against any extern influence whatsoever.

A recent affair, though not bearing on the question of religion, may elucidate to the Commissioners the difficulties which must attend any irregularity in this most important and troublesome school.

During the present autumn, a very nefarious theft was committed by a child of nine years old, towards whom the discipline was relaxed so as to allow her to visit her sick mother occasionally in the forenoon; and, of course, while wearing the school clothing.

Children, some of whom are capable of thus abusing a privilege, never can be permitted to leave the school during the day; but if parents choose to keep them at home for days of religious observance, no objection will be made to their doing so.

It must be manifest, however, that to place an unlimited and unrestricted power of interrupting the business of the establishment in the hands of any authority, extern to the committee, would seriously interfere with its discipline, and if abused, would destroy its usefulness, while it would operate as a continued motive to proselytize on the minds of the children themselves, presenting a strong temptation to enrol themselves as members of whatever denomination would secure the largest number of holidays.

Before closing, the committee wish to refer to a most extraordinary mistake in the Report of the Frederick-street School, made by the district inspector in 1851, and published in the National Board Report for that year. It is here alluded alluded to, because it is understood to have been brought into notice before the Commissioners.

In this mis-statement, broth and meat are mentioned as the dinner for Friday, and the committee affirm, without reservation, that since the school commenced, neither broth nor meat was ever given or offered to the children on a Friday. Broth and meat are given twice a week, and in order to secure to the Roman-catholics their full share in the variety of nourishment, the meat days have been arranged, peculiarly with a view to avoid their days of abstinence.

Thursdays and Saturdays are the days on which broth is usually given. During Lent, Tuesdays and Thursdays; and last year a similar arrangement was made by request of a Roman-catholic member of committee for some weeks before Christmas.

The committee are sorry to remark in conclusion, that the Commissioners have made no decision whatever on the false and unfounded charge brought against them respecting one particular case, which not only was not proved, but which was disproved in every point, by unimpeached and unimpeachable authority.

Further, as an amendment to this letter, and in the name of both committee and subscribers, I am instructed to protest,—

1st. Against the course pursued by the inspectors at the investigation, in sanctioning the prosecutor in the endeavour to substantiate a charge made 2d February, by facts said to have occurred during the last week of April.

2d. Against the prosecutor being permitted to withdraw the only specific case named in the indictment, while sustaining the other charges by such very questionable evidence.

3d. To protest especially against the action of the Commissioners, in allowing one of their number, after bringing charges in Dublin against the committee, to conduct the investigation as prosecutor here; and finally, to be present (as the committee and subscribers have been informed) at several meetings of the Board, convened to deliberate on this case.

Madam,

Education Office, 19 December 1855.

WE have had the honour of laying before the Commissioners of National Education your letter, protesting, on the part of the committee, against the decision of the Board on the charges preferred by the Right Rev. Bishop Denvir against the management of the Frederick-street (Belfast) National School.

In reply, we are directed to state, for the information of the committee, that the Commissioners did not decide upon the case without the most anxious and mature deliberation; and that they see no grounds for rescinding or modifying the decision as conveyed in our letter of the 5th October last.

Industrial National School, Frederick-street, Belfast, 27 December 1855.

Gentlemen,

I HAVE had the honour of placing before the committee of this school your favour of the 19th instant, and am instructed, in reply, again to request from the Commissioners a copy of the minutes of evidence on which their decision of 5th October was given.

Supported as the school has been by funds bestowed for no narrow sectarian system of education, the committee feel themselves now called on to print these documents of evidence, and to place a copy in the hands of each subscriber, in order that every one who assists in sustaining the establishment may be fully aware how far its management merits a continuance of that confidence which, during eight years past, has enabled the committee to feed, clothe, and educate nearly 100 children ; children who otherwise must have been supported in the union workhouse, or else by street begging and petty thefts.

Hoping that the Commissioners will understand the vital importance to such a school of being entirely understood by the community among whom it has been so liberally sustained, and that they will for this cause furnish us with means of explanation,

I have, &c.

REPORTS and CORRESPONDENCE on the subject of the increased Police Force.

From Robert Curtis, Esq., County Inspector of Constabulary, to Major-General Sir Duncan M'Gregor, Inspector-General.

Kilkenny, 23 February 1856.

I SEND you by this post the "Kilkenny Moderator," by which you will perceive how matters go on in this city, and are likely to continue.

I fear they are not likely to mend ; but the greatest difficulty I feel is as regards the character of the efficiency of the police force ; for it is quite impossible to prevent these frequent attacks upon the Scripture-readers, except by actually accompanying them, I might almost say arm-in-arm, on all their peregrinations.

It is difficult, in a letter, to enter into a detail of the obstacles which present themselves to an efficient protection of these men ; but some estimate may be formed of them from the line of conduct adopted by the majority of the bench of magistrates on the 16th instant, when they thought fit to charge it as a crime upon me, the having sent men in coloured clothes to protect the Scripture-readers ; a discretion which I felt quite competent to use, as most likely to attain the desired object.

I am

I am of opinion that something must be done, extra the means we have at present in our power to uphold the law, if these Scripture-readers continue their avocations in Kilkenny; a course which I believe they are determined to pursue.

It is not easy for any person, except they were on the spot, to conceive the state of excitement which has prevailed on these late occasions, and will undoubtedly again prevail, should any case of a similar kind be brought before the Petty Sessions.

I should be glad, if you did not think it unnecessary, of your advice and instructions, under circumstances which, from what you are already aware of, you may believe to be somewhat trying.

(A true Copy.)

D. M. Gregor.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 20 February 1856.

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to inform you, that the proceedings of the City of Kilkenny Petty Sessions, on Tuesday, the 12th instant, have been brought under the notice of his Excellency, as reported in the "Kilkenny Moderator" newspaper, of the 16th instant, more especially with reference to the observations reported therein to have been made by you, viz.:

"Mr. Smithwick.—I must say you ought to have made the distinction then. It was most improper to send a Catholic policeman on such duty; and if I was in his position, and received such an order, I wouldn't obey it."

His Excellency has directed this communication to be made to you, that you may offer such observations thereon as you may think proper.

Edwd. Smithwick, Esq., J. P.,
Borough of Kilkenny.

I am, &c.
(signed) Thos. A. Larcom.

Sir,

Kilkenny, 22 February 1856.

I HAVE had the honour of receiving your letter of the 20th instant, communicating the wishes of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant for my observations as to words said to be used by me at a petty sessions held at Kilkenny, on Tuesday, the 12th instant.

I beg to say, for his Excellency's information, that the report in the "Moderator" newspaper, which you quote, is incorrect. This report I aver to be a misstatement of the words used by me.

At an adjournment of the petty sessions of the 12th; held on the 19th instant, I took the first public occasion that offered to impeach the report to which your letter refers, and to give the true statement made by me on that occasion.

I have to complain that what I said on the 19th instant was also misreported, much having been omitted, and more misrepresented, I hope not intentionally, but, I fear, with the view of leaving the first inaccuracy uncorrected.

Thos. A. Larcom, Esq.

I have, &c.
(signed) Edwd Smithwick.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 27 February 1856.

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 22d instant, and I am to acquaint you that it is satisfactory to his Excellency to receive your assurance that the expressions attributed to you in the Kilkenny newspaper are incorrect, as, if the fact had been otherwise, his Excellency would have felt it his duty to have taken other steps in the matter.

E. Smithwick, Esq., J. P.,
Kilkenny.

I am, &c.
(signed) Thos. A. Larcom.

— No. 4. —

Kilkenny, 18 March 1856.

May it please your Excellency,

I AM instructed by the grand jury of the city of Kilkenny to forward the enclosed Memorial and Resolutions for your gracious consideration.

To His Excellency the Earl of Carlisle, Dublin Castle.

I have, &c.
(signed) Daniel Smithwick.

CITY OF KILKENNY.

Grand Jury Room, 14 March 1856.

May it please your Excellency,

THE grand jury of the city of Kilkenny, at the "Spring Assizes" assembled, unanimously adopted the following resolutions :

Moved by James M. Tidmarsh, Esq., Ex-Mayor, seconded by Joseph Wright, Esq. :

Resolved, "That this grand jury cannot separate without expressing its marked satisfaction at the extreme lightness of the calendar at this assizes, and the complete tranquillity and perfect freedom from crime which pervades, and has long pervaded, the city of Kilkenny, while they have learned with surprise and regret that an increased number of police has been added to the Kilkenny force; such being, in the deliberate opinion of this grand jury, uncalled for and unnecessary; and that, under such circumstances, any increased tax upon the cess-payers of Kilkenny for the maintenance of such police force would be a gross wrong and a grievous injustice."

Moved by Thomas Bradley, Esq., seconded by James Sullivan, Esq. :

Resolved, "That a Memorial in accordance with such Resolution be prepared and forwarded to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant."

In compliance with the spirit and direction of these resolutions, the grand jury respectfully appeal to your Excellency, that you may be pleased to secure Kilkenny from the burden of any additional taxation for extra police force, at a time when the grand jury, who are perfectly cognisant of the fact, assure you that "complete tranquillity and freedom from crime" pervades the entire district now threatened to be taxed for the maintenance of an additional force, such force being, under the circumstances, "uncalled for and unnecessary."

And the grand jury rely in full confidence upon your Excellency's good sense and kind feeling that the prayer of this Memorial will be granted.

Signed, on behalf of the Grand Jury,
Daniel Smithwick, Foreman.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 25 March 1856.

I AM directed by the Lord Lieutenant to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, forwarding a Memorial and Resolutions of the grand jury of the city of Kilkenny, assembled at the late Spring Assizes, relative to the removal of the additional police force stationed in that city; and I am to acquaint you, for the information of the Memorialists, that his Excellency cannot concur in the propriety of at present removing the additional police force which has been recently stationed in the city of Kilkenny; that extra force having been rendered necessary by a series of disgraceful disturbances, endangering the peace of the city and the liberty of the subject, which had formed the subject of correspondence with the Mayor and bench of magistrates.

His Excellency, however, desires me to add, that he will be glad, when the state of the city shall again become such as to enable him to withdraw the extra force in question.

Daniel Smithwick, Esq.,
Kilkenny.

I am, &c.

COUNTY of KILKENNY.

Kilkenny, 21 April 1856.

WITH reference to the annexed minute as to the statement at (A), I beg to state that I have made inquiries, and I find that Constable M'Cormick's reason for having expressed that opinion was in consequence of having seen some of the Scripture-readers standing in the middle of the street with some of the boys who distribute the tracts. At the time, the constable and his party were at some little distance, and while they were approaching, one of the Scripture-readers, named Warren, was walking up and down, and speaking very loudly; but the constable was not sufficiently near to hear what he said. At this time there were no persons beyond what was ordinary or usual in the street; but the women were standing at the doors. Upon the constable coming up, Warren said he had been struck with a stone, and produced one; but which the constable states he saw him root out of the channel as he was coming up. A woman then stated to the constable that she had been struck with a stone by one of the boys who held the tracts, and pointed him out to the constable, requesting him to get his name, that she might summons him. The constable asked the boy his name, which he gave at once; but Warren got into an excited state, and told the constable he would report him. This is the only cause, added to the demeanor and manner of Warren, that Constable M'Cormick had for making the statement at (A). I think it right, however, to add, for the information of the Inspector-general, that the prevalent impression in this city amongst all classes, and I have been speaking to several Protestant gentlemen upon the subject, is, that these Scripture-readers are not averse to a certain extent of opposition, but the contrary; and that they select, therefore, the most remote and out-of-the-way places to exhibit themselves. The assigned motive for this is, that the opposition tends to strengthen them in their situations, for which they receive a salary of from 2*l.* 10*s.* to 3*l.* a month; and that it tends also to increase the subscriptions to the society in England, where the account of this opposition and these riots is published in an exaggerated form. I give this solely as the general impression that exists, and in a very decided manner, in the public mind of all classes in Kilkenny (except those connected with the movement), without venturing to express any opinion of my own upon the subject. This I know, that no good whatever has arisen, or is likely to arise, in the point of view with which the movement has been undertaken, but the contrary; ill-feeling has been excited and stirred up between two classes of Her Majesty's subjects previously living in harmony and cordiality together, and this has extended beyond the mere mob of women and boys who attack and hoot these men in the suburbs of the town.

'Tis right also to state, for the information of the Inspector-general, that the late order for the police to remove any placards pointed out by the mayor or magistrates as being offensive, or likely to lead to a breach of the peace, has given rise to what I cannot designate as anything less than a ridiculous and disgraceful scene, and one which the members of the force (one and all) consider derogatory and painful to their position; 'tis this: One of the Scripture-readers, accompanied by four or five boys, with rolls of placards under their arms, another carrying a ladder, and another a pot of paste and a brush, proceed through the streets for the purpose of pasting these placards. The mayor considers them offensive, and likely to lead to a breach of the peace, and he sends three or four police in their wake, with a man of his own, carrying another ladder, and a mob of women and children following; the whole shouting and cheering. No sooner does the Scripture-reader succeed in getting a placard posted, and goes on to another place, than the mayor's ladder is set, and a policeman mounts to take it down. The policemen have a written order from the mayor, containing a printed copy of the placard so to be removed. The procession, for I can call it nothing else, proceeds in this manner through the streets, which I consider both ridiculous and disgraceful. The police, if even not ordered themselves to remove the placards, should be on the spot, or immediately in the neighbourhood, to prevent riot; for it would no sooner be up than the mob would proceed to take it down; the others would defend it, and the least that could ensue would be a pelting match of mud, or in default thereof, in this dry weather, of stones. It is also becoming now a matter of who can have the longest ladder, and some of these placards have been posted 15 or 16 feet from the ground. In some instances the posters have got out of windows, and posted them even still higher, where they cannot be got at, but where from being pelted with mud, the window is likely to be broken; they have also been posted on boards and hung out of windows by a cord, which is drawn up when any attack has been made upon them. I cannot but believe that if these placards are illegal when up, it is illegal to put them up; and that if the mayor has a legal right to remove them, he would have an equally legal right to prevent their being posted in the first instance. If they are calculated to lead to a breach of the peace, I consider the latter measure would be just as legal as the former, and much more effective, and prevent the unseemly processions in the streets.

The whole business has now merged into sheer opposition between the society and the local authorities in Kilkenny. The posting of the placards can answer no purpose whatever; for, in the first instance, no Roman-catholic would be seen reading them, and in the next place they are covered with mud, effaced, or torn down before they are five minutes up. On the other hand, these very facts render their removal an unnecessary piece of bravado.

FURTHER REPORT OF _____ (as the case may be).

STATEMENT.

Kilkenny, 16 April 1856.

I have to report, that at one o'clock on yesterday, the 15th instant, James Warren, Scripture-reader, and the above-named boys, came to James-street barracks and made the following statement, which was taken down in writing by Head-constable Holmes :

"That they had been assaulted at Upper Patrick-street, while distributing bills. A woman first struck Cashin with her fist ; a girl came up and struck Spellady, with a stone in her hand. A crowd of about 40 persons, consisting of men, and women, and children, assembled, and pelted mud and stones. Warren says that he was struck with a stone on the face, and with one on the back. Daniel Quinn also states that he was struck with a stone in the side. A police patrol came up at the time. J. Warren says, that he was struck with a stone, and he in conversation with the constable. One woman's name was taken down by Constable M'Cormack, in charge of the patrol. Warren further stated that the people seemed more excited after the police came up ; they shouted and said they got what they deserved.

CITY OF KILKENNY.

James-street, Temporary Barrack,
15 April 1856.

I HAVE to report that I was on patrol this day in charge of Sub-constables Keligher, Kearney, Sherwood, and Curren, and at 12 o'clock noon I patrolled Upper Patrick-street, which was quiet. On our return I heard some shouting, apparently the noise of women and girls. I proceeded to the place ; it was then 20 minutes after 12 P.M., and saw Warren, the Scripture-reader, and three other tract distributors, with papers in their hands, standing on the narrow road leading from the Cross to the Callan-road ; there were some women and children on the footpaths at their houses. On coming towards them we saw Warren forcing a stone from the channel with his shoe. On our approach some women came from their houses and complained of the tract distributors entering their houses and dropping tracts on their floors. One woman charged Quinn with thrusting a tract in her bosom. Warren charged her with an assault, and said there were stones thrown at him, and produced the stone we saw him taking up ; he said Spellady was assaulted. I asked him (Spellady) to point out the person who assaulted him ; he declined doing so, saying she was too little. I got the name of the woman for Warren ; she asked me to give her Quinn's name, and on my asking it Warren became very much excited, so much so that I thought he would assault me ; he, in a very loud tone of voice, said he would report to me to the people ; shouted. Then I saw a statement taken from Warren by Head-constable Holmes, in which he states he was struck with a stone while speaking to me ; and I think it right to contradict it, such not having occurred, nor did he complain of it at the time. I think it right also to state, that at no time was the crowd up to 40 persons, nor more than 20 ; and I wish to state, as my own conviction, from the position of those men, that they were endeavouring to excite the people to commit a breach of the peace, which was only prevented by our timely arrival. } (A).

Note.—The view which this Statement affords of the Consumption of Imported Commodities in Ireland is, to a certain extent, defective, inasmuch as the Coasting Regulations by which the Cross Channel Trade has been governed since the year 1825, prevent the keeping of any Record of Goods imported Duty-free from Great Britain, either in the case of British Productions or of Foreign Merchandise upon which Duty has already been paid in a British Port. Of the Articles included in the present Account, those for which the comparison with earlier years is most affected by this circumstance are Refined Sugar, Flax Seed, Cotton Wool, Cotton Yarn, Woollen Yarn, Raw and Thrown Silk, and Iron unwrought.

Note.—The latter section of the foregoing Return exhibiting the Exports from Ireland to Great Britain, is of necessity defective. It shows the Exportations of Wheat and Oats alone (both Grain and Meal) on the authority of an official record; while the Exportations of Live Stock are stated on the credit of non-official documents collected by the officers of Customs at the respective ports of shipment. The documents in question do not comprehend the other articles specified in the Order of the Honourable House.

OBSERVATIONS.

In the year 1854, the cost of the revision of the valuation, in several of the counties named in this Schedule, bears a higher proportion to the amount of the valuation of rateable property in each of such counties than in other counties. This circumstance arose from the fact, that when the Valuation Amendment Act (17 Vict. c. 8) came into force, under which several descriptions of property were for the first time brought under assessment, the revision in such counties was either wholly completed, or very nearly so. Hence it became necessary to cancel the lists already made at considerable cost, and to prepare new lists for the collection of the rates to be presented at the Summer Assizes of that year.

In the year 1855 the revisions have been made at comparatively small cost, in many cases not exceeding the amount paid for an annual revision under the Poor Law Act, the latter being available for Poor Law rating only; whereas the revisions made under the Acts now in force (15 & 16 Vict. c. 63, and 17 Vict. c. 8) are used for all kinds of assessments, including poor's rate, county cess, city and town rates, and income tax; and new or amended copies of the valuation are supplied annually to the respective bodies.

The tenement maps, both on the 6-inch scale and the 60-inch, are also carefully corrected, to correspond with the changes made in the hereditaments.
